CUNNINGHAM CLAIMS ARE WORTH MANY MILLIONS

Surprising Testimony Given Senate Committee by Guggenheim Syndicate Manager.

RICH PRIZES IN ALASKA

Option Secured for $250,000 on Coal Land Expected to Yield $25,000,000 Net.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The senate committee on territories today furnished an attraction in the way of the developments relative to Alaska coal lands which were fairly entitled to rival in interest the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation.

Manager Stephen Birch of the Guggenheim-Morgan Alaskan syndicate reeled off figures concerning the value of the coal in the Cunningham claims and the Alaska coal and copper mines that were quite calculated to cause the heads of the members of the committee to swim.

Placing the tonnage in the Cunningham mines at fifty millions he said that the coal could probably be taken out so as to net a profit of $25,000,000. This statement, taken in connection with the fact that the syndicate had agreed to pay only $250,000 for half of the property, aroused much interest.

Mr. Birch placed the probable output of the entire Bering river coal district, of which the Cunningham group is a part, at five hundred million tons with a net value of $200,000,000 and a gross value of $900,000,000.

But there was another portion of Mr. Birch's testimony which attracted even more attention than that relating to coal mines. It had reference to his efforts to extend the holdings of the Alaska Coal and Copper company in the Bonanza group of copper mines before it was acquired by the Guggenheim-Morgan syndicate. Responding to questions from Senator Frazier Mr. Birch said some of the land now embraced in that group had been located by himself through the use of his own name and the name of other stockholders of the company.

Denies They Were "Dummies."

"Did the company furnish the money to pay for the claims?" asked Mr. Frazier.

Mr. Birch responded that it had done so and mentioned some of the stockholders whose names had been so used.

"They were mere dummies, were they not?" asked the Tennessee senator.

"No, indeed, responded the witness, "they were interested in the property. I located a claim myself."

"Was there an understanding with the company that these claims should be turned over?" Mr. Frazier asked.

"There was no such understanding," was the reply. "I was there as manager, and I went ahead and made the locations to protect the company."

Asked if he had received any compensation for this service, Mr. Birch replied that he had not except in so far as he had received pay for his general work for the company.

"The land was desirable and the

ADVISES YOUNG WOMEN TO MOVE TO COLORADO

Foolish for Suffragettes to Remain in District of Columbia, Says President Taft.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Taft today addressed an immense audience of young women at the George Washington memorial meeting and told them it was foolish for women to want to vote in the District of Columbia.

Referring to the suffragettes the president said.

"I know there are some who live in this city and think in some way or other it has a local quality; that they, being free born American citizens, ought to have an opportunity to vote. I don't sympathize with that feeling at all. If they want to vote they ought to move over to Maryland or Colorado or to some other good place.

"They ought to understand that by living in Washington they are enjoying a privilege which is furnished to them at the expense of the entire nation and that they are living in the capital city, which is under the care, control and direction of all the people of the United States through their representative in the House and that subservient body, the Senate of the United States."

President Taft tonight attended a banquet of the local Yale alumni and spoke on "The Spirit of Yale," which he declared was better than in the days when he was a student.

HOYT CORROBORATES TESTIMONY GIVEN BY GLAVIS

He Certifies to Good Character of Ballinger's Accuser and Confirms His Statements.

PINCHOT TO BE CALLED

"Prosecution" Will Close After Giving Former Forester Opportunity to Be Heard.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The case for the prosecution in the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry has practically been closed. When the committee adjourned today until Monday Mr. Brandeis stated there was some corroborative evidence yet to be produced and that Gifford Pinchot probably would want to make a statement before he could announce his case was ended. Mr. Pinchot was to have taken the stand this afternoon, but he could not be found during the luncheon recess.

The day's proceedings began with the unexpected announcement that the cross-examination of Louis R. Glavis was ended. Henry M. Hoyt, attorney general for Porto Rico, was called to the stand to corroborate that portion of Glavis' testimony in which he told of seeking the advice of Mr. Hoyt in Washington in May, 1909, after First Assistant Secretary of the Interior Pierce had rendered an opinion, which Glavis thought would permit the Cunningham claims in Alaska to patent.

Mr. Hoyt told of how deeply worried Glavis seemed to be at this time and said that before going to Attorney General Wickersham he and Glavis had discussed the advisability of taking the matter up directly with the President. Mr. Hoyt also testified to the good character of Glavis, saying he had known him for a number of years and he had told the attorney general that Glavis was an honorable, upright young man.

Ballinger's Name Omitted.

The only other phase of the case to which Mr. Hoyt directly testified was to do with the Wilson coal land cases in which he acted as special attorney for the United States. Glavis testified he had heard that the name of R. A. Ballinger, an attorney for some of the Wilson claimants, had been left out of the court record by stipulation of counsel. Mr. Hoyt said it was at his personal suggestion, and without the knowledge of Mr. Ballinger, that the stipulation had been entered into. As a matter of fact, however, Mr. Ballinger's name did appear fifteen or twenty times in the testimony given.

Mr. Hoyt said a search had been made for the alleged escrow agreement which Mr. Ballinger is said by Glavis to have drawn up, and which, according to Glavis, constituted a criminal act, but that it could not be found, and the only evidence as to its existence was an informal statement by one of the witnesses who at the trial denied the existence of such an agreement.

The remainder of the day was taken up with the introduction of documentary evidence by Mr. Brandeis.

He also read from a statement by H. H. Schwartz, chief of the field service, that it was at Mr. Ballinger's direction in January, 1908, that the Cunningham claims were ordered to be clearlisted for patent. This order was withdrawn after Glavis had been notified and had protested.

Glavis' Services Valuable.

Hoyt was examined by Attorney Brandeis. In answer to questions Hoyt said he was district attorney at Nome, Alaska, in 1904-07, and later special attorney for the department of justice, which position he held until made attorney general of Porto Rico.

Speaking of Glavis' work Hoyt said his services were of the highest order. He knew him to be an able and thorough and his labors were intelligently performed.

Mr. Hoyt next cited the circumstances leading up to his visit to the attorney general at the request of Mr. Glavis to protest against the interpretation which Assistant Secretary Pierce had placed upon the law of May 28, 1908, in regard to the Alaska coal lands. He said Glavis complained to him of Pierce's de-

APPOINTMENT OPPOSED

Many New York Republicans Object to Senator Root's Choice of Successor to Clarkson.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Many New York Republicans are up in arms against the reported intention of President Taft to appoint Frederick H. Bugher, present acting police commissioner of New York city and a Democrat, to the office of surveyor of the port of New York to succeed James S. Clarkson, whose term will expire in a short time.

It is understood for some time Senator Root has been trying to persuade the President to place Mr. Bugher, who is a nephew of John R. McLean and Admiral Dewey's wife, in the office of surveyor.

TO DRAIN SWAMPY LANDS OF FLORIDA

WILL MEAN RECLAMATION OF VALUABLE SOIL.

H. Sewell, Here for Health, Says Lumber Interests Have Withdrawn Their Opposition.

H. Sewell, a representative of the Florida Everglades Land company, which is financed by local men, who is in Colorado Springs, announced yesterday tha all of the differences which have delayed the work of draining the Everglades in the past have been adjusted and he looks to see the entire area of untillable land reclaimed within a year. Mr. Sewell, whose home is Fort Myers, Florida, and who is thoroughly familiar with the situation in the Everglades, is making a visit here for the benefit of his health. He is staying at the Antlers hotel. He said yesterday:

"The timber interests that have long resisted the tax of 5 cents per acre on their lands toward the draining of the Everglades have withdrawn their opposition. They have agreed to pay all back taxes and avails, enough to dig 200 miles of canals. With their change of attitude the other interests who have fought the project have turned and are also giving it their support and four large dredges, three from the eastern coast and one from the western, are soon to be set to work near Lake Okeechobee, which is the headwaters and the draining of which will mean the reclamation of a great deal of valuable land.

Land Extremely Rich.

"In my mind there is no richer land in the United States than in the Everglades. In many places the soil is 20 feet deep and when drained this land will be ideal for many purposes.

"The recent change in attitude of the timber interests has come about within the last few days. I look to see the work of draining the Everglades completed within about one year.

In order to drain the Everglades a tax levy of 5 cents per acre was imposed upon land owners in drainage areas that were designated. Owners of land bordering on the swampy portions of the state were compelled to pay the tax toward the cost of the digging of the canals by which the land is to be drained.

Mr. Sewell is an extensive banana raiser in Florida. He said yesterday that that part of the country is ideal for raising many kinds of fruit and vegetables unprofitable elsewhere on account of early frosts. He says that bananas, which require the very richest of soil and cannot be raised where there is ever any frost, are being successfully grown in Florida.

WHITNEY HUNTING FOR A GONDSMAN

DENVER, Feb. 19.—Although Alex. E. J. Whitney, deposed state boiler inspector, was unable to get bond men in the sum of $1,000 tonight, he was not placed in jail, but, instead, was committed to the care of a constable until tomorrow morning, when efforts to secure bail will be resumed. Whitney is charged with larceny as bailee, in refusing to surrender the books of his office to the governor.

MRS. V. H. METCALF IS IN COLORADO SPRINGS

Wife of Former Secretary of Navy at Acacia Husband Expected Soon.

Mrs. Victor H. Metcalf, wife of the former secretary of the navy, accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Metcalf, are in Colorado Springs. They have taken apartments at the Acacia hotel, and Mrs. Metcalf said last night that they will probably make an extended visit here, as they hope that Mr. Metcalf, who has been in ill health for some time, may be benefited by the Colorado climate.

The party left their home in Oakland, Cal., in company with Victor H. Metcalf, from whom they separated in Ogden, having stopped there for a short time while he went on to the east on a business trip. Mrs. Metcalf said last night that she expects to be joined here by Mr. Metcalf within a week or ten days. He will spend a few days in Colorado Springs while on his way home to Oakland, where he is again engaged in the practice of law.

Mr. Metcalf was for about five years a member of the cabinet of former President Roosevelt. During President Roosevelt's first term or while he filled the unexpired term of President McKinley Mr. Metcalf, who was one of the most prominent men of the west, was made secretary of the department of commerce and labor. Soon after Roosevelt's re-election Mr. Metcalf was appointed secretary of the navy, from which office he resigned a year ago last December. He was also congressman from the Third California district from 1898 to 1905.

BALLINGER CRITICISED IN HOUSE DISCUSSION

His Proposition to Abolish Indian Service Warehouses Meets With Strong Opposition.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The proposition of the House committee on Indian affairs to abolish Indian service warehouses and have purchasing agents buy Indian supplies in the open market threw the House into a hot discussion this afternoon. Advocates of the change, finding themselves defeated, forced adjournment until Monday.

The warehouses are located in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha and San Francisco. Secretary Ballinger recommended they be discontinued and that $38,000 rents be saved. The committee insisted supplies could be purchased cheaper in the open market and as needed.

Representative Fitzgerald, of New York, opposed the new plan on the ground that it would lead to fraud and graft. He asserted the recommendation in favor of the change made by Secretary Ballinger should have little weight because of the cloud under which the secretary and his department rested.

ONE KILLED AND MANY HURT IN THEATER FIRE

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 19.—Five hundred persons attending a theater at Patton, near Johnstown, tonight were precipitated into the bar of the building, when the floor collapsed, and one person was killed. The fire fell as the audience was rushing out after fire was discovered. Hardly a person in the building escaped without injury.

4 NEGROES ADMIT FIRING INTO MOB

SITUATION IN CAIRO AGAIN BECOMES ACUTE.

White Citizens Aroused by Testimony at Coroner's Inquest.—300 Militiamen Patrolling Streets.

CAIRO, Ill., Feb. 19.—Statements by four negro special deputy sheriffs today at the coroner's investigation of the killing of Alexander Halliday, that they fired several shots each into the mob that was demanding admission to the county jail and court house Thursday night, has renewed the antinegro agitation and the situation here tonight is acute. Three hundred militiamen began patrolling the streets at dusk in anticipation of trouble. The town is practically under martial law.

The coroner's inquest resolved itself into more of a grand jury quiz than the usual formal proceedings before a coroner. The jurymen, mostly business men, could hardly restrain themselves when the negroes were on the stand. Questions were showered on the witnesses in such rapidity by the jurymen that the negroes quickly became confused as well as alarmed.

The jurymen tried in vain to learn which one of the negroes fired the steel-jacketed bullet that killed Halliday. None of them would admit having used a Swiss rifle, with which it is supposed Halliday was killed.

The negroes who participated in the firing on the mob are said to be marked men now that their names have become public.

The killing of one white man and the wounding of several others at the hands of negroes has brought out protests from even the conservative element.

Sheriff Nellis testified at the inquest that he used negroes because he could not find his regular deputies, or the local militia company officers or white men who would answer his call for help.

Tears ran down the sheriff's cheeks as he told of his desperate efforts to find men to assist him in protecting his prisoners. He declared that the local militia company was notified before 10 o'clock Thursday night to report to him immediately to protect the jail. The company did not put in an appearance until six hours later.

Nellis said he obeyed the orders of Governor Deneen in leaving Halliday's body in the snow in front of the court house for three hours before permitting it to be removed. He also insisted that some one in the mob fired the first shot which whizzed by his head and said his men, mistaking the shot for his signal, fired into the air and then into the crowd. This statement was contradicted by George Jackson, a negro, who insisted that the sheriff fired the first shot.

George Jackson, Charles Hudson, Henry Douglas and T. A. Hurd, the negro deputies, admitted firing into the mob. The witnesses said the mob leaders wore gunny sacks over their heads with holes cut for eyes.

Mrs. Rosa Malone, whose pocketbook was snatched by John Platt the negro the mob was after Thursday, had a second encounter with a negro today. She lost a diamond brooch, and when she heard that a negro had found it she went to his home. She recovered the jewelry, but the man is held as he did not intend to steal it. Drawing a revolver from her muff, she placed it against his stomach and said:

"You knew it was mine when you

ROOSEVELT DESCRIBED AS BRONZED, LEAN AND BEARDED

Comes Out of Jungle "Strong and Fit to Slay a Dozen Trusts Before Breakfast."

NOW HUNTING AT RAGAF

In a Week Will Begin Preparing Lectures He Is to Deliver in European Capitals.

[Special to The Gazette and Daily Telegraph.]

GONDOKORO, Sunday, Feb. 13.—Via Uganda Railway to Nairobi, Feb. 19.—Colonel Roosevelt, emerging from the African jungle, is scarcely recognizable to him. When I went to him at Nairobi last May he was stout, sunburned, of course, but he looked exactly like the historical illustration.

When I welcomed him at Gondokoro yesterday, I saw a pioneer standing with a long, heavy beard.

All of the party are in fine health and scarcely recognizable. Even Kermit has a downy growth all over his cheeks and looks like the pictures of the Christus in the Oberammergau Passion play.

Colonel Roosevelt wore the same Khaki suit which he wore at Nairobi and it showed many evidences of this year's African outing.

But the colonel looked younger than ever, walked with a long, swinging stride and seemed strong and fit to slay a dozen trusts before breakfast.

Roosevelt's Itinerary.

Colonel Roosevelt decided today that he will stay a week in and about Ragaf and then begin his work of preparing the lectures which he is to deliver in Paris, Berlin, Christiania and Oxford.

Colonel Roosevelt also decided today that his itinerary after leaving Khartoum will include a visit to Memphis, then Cairo, Italy, Budapest, Vienna, Paris, Brussels, Holland, Christiana, Berlin and London.

Judging from the contents of his correspondence, preparation have been made for him to meet every leading statesman of Europe and to afford him the opportunity to familiar himself with the affairs of the world at first hand.

Colonel Roosevelt's appearance at Gondokoro was as picturesque and spectacular as though it had been arranged by the stage manager of a Broadway theater.

It was early morning and in the distance the note of a bugle breaking the absolute silence of the Soudan was the first intimation of the caravan's approach. Then was seen a long, thin train of porters carrying tents, trunks, etc.

The heads of the bearers were scarcely discernible as they came winding snakelike in and out of the luxuriant woods which cover the hills and valleys encompassing Gondokoro.

American Flag at Front.

The caravan was headed with a drum and a bugle corps belonging to the native chief, Kiriba, who personally led the procession. Then came the huge stars and stripes that has been borne with the expedition since its start. Now very much faded and very badly tattered, it was the American flag all right and was greeted with an American cheer.

The caravan marched through the only street of the town, the porters shouting their ceaseless chants, the bugles blaring and the drum thrumming like mad. The fearful din was kept up until the banks of the Nile were reached, where the Roosevelt party boarded the special steamer Rodjafu, which by the way grounded on a sand bank when the start was made for Ragaf, but got clear after an hour's delay.

Mr. Roosevelt, Kermit and Cunninghame will try to secure a mixing specimen of antelope while hunting at Ragaf.

All the members of the Smithsonian scientific expedition are in good health.

SHIP SUBSIDY IN DANGER

Indications Are That the Bill Will Not Be Brought to a Vote in the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The administration ship subsidy bill may never be brought to a vote in the House, but it will be allowed to die a quiet and peaceful death. After being reported out of committee some days ago with much haste as to subject its proponents to the charge of "railroading," the bill now lying in the House, so much criticism has been aroused in various parts of the country it is stated, that members are now hoping the bill will not be brought to a vote. A prominent member of the House organization recently said that there [illegible] to be passed by [illegible] of the administration measures just to have it look like work.

RIOTING BEGINS WHEN PHILADELPHIA CAR MEN QUIT WORK

Strike Order Follows Discharge of 200 Employes by the Rapid Transit Co.

SEVERAL CARS BURNED

Threatening Crowds Dispersed by Turning Water on Them Through Fire Hose.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—Co[illegible]ing when least expected, a strike was declared against the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company by the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employes this evening and tonight the police and firemen were busy handling turbulent crowds.

Several cars were burned, a score of cars were attacked, causing their crews to abandon them, and numerous arrests were made. Except in the central part of the city street car service was [illegible] at a standstill. Cars running through the central sections were heavily protected.

Great crowds collected in the vicinity of the burned cars and for a time it was feared a riot would follow. Firemen, however, [illegible] and the mob quickly dispersed. Many persons were injured by [illegible] but no one [illegible].

The strike is the second inaugurated by the trolley men within a year. The men asked an increase in wages and wanted the company to recognize no other union but the Amalgamated Association exclusively.

The break in the negotiations came on Thursday, and last night and today about 200 men were dismissed "for the good of the service."

This aroused the indignation of the men and they began turning in their cars about 1 o'clock. The news of the deserting quickly reached union headquarters with the result that a strike order was instantly issued.

The greatest difficulty was experienced from 5 to 7 o'clock when thousands of people found it impossible to get a foothold on the cars and were compelled to walk. Those who refused to ride on cars during attacks.

The police and fire departments anticipating a strike, had been on a "war footing" for a month and were ready for business when the trouble came today. The moment the fact that a strike had been called reached city hall, mounted police were assembled in the courtyard and a body of police and firemen were detailed to each of the 19 barns in the city. Policemen and firemen were also put on the cars to protect men who desired to remain at work.

20 SEAMEN DROWNED.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 19.—The [illegible] ship F. S. Clemps, with her crew of 20 men, was lost in a gale off Dunmanus bay. The [illegible] Some of the bodies have been recovered.

LOUISIANA LAW NAPOLEON CODE

DIFFERS FROM SYSTEM OF ALL OTHER STATES.

Interests of Women and Minor Heirs Jealously Guarded—Curious Instances Freak Legislation.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Louisiana is the only state in the Union which has a system of law exclusively its own. In all the other states the jurisprudence is based upon the common law, which is their equal heritage from the English founders of the republic. The civil law, which prevails in Louisiana, is based upon the Code Napoleon, and that in turn rests upon the old Roman civil law. As both the common and the civil law have the same object—the safeguarding of individual right and liberty—there is not at the bottom so much difference between the two systems as might seem at first glance. The divergences are largely matters of procedure of the methods by which suits may be instituted and conducted. For example, in the United States courts, and in the courts of practically all the other states, there is a law side and an equity side, and the two may not be confounded. In the Louisiana courts there is no equity side, but the law and the equity may be passed upon in the same proceeding by the same judge.

The Louisiana law diverges most widely from the common law in all that relates to the family. In the common law the emphasis falls upon the man as an individual; in the Louisiana code, as in the French law, he is viewed essentially as a member of the family. Hence, in Louisiana there exists the curious statutes by which the right of a testator to dispose of his property is restricted to certain fixed proportions. Under these ordinances a man dying without children, but leaving a father or a mother, or both, must leave one-quarter of his estate to them. If at his death, he leaves children, the parents are eliminated as forced heirs and the children take their place; in which case, if the testator have only one child, he must devise to that child at least one-third of his estate; if he have two children, he must leave them at least one-half; while if he have three or more, he can not give them in his will less than two-thirds of his property.

Protection of Women.

Under the Louisiana law a minor marrying without the consent of his parents may be disinherited. Chattel mortgage, which is a matter of considerable prominence in the common law, is unknown in Louisiana. Prior to 1908, when the state legislature amended the code, women could not legally be witnesses to a will. In general, the Louisiana Code, in all its provisions respecting women, is remarkably solicitous to protect them from their own weakness. For example, there are stringent prohibitions against a married woman borrowing money with which to pay her husband's debts. A married woman may not, in fact, borrow money or alienate her property at all except with the consent of her husband or a judge, or, in some instances, with the approval of both.

One of the most benevolent provisions of the law is that which determines the ownership of the earnings of a married couple. The code proceeds on the theory that in the great majority of cases the husband is the wage-earner of the partnership, but assumes that the wife's activities, though confined within the walls of her home, are of equal value and importance. Therefore, it is held that one-half of all the money which he may earn shall go to his helpmate. However, property inherited or acquired by either member of this partnership—called technically the "community"—is not subject to this division, but becomes the exclusive possession of its recipient.

Of course, the law does not give either wife or husband any right to property which one or the other of them may have acquired prior to marriage, and the community is dissolved by death. Moreover, at the time of marriage, the parties may make a contract whereby there shall be no community between them, but each retain the exclusive ownership of their earnings. In the latter event, the contract must be recorded in the mortgage office, which it may be viewed by third parties, who might otherwise suffer from their ignorance of the status of the couple.

Guards Interests of Heirs.

The Louisiana law is, moreover, exceptionally careful of the interests of minor heirs. For instance, it provides for what is known as the "family meeting." This is a council appointed by the court from among the relatives or near friends of the minor, which exercises a sort of general supervision over his concerns, and to which the executor must report, and without the authorization of which the executor can take no step vitally affecting the administration of the estate.

Regarding the nature of wills, the Louisiana code is singularly explicit, and for the most part its provisions exhibit an amazing wisdom and foresight. One form of will which is peculiar to Louisiana is the "olographic will," regarded by some of the ablest lawyers in the state as the most satisfactory form of testamentary disposition. This is a will "wholly written, dated and signed" by the person making it. Another form of will may be dictated to a notary, in which event it is known as a "testament by public act." The notary is prohibited from offering any suggestion during the preparation of this instrument as to the manner in which the testator shall dispose of his property; and in case he should violate the law in this regard, the will is voided, but the offending official is made responsible to the heirs who shall thereby be deprived of their heritage.

The character of the Louisiana law is most readily understood from an examination of its history. From such a study one may learn, better than in any other way, how diverse are the elements out of which the existing code has been forged, and how deeply ingrained in the mental processes of the people are the ideals of the ancient Roman law. The first laws that were enforced in Louisiana were the Edicts of the Realm of France and the "Customs" of Paris, which were extended to the province of Louisiana by Louis XIV, in 1712. These "Customs" of Paris were compiled in 1510, in somewhat tardy obedience to a decree of Charles VII, directing that the then unwritten traditions which had governed the jurisprudence of the various provinces of his kingdom, should be reduced to writing, for the guidance of his judges. When, some 60 years after the publication of this edict, the "Customs" of Paris were committed to paper, they formed a work of some 16 titles and 362 articles.

Laws of O'Reilly.

In addition to the "Customs," a number of ordinances which had been adopted by the French government from time to time, were applied to Louisiana. Of these the most interesting was the "Black Code," first promulgated in 1685, for the government of slaves. All of these laws remained in force in Louisiana down to 1769, when the province passed into the hands of Spain. In that year Don Alejandro O'Reilly, the new Spanish governor, made extensive changes not only in the law, but in the entire machinary of government. He abolished the superior council, which had been the legislative body of the province since 1712, and substituted the Cabildo, a somewhat similar organization, with rather extensive judicial powers.

O'Reilly also caused a series of new laws to be prepared, chiefly relating to the institution of suits and the method of procedure before the courts in civil and criminal actions. These are taken from the Laws of Castile and the Laws of the Indies, which, in their turn, were based upon the old Spanish codes, dating back to the seventh century, upon the Partidas of Alfonso the Wise, and upon the "Recopulaciones" of the sixteenth century. O'Reilly intended this compilation to serve for the instruction of his judges only until they had acquired some familiarity with the Spanish law, which was, of course, put into effect as soon as practicable. As the Spanish law was based, like the French, upon the old Roman Civil Code, the two are similar, especially with regard to matrimonial rights, testaments, successions, etc., and the transition from the one to the other worked comparatively little hardship to the population of Louisiana.

Louisiana is not free from freak legislation. It has a law fixing the size of carts in which firewood may be vended in New Orleans. Another forbids anyone from rising from his seat during the performance at a theater. Still another makes it a serious offense to entice away from his employer any hired man or apprentice. There is an anti-high hat law which is vigorously enforced at all the theaters, and the Jim-Crow street-car law is much in evidence in New Orleans. This last cited statute provides that every car shall have the rear portion screened off for the use of colored passengers; but as no special sort of screen was provided for in the act, the railroads supply one 18 inches long by four or five inches high, which, hooked on the back of one of the seats, unquestionably complies with the letter of the law, though plainly violating the spirit of it.

COLUSA HAS RICH ORE.

MONTEZUMA, Colo., Feb. 19.—The Colusa Mining & Milling company, which owns a large acreage at the head of the Tarryall placer diggings, near the line between Park and Summit counties, has, it is said, opened up a body of high grade ore in the lower tunnel, which was started last fall. The principal stockholders in this company are Charles W. Bolen of Columbus, Ohio; Col. James H. Myers, who is president of the company, and George W. Lechner, a Colorado pioneer, who is the secretary and treasurer.

PREDICTS CATHOLIC VICTORY IN FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The diocesan congress, which has been occupied with the public school question, concluded its deliberations today with the adoption of a resolution affirming unyielding attachment to the church, "the benefactress of the people," and pledging the employment of every means to protect the faith of the children and liberty in teaching. Mgr. Amitete, archbishop of Paris, declared that the Catholics would be victorious if they united in the coming elections.

CORNERS CONCEDED TO BE A DETRIMENT

OPPOSED BY HEAD OF THE CHICAGO BOARD.

President White a Witness at Hearing on Antioption Bills Before House Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Disapproval of "corners," and possibly censorship of market letters, figured in today's hearing of the opposition to the antioption bills before the House committee on agriculture.

The ethics of corners and of market letters sent broadcast by members of exchanges was discussed by President White of the Chicago board of trade. He disapproved of corners as "wrong, detrimental to the exchange and disturbing to business." While the amount of business done where there was a corner was very small, compared to the total amount of business on the board a corner, he said, attracted more attention than the regular operations.

"Men who have been successful in corners," he said, "can be counted on the fingers of two hands. Letter lost $10,000,000." Mr. White said the Chicago board of trade recently considered a proposed amendment to its rulings designed to prevent corners and penalizing any defaulting in the fulfillment of his obligations to deliver. The change was voted down on the contention that it might work so as to impair the safety of contracts.

"I think," he added, "that sentiment is now getting around to the point where something along that line will soon be adopted."

FIRST WESTERN WOMAN TO FLY IN AEROPLANE

MRS. RICHARD FERRIS AND LOUIS PAULHAN.
From a Specially Posed photograph. Taken Just After the Trip.

"I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for the experience, but it is a little scarey," said Mrs. Richard Ferris, wife of the manager of the aviation meet at Los Angeles, as she alighted from the aeroplane of Louis Paulhan. She had just completed a successful trip with the famous aviator. Mrs. Ferris is the first western woman who ever enjoyed the novel sensation of flying in an aeroplane.

DOGS IN EVENING CLOTHES

From the Omaha Bee.

The New York smart set is dog crazy—women are not content with keeping one dog, but maintain dogs of varying colors, taking out that which harmonizes with the furs and fabrics which the lady happens to be wearing. The craze has resulted in the institution of a dog tailor, who offers a selection of dog clothing as extensive as that of their mistress or masters.

The latest dog fashions include jackets varying from loud Donegal tweeds, made Norfolk fashion to velvet smoking coats and black evening dress. These are fitted with tiny handkerchiefs and a wallet hanging from a belt, containing the dog's cards. The dog's boots are made of patent leather and India rubber laced with ribbon. A pair of goggles and white collars encircled with a tie complete the canine costume.

The dog's kennels are made of plaited rushes in the form of a house, lined with blue satin. Their personal needs are attended to by special maids, who are obliged to learn their mistresses' gown plans so that the right doggie may be dressed appropriately for the daily "carry"—society refusing to permit the doggie to walk. In spite all this, yearning, the mortality among pet dogs in Gotham

THE LAW AND THE LADY

From the Newark News.

Former Judge Beasley, one of the counsel of the Public Service Railway company, in summing up a case before the jury the other day, told the following story to show the unreasonableness of a woman:

"Pat Finnigan had been summoned to jury duty. Coming down stairs one morning, dressed in his Sunday clothes, his wife looked at him and said:

"'Where are you going, Pat?'

"He retplied: 'I'm going to court.'

"'Humph!' said the wife, and Pat stalked out. Next morning Pat came down stairs all shaven and shorn, with the same suit of clothes on.

"'And where are ye going today?' said the wife.

"'Sure, I'm going to court.'

"'Ye are, are ye?'

"Pat went out and slammed the door. The third morning Pat came in and sat down to the breakfast table with the same suit of clothes on, and greeted his wife, who said:

"'And where are ye going this morning, Pat?'

"'I'm going to court.'

"The wife laid her hands upon a rolling pin, stood before the door and said:

"'You're going to court, are you?'

"'No, ye're not. If there's any thing to be done it will be done upstairs and I'm off to court.'

SAVE NINE WITH LIFE NETS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Nine persons were saved from death by fire today by jumping into life nets from a burning tenement in Newark, N. J. Smoke and flame [illegible] low made it impossible for the tenants to escape from the upper floor. Firemen quickly spread their life nets and the nine men, women and children caught by the flames jumped, one by one, to safety. None was injured. One girl, rendered unconscious by smoke, was rescued by firemen from a smoke-filled room.

EVIDENCE OF POISONING GIVEN BY SCIENTISTS

Startling Facts Said to Be in Story of Chemistry Expert in Case of Margaret Swope.

TARRYTOWN, Feb. 19. The [illegible] in far greater quantities than is usually found in the stomach and liver of Chrisman Swope and in the matter [illegible] the stomach of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Swope, according to a special dispatch received here from [illegible] today.

This information was given out by an employee in the Ruch medical college laboratory. It was there that Dr. Walter S. Haines and Dr. Ludwig Hektoen and Dr. Victor Vaughan worked on the Swope mystery. In the absence of these men, who are here testifying before a grand jury that is investigating the case, the assistant revealed the story of the findings of the scientists in the laboratory on which no official report has been made. It was in this way that it became known that the stomach and liver of Thomas H. Swope was examined and it was determined that there was poison in his system.

None of the examinations has yet been finished. That is, an absolute quantitative analysis has not yet been made. The scientists, however, are convinced that neither Thomas Honor Chrisman Swope would have died when they did had it not been for strychnine.

Strychnine is more apparent in the viscera of Chrisman Swope than in that of Thomas H. Swope. When the examination of Thomas H. Swope's stomach was [illegible] poison was found, but in such minute particles that an examination of the liver was necessary to determine whether enough strychnine had been given to cause death.

In neither the case of Miss Margaret nor of Chrisman Swope could the strychnine have been present as a result of hypodermic injections for medicinal purposes. Even if the strychnine had been given repeatedly, enough of the poison could not have been placed in circulation by that method to have caused the deposits found in the ejecta of Miss Margaret Swope and the stomach and liver of Chrisman Swope, it is said.

Although the greatest secrecy is being maintained regarding the testimony of the physicians before the grand jury, it is known that the story of the laboratory assistant is the same as that told by the physicians today before the grand jury.

ALLDS CHARGES MAY GO TO GRAND JURY

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 19.—District Attorney Rollin B. Sanford today refused to discuss the report that he would bring the charges made in the Allds inquiry to the attention of the Albany county grand jury. It is understood that he will do so, however.

EMBEZZLER ENDS LIFE

John W. Johnson, Ex-Cashier, Speculator, and Convict, Drowns Himself in Wabash.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Feb. 19.—The body of John F. Johnson, former president of the State National bank of [illegible], was found floating in the Wabash river today. Johnson served six years in prison following his confession that he had embezzled $650,000 of the bank's funds. Recently he had been a [illegible] broker. It is presumed no [illegible] funds.

The [illegible] Johnson lost heavily in wheat and sold his home to meet his debts. He had since been dejected.

Johnson always was fascinated by the fluctuations of the wheat market. At the time of his trial, in 1897, for embezzlement, he testified that if the bank examiner had given him one day more of grace he could have made a great fortune in wheat.

Wheat had been going down steadily. Johnson had bought a lot of it and he used the bank's money to keep his margin covered. The day following that upon which the bank examiner discovered the deficit, wheat went soaring. But it was too late for Johnson.

Johnson succeeded his father in the presidency of the State bank. He said that his father left a shortage of $200,000 and he gambled in the hope of recouping this deficit. He was 54 years old.

found it, didn't you? Say you did quick or I'll shoot."

The negro then said he did recognize it.

Surrounded by a hundred infantrymen, 12 convicted prisoners who were sentenced yesterday by Judge William Butler to varying terms in the Chester prison, were hurried out of town to prison today. Among the prisoners was John Pratt, the negro purse snatcher, whose arrest led to the attack on the jail Thursday night.

law was complied with in all our proceedings," he said.

Value of Cunningham Group.

Testifying concerning the Guggenheim-Morgan options on the Cunningham mines, Mr. Birch said it covered only a half interest, the Cunningham people retaining the remainder. The syndicate had agreed, he said, to pay $250,000 and to furnish transportation. The company was to be capitalized for $5,000,000. He estimated it would cost $1.75 per ton to mine the coal and was of opinion that it could be marketed at a profit of fifty cents per ton.

Some of the veins in the Cunningham group were, he said, ten or twelve feet wide, but still were not so large as the veins in some of the other mines in the district. He denied emphatically that the syndicate had used any influence to have the patent to the mines issued.

"Interested? Of course we are," he said, "but we had not tried to influence the government."

No Lobbyists Employed.

Mr. Birch denied that the syndicate had ever employed a lobbyist to represent it in Washington and he made the denial specific as to Gov. Hogatt, Delegate Wickersham and Major Richardson, of the army, who has been stationed in the territory many years in charge of road work. He said that after he left the bench and before he was elected to Congress Judge Wickersham had made application to be employed as attorney by the syndicate, but that his application had not been favorably acted upon.

Mr. Wickersham, who was present, read his letter, requesting employment. In it he stated merely that having been on the bench he was in position to represent the company if his services were desired. He stated he had read the letter for the purpose of making it plain he had not tried to hold up the combination.

Delegate Wickersham had demanded the right to cross-examine Mr. Birch, but the committee ruled that he could ask his questions only through the committee itself. After the explanation concerning his application for employment as counsel he did not press his request.

Mother—You are not holding baby right. He wouldn't cry if you were.

Father—That's where you are off. I just held him head downward for five minutes and he yelled all the louder.

BALLINGER CHANGES PLAN

Two Hundred Men and Women in Line at Land Office Three Days Are Disappointed.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19. More than two hundred men and women who have been waiting in line since Wednesday midnight to file on the 40-acre farms at Yuma which will be thrown open March 1 learned tonight that they had spent days and nights in the street fronting the government land office for nothing.

Secretary Ballinger of the interior department wired the land office officials here today that he had changed the plan for giving away the government land.

The secretary ordered the land office to engage a large hall and there distribute the 172 farms to those who manage to get in first between the hours of 8 and 9 on the morning of March 1. Much dissatisfaction was expressed among the prospective settlers in line when Receiver Robinson announced the secretary's decision. The only ones pleased were those who had offered as much as $1,000 for preferred place in line and were refused.

LEADS IN FIGHT

Dr. C. B. Wilcox, Formerly of This City, Active in Antisaloon Campaign in Denver.

Dr. C. B. Wilcox, former pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city and Bonfoy pastor of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church in Denver, is one of the leaders in the fight in Denver, is one of the speakers in the campaign according to advices received here. He was one of the principal speakers at the annual convention of the Christian Endeavor societies in this city last Friday night, and those organizations decided to give all the help possible in the struggle to make Denver an absolutely "dry" territory. The next election in Denver at which time it is hoped to have the city voted dry occurs in May, and Dr. Wilcox is the head of the Denver Ministerial Union. A special committee appointed ... work toward that end.

"The saloon has nothing ... about it," says Dr. Wilcox, "it is absolutely immoral. Behind the swinging doors of every such place in the land there is only immorality and corruption. The saloon is a school of vice and iniquity. It is destined in the near future to take its place with the whipping post and the beheading block.

"You are going to have a chance to vote against it in May. We want you to array yourself against it, and get others to array themselves against it. We can put it when the law will enforce the restriction of the sale of liquor."

BOX HOLDERS NOTIFIED

As Result Many Have Made Necessary Changes Incident to Removal of Postoffice.

As the result of notices placed in the boxes at the postoffice, requesting the holder of the boxes to call and arrange for others at the new federal building into which the postoffice will move either March 5 or 12 many the transfers have been made. There are still a large number, however, to be attended to.

There is much dissatisfaction on the part of some over the fact that there are no combination boxes at the new building while others are glad to have key boxes instead. The arrangement of the boxes at the new postoffice differs considerably from the arrangement in the present building so that changes in the numbers of at least 500 boxes will be necessary. Many of the box holders, however, will be able to retain the same numbers as they now have.

The civil service examination for fireman-watchman at the new building was held yesterday at the postoffice. Five applicants took the test. Two appointments will be made.

MISSOURI MEN TO OPERATE PLACER

Have Acquired 238 Acres of Trinchera Estate. Begin May 1 at Latest.

Steps are under way to operate a placer mine on the Trinchera estate in Costilla county, near the town of Placer, which was largely owned by Dr. W. A. Bell, formerly of this city, by a number of Missouri capitalists. The contracts for the work, the election of officers and directors and other business pertaining to the work are being settled in Denver.

The work will be done by the Colorado Gold Dredging company, on 238 acres of the Trinchera estate, recently acquired, and a contract has been let to the Hammond Dredging company of Portland, Ore. for a $90,000 dredge with a capacity of 2,500 yards a day, which it is expected, will be in operation by May 1. The placer gravel runs from 15 to 80 cents a yard, and at a meeting of the directors yesterday it was decided to issue enough treasury stock to realize $65,000 for development purposes.

PROPERTY TRANSFERRED TO HOME CORPORATION

Stratton Axe Men Take Over Rights in Broadmoor for Consideration of $350,000.

The consideration of $350,000, the Intermountain Realty company yesterday transferred to the Myron Stratton Home corporation the property of the Broadmoor land company which the selling company recently purchased. The property transferred included the residence section of Broadmoor, the Broadmoor hotel and casino, all water rights, electric light plant and some ranch lands. The transfer was made it is said, in order to overcome the difficulty of making a satisfactory division of water rights purchased with the land. The Myron Stratton Home corporation can now build the home any place in Broadmoor but it is understood that the trustees in charge of the work will erect the home on the site already selected.

Although no action has been taken toward granting a right-of-way over two lots in Broadmoor belonging to the Stratton estate, in order to complete the Eleventh street road which it is the intention to use in order to avoid grading Jones hill, it is believed the necessary permission will be granted within a few days by the trustees. The road proposition is being fostered by the Colorado Springs Automobile club.

POTTER ADDRESSES THE WOMAN'S CLUB

Talks Along Educational Lines. Committee Appointed to Revise By-laws

Although "Social Functions in the High School" was the title of the excellent address made by Milton C. Potter, superintendent of the public schools of Pueblo, during the general meeting of the Woman's club of Colorado Springs yesterday, he did not strictly confine himself to the subject assigned to him, but gave an eloquent talk on general educational lines. He declared himself in favor of the gymnasium and outdoor inclosed fields, saying, "No amount of scholarship will atone for the lack of physical training which establishes a record for perseverance and endurance. He also said, "Social service is as important as educational service. The necessity for some social expression must be recognized."

In closing, Mr. Potter said: "The social functions of the high school in right environment will make the men and women we desire, the manly men and the womanly women—and what they lack in academic functions has the least significance."

During the preliminary business meeting the chairmen of the departments, Mrs. A. L. Carper, Mrs. W. H. R. Stote and Mrs. G. A. Boyd, also Mrs. W. K. Sinton, Mrs. E. L. Preston and Mrs. A. L. Mowry, were appointed a committee to revise the by-laws of the club.

A communication from the secretary of the Colorado Teachers association referred to the work being undertaken by the association, that of calling attention to the Gove amendment to the constitution of the state which is to be before the people to be voted upon next fall, and requesting co-operation of the club members.

Announcement was made of the meeting of the home and education department, Saturday, February 26, when Miss Lida O. Murray will give a paper on "Other People's Children," and Mrs. A. Boyd one on "Empty Cradles."

At the close of the meeting an informal reception was held for Mr. Potter and the city instructors present, and cake and coffee served. Mrs. F. W. Goddard and Mrs. A. L. Mowry presided at the urns, while Mrs. A. B. Williams, Mrs. Charles T. Ferrig, Mrs. Bessie Hazlett, Mrs. Willis V. Sims and Mrs. Allie Griffith served in colonial costume.

The secret of firm, strong, supple flesh is good, rich, constant flowing, blood. When hollow cheeks appear and hidden pigments make the eyes look like burnt holes in a blanket, the blood is sick and out of tune.

The effect of impure and pure blood is seen at once on the face.

Impurities fill it with poisons, the flesh harbors these poisons, and the lungs cannot eliminate them as they should.

It needs a purifier. Stuart's Calcium Wafers give to the blood through the same channels as food all the strength and stimulus necessary to remove the impurities and to make rich corpuscles which will feed the body or fight its enemies.

Time was when poor blood purifiers had to be used, such as herbs and roots, powdered minerals, etc., but thanks to latter day achievement the Stuart process gives to the system the full rich strength of Calcium Sulphide, the greatest blood purifier known to science.

These little powerful wafers are prepared by one of the most noted expert pharmaceutical chemists in the world and so far as science is concerned no expense has been spared to make them perfect.

They contain Quassia, Golden Seal and Eucalyptus, each a most powerful aid to the blood of man.

Thousands of people use these wafers with religious zeal, and their testimonial evidence is an unfailing source of interest to one who reads it.

Melancholy marks every suffering day, yet one should be armed with knowledge and make up one's mind to try Stuart's Calcium Wafers today. Every druggist carries them, 50c, or send us your name and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

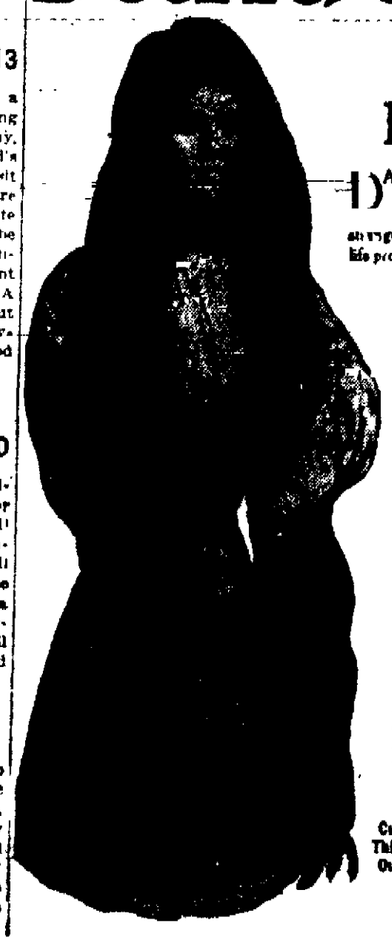
Danderine



Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is the best friend the hair ever had. Its use of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes: "When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another: "I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair any lady could have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

ESPERANTO MEETINGS

Professor Frank H. Loud's section, this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, for one-half hour study of the Bible in Esperanto, at Hastings Memorial chapel, corner Institute and Yampa streets.

Conversational class, Kenneth M. Smith, leader, tomorrow evening from 6 to 7 o'clock, at the Y. M. C. A. building in the Assembly hall.

James W. Stevenson's section, this evening at 7:30 o'clock at 1203 North Tejon street.

Miss Pearl B. McMillan's West side section, Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at her home, 1211 Grant avenue.

Ernest A. Sinton's section, Thursday evening at 7:45 o'clock, in Room 408 DeGraff building, fourth floor.

Miss Pearl B. McMillan's Saturday afternoon class at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. C. Johnson, flat 4, Latonia apartments, corner Nevada and Platte avenues.

A new class for beginners will be started by Miss Pearl McMillan next Thursday evening in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A. building. The number enrolled up to date is 18, and anyone else who wishes to join this class is asked to be present at this meeting, or notify Miss McMillan at 'phone Main 24. The evening most suitable for the majority of the members to meet will be decided on next Thursday evening.

This class is the first result from the lecture of Arthur Baker of Chicago at Perkins hall last Monday evening. It will be remembered that this lecture not only came fully up to the expectation of the local Esperantists in its interest and instructiveness, but was rather a surprise in respect to the size of the audience, the hall intended for the lecture proving quite too small for the crowd which came, so that it was necessary to transfer the speaker and audience to the large auditorium on the lower floor.

One of the most pleasing features of the entertainment, Monday evening, was the singing of two Esperanto songs, in which Miss Pearl B. McMillar took the leading part, accompanied by Miss Lula Gaymann on the piano and Miss Anna Lowber on the violin. Miss Mabel Schofield also rendered a piano solo and was obliged to respond to an encore. In the lecture itself, one of the most noteworthy features was the "Story of the Five Newspaper Men," told in Esperanto by Mr. Baker, and followed with perfect intelligence by the entire audience, many of whom had seldom, if ever, heard Esperanto spoken before.

The annual meeting of the Esperanto society will be held next Saturday evening, February 26, at 7:30 o'clock, in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A. building. Every member of the society is urged to be present at this meeting, as much important business is to come before the meeting, including adoption of the new constitution, election of officers, etc.

Visitors are welcome to attend any of the above meetings.

BIG MILL PLANNED

Woodland Park Mining Company Incorporated—Will Erect Expensive Reduction Plant.

Franklin Beattie, discover of a new process in treating ore, Albert Akers and Mrs. M. J. Stump, all of Woodland Park, have incorporated the Woodland Park Mining company under the laws of Arizona, with a capital stock of $1,000,000. One of the principal objects of the company will be to treat ore from the Woodland Park district under Mr. Beattie's new process, which, he claims, will extract gold, silver, copper, nickel, aluminum, cobalt and other minerals in paying quantities from ores which are practically worthless under the old system of treatment. The fiscal agents for the company in this city will be the Colorado Title and Trust company.

The company's property at present consists of a mining claim, called the "M. J.," and a mill site, four miles north of Woodland Park. It is planned to add to these by building a mill of 100 tons daily capacity at a cost of between $200,000 and $250,000. Later the mill will be enlarged to a capacity which will allow of the treatment of custom ore. Beattie expects to have a part of the mill at least, in operation by the end of May.

Wilbur's Redfern Whalebone Corsets

MISS McCAULEY comes from the designing room of Redfern Corsets.

While discussing fashions with our customers and the corset model necessary to produce correct figures for current fashions, she will explain the supremacy of whalebone as a corset stiffener over all other boning.

You are cordially invited to visit our Corset Department during the stay of Miss McCauley.

THERE has never been a corset or dress stiffener that has equalled in any degree, but one quality—lasting power—whalebone. If the boning substitute had lasting qualities, it lacked resiliency, or it lacked the flatness of whalebone or its lightness—it is conceded by all users of bone for dress purposes, that no bone has all the qualities combined in whalebone. After testing all other boning substitutes for high-grade corsets, we determined to continue staking our reputation on whalebone. We added to our line this year the newest Redfern styles.

A purchase is not expected. The models will be explained and you may be fitted to the model suited to your figure and given the style number, purchasing at your convenience.

DOCTORS ENDORSE Newbro's Herpicide

When a doctor endorses a preparation it means more than an ordinary testimonial. His opinion is always that of the professional man devoted to the welfare of the people.

Dr. J. J. Boyd, Covington, Tenn., says: "I feel it my duty to write this for the benefit of those suffering from dandruff. In the average case a few applications of Newbro's Herpicide will remove all dandruff. It is advisable to continue its use for several weeks."

The words of J. B. Thompson, M. D., No. 2 Burrough Place, Cor. Hollis St., Boston, Mass., are not less enthusiastic: "I can only speak in praise of Newbro's Herpicide. It is all that is claimed and perhaps more. Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp but brightens the hair, gives it life and makes it soft."

Dr. T. A. Moore, Duncan, Ariz., writes of his experience: "My scalp was in places covered by patches of dry, scaly material and the itching was incessant. Since using Herpicide all these evils have disappeared and my hair is soft, smooth and growing. Hair has grown on spots before but thinly covered."

Newbro's Herpicide is the Original remedy to kill the dandruff germ and stop falling hair. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff is allayed almost at once.

Herpicide is for sale at Drug Stores and One Dollar Bottles are guaranteed. Applications may be obtained at the leading Barber Shops. Be sure you get genuine Herpicide. Send 10c in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. 7B., Detroit, Mich.

Death has put an end to the litigation in the district court between Sadtler and Emily H. Lawton, widow of Andrew L. Lawton, former metallurgist at the State School of Mines. A statement has been filed in the district court by Attorney C. G. Clement, representing the plaintiff, setting forth that Sadtler died in Texas, March 29, 1907, and that his interest in the suit for half ownership of some stone quarries, located by Lawton in this county, has lapsed.

County Judge J. E. Little yesterday granted a motion of counsel for Julia Gleason that Justice A. P. Toombs, administrator of the estate of the late Richard Daly, be compelled to produce in court a former will of Daly, leaving his property to Mrs. Gleason.

A quarrel over wages resulted yesterday in the arrest of D. R. Snouffer, proprietor of the West Side livery, on a charge of assault, preferred by Abe Hauss. Snouffer was released by Justice Dunnington under bond in the sum of $100.

Beverly Woods was sentenced yesterday to 60 days at hard labor in the county jail by Juvenile Judge J. E. Little for stealing sacks from the Hagen-Cary Fuel company. James Russell, who was implicated with Woods in the robbery, was discharged, as this was his first offense.

Y. M. C. A. TO RAISE CURREN EXPENSES

About $5,000 Needed for This Year. Forty Men Engaged in Canvass.

At a meeting of the Young Men's Christian association in the Y. M. C. A. building last night, the question of raising the current expense budget for the year 1910 was taken up. Many members of the organization, several of the directors and some who are not members but who are interested, were present. The amount to be raised is $5,000, and the campaign for this money will be begun tomorrow. Forty men will probably be engaged in the canvass.

The total budget for the year will be about $15,000, of which the $5,000 to be raised will defray the current expenses. The remaining $10,000 will come from membership fees and other sources. The directors of the organization have carefully gone into the subject of expenses, and have cut down the figures as low as possible, to the end that the $5,000 asked for is much less than sums raised by subscriptions on previous years.

A review of the organization during the last year shows it to be in excellent condition. The membership on January, 1910 was 100 in excess of the membership upon the same date a year previous. All lines of the institution show a remarkable advancement, and the Bible study classes and men's meetings of the association show a healthy increase in attendance and interest. If the assets of the institution were all called in, there would be a deficit of only $1,200 in last year's account, and this will be taken into consideration in making up the new budget.

Stops Lameness

Much of the chronic lameness in horses is due to neglect.

See that your horse is not allowed to go lame. Keep Sloan's Liniment on hand and apply at the first sign of stiffness. It's wonderfully penetrating—goes right to the spot—relieves the soreness—limbers up the joints and makes the muscles elastic and pliant.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. G. T. Roberts of Rosara Co., R.F.D. No. 1, Box A, writes: "I have used your Liniment on a horse for swinney and effected a thorough cure. I also removed a spavin on a mule. This spavin was as large as a guinea egg. In my estimation the best remedy for lameness and soreness is

Sloan's Liniment

Mr. H. M. Gibbs of Lawrence Kans., R.F.D. No. 3, writes: "Your Liniment is the best that I have ever used. I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one 50c. bottle of Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it around all the time for galls and small swellings and for everything about the stock."

Sloan's Liniment will kill a spavin, curb or splint, reduce wind puffs and swollen joints, and is a sure and speedy remedy for fistula, sweeney, founder and thrush.

sion and said it meant that the fraudulent claims would go to patent.

Glavis was much concerned about the matter, the witness said and he and Glavis had talked it over. He said that he (Hoyt) had suggested going to his friend Henry W. Taft brother of President Taft whom he knew, and have him bring it to the attention of the president. This suggestion was abandoned and Hoyt then went to Attorney General Wickersham.

Consults Wickersham.

Hoyt said he had Attorney General Wickersham that he came to him in order to save the administration from a serious mistake.

Glavis and I felt, said Mr. Hoyt, that the conclusions which Mr. Wickersham would reach would be radically different from Mr. Pierce's decision.

I told the attorney general that I had worked with Glavis and knew him to be an honorable and upright young man and that I would be entirely responsible for him. I also told him Glavis knew he was going an unusual thing in going over the heads of his superiors and that he would let the matter drop if the opinion of the attorney general coincided with that of Mr. Pierce.

Mr. Hoyt said he told Mr. Wickersham he did not think these valuable coal lands would pass out of the hands of the government on the opinion of any less official than the attorney general of the United States, otherwise there would be a big scandal, he thought.

Mr. Wickersham said the witness acknowledged that he would pass upon the matter and that he would take the subject up with Mr. Ballinger. Hoyt said he left the papers he had with Attorney General Wickersham.

Witness related a conversation he had with Glavis in which Glavis had told him Ballinger had suggested Glavis withdraw his report on the investigation as he had decided to turn the matter over to the attorney for an opinion.

The Wilson Case

Mr. Brandeis' questions took the witness back to the matter of the Wilson coal case which Glavis had mentioned in his testimony. Concerning this Hoyt said that when Glavis had brought this case to him and they went over the papers there was found a conveyance to Wilson Allen. It was thought advisable to get a statement from Allen. This was done and it showed that Ballinger had acted as attorney in connection with some claims which were pending. There was an agreement to escrow drawn by Ballinger. When the case came in for trial Ballinger had been made commissioner of the general land office.

I thought, said Hoyt, that it would be well to leave Mr. Ballinger's name out of the record for the reason that if it was in the record the people would attach great significance to it and they might draw the conclusion that Mr. Ballinger was mixed up in some fraudulent deal. By agreement it was omitted and the word "attorney" substituted."

The cross examination of Mr. Hoyt by Lawyer Vertrees developed little of importance. Mr. Hoyt admitted that Ballinger had absolutely nothing to do with the omission of his name from the papers. He did not know anything about it.

Mr. Hoyt was excused without being questioned by any member of the committee and Attorney Brandeis put into the records and read the daily report of Special Agent Love for July, 1907. Love had been out investigating Alaska coal claims. His report showed what he had been doing in the way of collecting evidence.

Papers Taft Never Saw

Attorney Brandeis read a number of papers not presented to President Taft when he passed on the Glavis case. Among these was a letter Glavis wrote to Dennett forwarding the affidavit to Special Agent Jones regarding the attitude of Love toward the coal land investigation. The affidavit showed that Love had announced himself a candidate for U. S. marshal in Alaska and did not wish to be involved in the investigation and that he had declined to sign a report made by Jones unfavorable to the claimants.

He then read a letter from Dennett to Love calling for an explanation of the charges in the affidavit.

In a letter in reply Love declared that he did not advise the 'clear-listing' but that he had raised a question as to the validity of the claims although he had previously made a somewhat favorable report.

Love in the letter to Dennett said that he had called the attention of Mr. Ballinger in Seattle to his suspicions and that Mr. Ballinger expressed the opinion that the contract which the claimants had entered into to convey their claims when patented invalidated them. The information concerning the agreement Love had obtained from Cunningham.

This evidence was introduced to show that Ballinger had full knowledge of the conditions when he directed that they be passed to clear-listing.

Escrow Agreement Missing

An unofficial record in the Wilson coal case was produced and Hoyt was recalled to the stand. In this record he found and read the stipulations in his own handwriting that Ballinger's name as attorney should be omitted. He could not find the place in the record where he thought the escrow agreement drawn by Ballinger was mentioned but he thought it was there.

Mr. Vertrees intimated that there is nothing in the record to show any such agreement had been made. Mr. Hoyt was certain it was contained in a statement made by Wilson Allen but said the stenographer had found difficulty in reading her notes. This escrow agreement was the one which Glavis criticised Ballinger for drafting inasmuch as it involved perjury on the part of the claimants to carry it out.

When the hearing was resumed this afternoon Mr. Brandeis called attention to the fact that nowhere in the report of Attorney General Wickersham had he made any reference to the fact that Mr. Hoyt and Glavis had called upon him in reference to the matter of having him pass upon the law of May 28, 1908, as Mr. Hoyt testified at this morning's session.

He also read from the letter of Mr. Ballinger of September 4, 1909, in which the secretary said that it had all along been his intention to submit the law affecting the claims to the attorney general and that Glavis was in error in assuming such conversation with Mr. Wickersham had any effect upon the matter.

Mr. Brandeis offered in evidence various documents having a bearing upon the case and supporting the statements of Glavis which had not been included in the record before the attorney general and the president when they investigated the case. He also called attention to various documents in the record which tended to confirm Glavis' statements.

At 3:30 o'clock the hearing was adjourned until next Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

TILLMAN SLIGHTLY BETTER

South Carolina Senator Critically Ill but Physicians Give Hope of His Recovery

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The condition of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, of South Carolina, who is critically ill with paralysis and aphasia, was a little more encouraging tonight. While his case continues to be extremely grave, his chances for recovery are said by the attending physicians to be better than ever.

The gleam of hope born of the fact that the vital organs of the senator not directly affected by the stroke of paralysis are performing their functions admirably has given his relatives and friends the greatest encouragement they have received in the last 48 hours.

Following a consultation, Drs. Babcock and Pickford tonight issued the following bulletin:

Senator Tillman has not lost any ground during the day. Temperature, 98.6, pulse 74, respiration, 18. The character of his heart's action is excellent. He is fully conscious and writes with his left hand. Bodily functions normal. Outlook more encouraging than 24 hours ago.

Too Much Water on the Hair a Mistake

(From Toilettes of Today, Paris)

"If your hair is becoming dry and brittle, breaking off and losing color, follow the lead of the many who have abandoned the use of soap and water and taken up the new method of dry shampooing," said Claribel Montague in her lecture on "Beauty" at the Theater Monet, Thursday. "It has been proven beyond question that too frequent wetting and the application of alkaline substances to the hair is a mistake.

Even those who formerly were devoted to shampooing with eggs now use therox and orris root, and they unhesitatingly declare that this dry shampoo makes the hair as bright and fluffy as ever did eggs.

To make the dry shampoo mix four ounces of powdered orris root with four ounces of therox. Sprinkle a tablespoonful of the mixture on the head and brush it well through the hair. Do this once or twice a week if the hair is thin and scanty and you will soon notice a new growth of hair. Nothing will make the hair so beautifully fine and lustrous as this dry shampoo."

INSURGENTS ARE NEAR NICARAGUAN CAPITAL

Acoyapa Captured and Way Opened to Managua. American Gunners Win Victory at St. Vincent.

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Feb. 19.—General Chamorro, according to the latest advices, with a large body of insurgents, is within a short distance of Managua. His column today bombarded the steamer Managua near San Fran Del Carmiosca on the lake, about 25 miles northeast of Managua city. The steamer escaped without damage.

BLUEFIELDS, Feb. 19.—After a bloody battle in which both sides suffered severely, the insurgents have captured Acoyapa and the way is now open to Managua. Announcement of a great victory was made by the provisional government today.

The hardest fighting was done at St. Vincent and it was through the marksmanship of his American gunners that General Mena gained the victory. Coolly they stood in their posts of danger and hurled a rain of shells into the ranks of General Vasquez' men.

The government forces lost heavily in the artillery fire and were thrown into confusion. As they faltered, the insurgent infantry under command of Gen. Zeledon attacked the forces of Madriz upon the flank and they gave way. Vasquez tried to rally his men as they fell back, but Zeledon pressed on and the defeat of the government forces became a rout. For several hours the battle raged hand to hand as retreating bodies of men were overtaken.

When night fell Gen. Vasquez had succeeded in uniting his army again and had found a refuge in the foothills. The couriers who arrived at dawn could give no definite estimate of the dead and injured, but they declared that the government forces had lost fully 1,000 men.

General Matuty has evaded his foes and effected a union with Mena at Acoyapa. General Estrada today ordered combined preparations for a concerted attack on Managua.

MANAGUA, Feb. 19.—The government's peace commission today made an appeal to Rear Admiral Kimball, commanding the American expedition, for the use of an American warship in making the trip from Greytown to Bluefields. The commissioners are General Aurello Estrada, Rudolfo Espinoza and Frederica Gasaza.

CARACAS, Ven., Feb. 19.—The discovery of a new plot against the government and in the interest of former President Castro has caused a sensation. Many prominent persons have been arrested.

MAY NAME NEW CHAIRMEN

Moves Made to Displace Woodruff, Republican, and Conners, Democrat, in New York.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The appearance of former Gov. B. B. Odell of New York at the Capitol today and his conference on the floor of the House of Representatives with members of the New York delegation caused a flurry of excitement among political watchers and soon started the rumor that Mr. Odell had come to Washington to line up the New York congressmen against the re-election of Timothy L. Woodruff as Republican state chairman. The report met with flat denial. Inquiries, however, brought out the fact that Representative Vreeland of New York is to be urged for Mr. Woodruff's place and that he will probably have the support of many members of the congressional delegation.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—It was reported today that John A. Dix, who was Lewis S. Chanler's running mate in the last gubernatorial campaign, will be chosen to succeed William J. Conners as chairman of the Democratic state committee if the anti-Conners forces succeed in mustering sufficient votes at the meeting of the committee here next Thursday to displace Conners.

WILL PHOTOGRAPH RIOTERS

Demonstrations Against Suffrage Planned in Russia Today—Uproar in the Reichstag.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Further demonstrations against the Prussian suffrage bill will be held tomorrow in a number of cities throughout Prussia. The minister of the interior has ordered police officers to take photographs of street riots for use as evidence in criminal proceedings.

Today's session of the reichstag opened with a stormy scene growing out of an interpellation by the Socialists asking Chancellor Bethmann Von Hollweg what had induced him in his Prussian suffrage speech in the diet to attack universal suffrage as guaranteed by the imperial constitution.

The chancellor assured the house that the universal suffrage of the empire was secure from any attacks by the imperial government or the bundesrath.

Ernst Bassermann, leader of the National-Liberal party, said he was convinced that any attempt to overthrow universal suffrage would usher in the wildest possible political struggle. It would mean the beginning probably of revolutionary movements.

DUTCH STEAMER LONG OVERDUE

TODAY IN HISTORY

It seems odd that the first American printing press should have been set up in the City of Mexico. It is nevertheless true that in that city the first press was installed in 1536 and it was 14 years thereafter before the first printing was done in the British colonies of North America.

The first American press was a rude affair was bought from Spain where the printing press had been established in 1471 and set up by Viceroy Mendoza. It was first operated on February 20 and a small religious tract was run off, a copy of which is still preserved in the Mexican museum. The first book printed was the Escala Espiritual de San Juan Climaco of which no copy is known to exist. A duplicate of this press was made by a mechanic in the City of Mexico and found its way to Lima, Peru, where it was put in operation in 1584.

The first American press was set up at Harvard college in 1638 by Stephen Daye and this press still continues under the name University Press. The first book issued was the "Bay State Psalm Book" in 1640.

Before Christ the Chinese had originated a method of printing in ink on paper by means of engraved blocks which is the first mention in history of the art. The Chinese are also credited with having in the 12th and 13th centuries in Europe in classical and mediaeval times books were made by transcribing them in manuscript but about the 13th century these manuscripts began to be produced with the initial letters stamped in ink from engraved blocks of wood. John Gutenberg is usually named as the inventor who first established typography on anything like a scientific basis. Laurenz J. Coster of Haarlem, Holland, is said to have invented types of wood about 1428 and at a later date types of metal, with which he printed several small books.

Gutenberg experimented with printing at Strassburg in 1436 and in 1446 he had a printing office at Mainz. Printing was practiced in Rome in 1467, in Paris in 1469 and in Spain in 1474. The first English press was set up at Westminster Abbey in 1477.

The first stereotyping was done by William Ged of Edinburgh in 1725. The first electrotyping by Joseph A. Adams, in New York, in 1838. The inking rollers were first used in 1814. The typesetting machines developed from a crude invention of William Church of Connecticut in 1811. The development of late years in printing presses and typesetting machines as well as all other parts of the printing trade has been little less than marvelous.

Explorer for Agriculture Department Brings Plants From Far North —Farmers Will Be Gainers William E. Curtis Tells of Hardy Varieties That Will Grow in the Dry Sections.

William E. Curtis in the Chicago Record Herald.

Niels Ebbeson Hansen, professor of horticulture at the State College of Agriculture, Brookings, S. D. and chief plant explorer for the Department of Agriculture at Washington, has just returned from his third journey into northern Asia, bringing back three new varieties of arctic alfalfa, a clover that will grow through ice, and a grape that is suitable to the semi-arid regions of this country. Professor Hansen has spent several years hunting through ancient and far-off countries of the world for useful plants, grains and fruits that we do not have in this country but are suitable to the climate of our northern latitudes, and will furnish our farmers with greater opportunities to diversify their crops and practice a rotation which will not exhaust the soil. That has been one of the most beneficial features of Secretary Wilson's administration, and thereby he has introduced into the farms and gardens and orchards of the United States valuable new crops, vegetables and fruits that have contributed to the welfare and increased the wealth of the country. Professor Hansen has explored Russia, Siberia, Turkestan, Mongolia, Manchuria, western China, Japan, trans-Caucasia, Persia, Lapland, Finland, and other countries in search of plant life that will endure the cold climate of our northern border and flourish in the dry air of the semi-arid regions of the West, and has been remarkably successful.

Object of Journey.

He started May 28, 1908,—upon his latest expedition, from which he returned a few days ago, going first to Moscow, where he organized a little expedition of four assistants, who are familiar with the languages as well as of the botany of northern Asia. With them he started eastward, crossing Siberia into Chinese territory and traversing Mongolia and Manchuria. He returned by way of southern Siberia and through the foothills of the Altai Mountains, made a journey of 4m miles by wagon across the northern part of the Desert of Gob, and the Hunger Desert of Turkestan. Then when he reached the Mediterranean he visited the Desert of Sahara, looking for plants that will grow in dry climates.

"The object of my journey was especially to find hardy alfalfa that will grow in the colder regions of our northwestern states," said Professor Hansen. "We wanted the northernmost plants of Asia for the farmers of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota and Montana, who lose millions of dollars from the excessive cold and open winters without snow. Two years ago, when I visited a part of the same country that I have been visiting the last year, I found three varieties of yellow flower alfalfa which grow in latitude as high as 62 degrees 30 minutes, across the Arctic circle. I got some seed of one of the varieties which is being tested at the experiment stations of the Agricultural Department, and this time I got a good supply of all three, but they will not go out of government hands for some time yet until our experiments are complete and we have had an opportunity to determine which are the best soils and climate for them to grow in. We are constantly receiving applications for this and other seeds, but it will be several years before they are ready for distribution.

American Inventions Help Siberia.

"I had considerable difficulty in collecting seed, because most of the alfalfa grows wild, sparsely scattered over desert land, and that which is cultivated is so valuable to the farmers that they do not want to let their seed go. The farms are few and widely separated in most of the countries I visited, and the farmers treasure these plants. I was treated with the greatest kindness by everybody, however, both the officials and the people. They are very hospitable and well disposed and there are many men of unusual intelligence. Many of them are exiles, but Siberia is filling up with immigrants very rapidly. The great Siberian Railway is being rebuilt and laid with new rails and the traffic is rapidly increasing. American machinery is revolutionizing farming in Siberia and making it easier for the farmers there to earn a living and cultivate a larger area of land. At all of the larger cities I found depots for the sale of American mowers, rakes, binders and other agricultural implements and machinery. In the principal hotels, particularly in Vladivostok, it was necessary for me to wear a City Clerk record for protection as well as for guid

Alfalfa That Lives With a Temperature of 75 Below.

[illegible] you [illegible] on your [illegible] days. I said:

"The most interesting thing I found was a clover plant and an alfalfa growing near the point of [illegible] in northern Asia. It was between Yakutsk and Verkhoyansk, north of Lake Baikal, on the sixty-second parallel of latitude. Clover and alfalfa grow wild there and live through the winters when the temperature goes down and even 75 degrees below the mercury freezes in the glass. They are not cultivated at all. There are no farms in that region. The people are nomads and have no towns.

"I got my seed a little farther south, where the mercury freezes every winter at 40 below, and both plants will endure that degree of cold with the ground bare of snow. I brought a limited amount of the seed and will put it at the experiment stations of the Agricultural Department so as to have a supply for distribution among the farmers of our own Northwest, but it will be several years before the distribution can be made, because we must have it thoroughly tested before we can let any of it go into private hands.

"You got other seeds and plants?" I asked.

Yes. I got 500 lots of seeds and plants, all of economic value, mostly for the northern sections of the United States, to help the farmers in securing a rotation of crops, so that the land may not be idle and the soil may not be exhausted. Other seeds and plants in my collection will be valuable in dry farming and in fruit culture and in the semi-arid and northern sections of the country. One of the plants will be a great thing to sow in the clearings in northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Maine, where the timber has been cut away. It is especially adapted for that sort of soil and conditions.

Subsidized Entire Villages.

Did you have any exciting experiences?

"Occasionally. One day we came into a rather rough neighborhood and a village where the enraged peasants had stoned to death one murderer the day I got there, and another the day before it was a Siberian lynching bee to rid the community of dangerous characters, and the government arrested and sent away thirty-two bad men to other points where they could be taken care of.

At another time we ran into a case of Asiatic cholera, which is quite prevalent in some portions of the country. Two cases broke out on the little steamer on the Obi River in the Tomsk Province, in which I was traveling. One woman who was taken sick in the evening was dead before morning. When we got to Barnaul we expected to be quarantined, but the people of the town had had cholera worse than we had it on the steamer and did not stop us.

In Mongolia I employed a large number of coolies to hunt for wild alfalfa plants. They covered an area of many square miles. I also hired some Russian soldiers, who spent their spare time in scouring an arm of the Gobi desert. We found very little seed there. I know of the place where there is a solid acre of desert vegetation, but it was widely scattered and had to be hunted for, so I subsidized entire villages and paid the people for what they brought.

Russia's Railway Extensions.

After returning to Russia I shipped my seeds and plants from Riga to Washington via Copenhagen and then returned to Moscow to get ready for a trip into Turkestan and Persia to look for Persian clover, which is one of the best of the fodder plants of India and other rainless regions. The Russians are introducing it into all of their colonies. My journey from Moscow to Tashkent, the capital of Turkestan, was made by railway via Orenburg over a newly built track which the Russians have recently constructed in order to bring a food supply and raw cotton into their markets. The railroad is already about 1,200 miles long and the government is rushing it to completion. The Russian government will also build a line northeastward to connect with the great Siberian Railway and tap the wheat fields of Siberia, so that its people down in the lower climates of the southern portion of the czar's dominions can get cheap food and release a part of their wheat lands for cotton. They are now planning to buy their wheat and raise more cotton which brings better prices. I saw some American machinery up there and it was very popular.

Tashkent is the center of the irrigated heart of Asia, which has an area two-fifths as large as that of the United States, but it is a very dry country, the larger part of it is desert. This land was once occupied by a vast population which had extensive irrigation systems and great wealth. The Russian government is trying to reestablish the irrigation plants and revive the growing of cotton and other staples which flourished during the time of Tamerlane and Alexander the Great. Their irrigation works were abandoned in the struggle between the contending civilization, and the country has been practically idle since.

The "Maskah" Grape.

I got a good supply of Persian clover and expect to get more. It is especially suitable for western Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and the western part of our cotton belt.

"I visited eight different nations, traversing several hundred miles among the Mohammedans, and picking up what I could. That country has been sealed up by Russia, and the officers do not allow foreigners to go in there, so that I had to get a special permit. But everybody was very courteous and helpful, both the officials and the people, and I had no trouble at all.

"The Russian government is trying to help the people by bettering their economic conditions and has secured their good will and confidence in that way. It is fixing up their temples, so many of which are in ruins. It is assisting them to construct irrigation facilities, showing them how to farm and raise stock, and is encouraging the cotton industry in every way possible. It is taking up the forestry problem also, is helping to plant trees and showing the people how to make the most of their labor in developing the great natural resources of the country. It is a mighty poor country, though. It has been drying up for centuries, for it is very difficult to get water there.

"Since the [illegible] of the new railway the people have secured access to outside markets and are now shipping [illegible] grapes from Turkestan called the 'Maskah.' They are grown [illegible] and have been cultivated by the [illegible] for centuries, but they have never been shipped out of the country, and the vines and cuttings have not been introduced to foreigners before. The Maskah is a very large grape with a superior flavor, much larger than our Thompson's Seedless grape. I got some vines and cuttings, which I hope will be of value to the Californians and other people in semi-arid regions. I obtained a number of other varieties, including two which are superior to any we have yet, which will be the subjects of experiment by the Agricultural Department, but it will be several years before we can distribute any of them to private growers.

How We Got Alfalfa.

"I came home across ancient Transcaucasia, via Tiflis and Batum, over the Caspian Sea, and took a steamer for Marseilles which stops at many ports to discharge, and take on cargoes, so that I had an opportunity to go ashore and see a good deal. I left the steamer at Corsica and went over into Italy to study the lucernes, which are the alfalfas of Greece and Italy. From Marseilles I went to Algiers and made a journey into the heart of the Desert of Sahara to study the alfalfas there.

"I brought some seed from that desert also. The Arabs have grown alfalfa as fodder for ages. It was carried over into Spain by the Moors from Africa; from there to South America and Central America and Mexico, and from there to California, and that is the roundabout way in which alfalfa was introduced into the United States. At the town of Tuggurt in the Desert of Sahara from the Arabs I got a quantity of the seed of the original alfalfa. A part of it will be experimented with by the Department of Agriculture, and I will take a part to Dakota, where we will use it in the evolution that is being carried on by our plant breeders.

"The ideal alfalfa of the future will be a hybrid of all the alfalfas of the world—the wild and cultivated species from four continents and from all climates. We now have the best materials, and by the proper use of them we ought to be able to produce the final variety for those foreigners of the United States where a perennial leguminous forage is needed with which to feed our future meat supply."

Watching A Stomach Digest Food

Was One Minute Whisky Extract Made Available for Cure of D, yspepsia

A trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Sent Free

The Abbe Spallanzani was the first student to study systematically the chemical powers of the gastric juice, but it was by the careful and convincing experiments of Beaumont that the foundation of our exact knowledge of its composition and action was laid.

Beaumont was an army surgeon, located at an obscure military post in Michigan, while it was yet a territory, and was called upon to treat a gun shot wound of the stomach in a Canadian voyager—Alex St. Martin. When the wound healed a permanent opening was left by means of which food could be placed in the stomach and gastric juice taken from it

Beaumont made scientific experiments with his crude means and wrote a book, which today is recognized among the classics of physiology.

Beaumont blazed the way for other scientists so that today medicine knows what the stomach does with food and what food does to the stomach.

Science also knows what the gastric juices are and how to make them best for the system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets thanks to the poor army surgeon and Alexis St. Martin, give man a means of digesting food, replenishing the exhausted juices, soothing the nerves and correcting dyspeptic conditions of the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are natural fruit and vegetable essences reduced in concentrated form and by tremendous power compressed into a tablet. These wonderful little digestors are known all over America and Canada. Full meals have been digested by them in glass tubes and they are sold by every druggist.

Physicians to the number of 40,000 use them They are meritorious and powerful. Go to your druggist and buy a package today, price 50c, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

How the Men of the Country Are Boosting a Great Religious Enterprise

THE people of Colorado Springs have been hearing a good deal of late about the big laymen's missionary convention, which is to be held in this city March 1, 2 and 3 next.

Many questions have arisen. Some have asked "What is meant by laymen's missionary movement, what purpose does it embrace, and what does it aim to accomplish?"

In the briefest possible language the movement aims to enlist the men of the country in a co-operation to bring the Christian gospel to every one of people in foreign lands within our generation, by the missionaries now on the field and those who are present constituted and at work to do his task in this generation.

The movement embraces not only the church men those actively engaged as members of churches in the work of the different denominations—but it undertakes to interest and arouse the attention, as well of men who have only a nominal connection with church work.

On a Business Basis.

The plan will appeal to the practical man in the fact that this great proposition is being carried forward on strictly business lines. It has at its head one of the ablest business men of the country, who are giving to it their time and attention. In short, the laymen's missionary movement is a big business concern and is going with a rush.

The Colorado Springs convention is one of 60 other conventions which have been held and are to be held during the winter in many of the larger cities of the country. To explain how it has been worked here will give an idea of the way in which the movement has been carried throughout the country.

First. The matter is taken up with the pastors of the churches, as it is known that through them the bulk of the laymen must become interested. A meeting of the ministers and laymen is called and at that meeting the field secretary of the movement in this case Dr. J. P. Tilbe, of Kansas City, came on and explained to the assembled company just what was expected of them.

How Committees Work.

From the various city churches a central committee composed of men was created. Likewise a chairman and an executive secretary, to have charge of the detail work of planning and preparing for the great convention. Subcommittees were then appointed including those of publicity having in charge the dissemination of information to the press in the district covered by the convention, that of registration, to secure the names of delegates to the convention, that of statistics, to secure the facts relating to missionary contributions and work from the various churches in the entire district.

The committee on educational campaign is selected for the purpose of presenting the work of missions to the various churches in the district. The deputation committee arranges for visitations to outside cities to arouse an interest in conventions. The missionary committee sees to it that the missionary societies are organized and are active in every church. The entertainment committee is charged with the duty of arranging places at hotels where the delegates may find lodging and where the speakers to the convention may be entertained. The transportation committee arranges low rates on the railroads from the various towns and cities in the district. The finance committee has the necessary duty of finding the money to pay for the hall, printing and all the various other expenses which are incident to a campaign such as this. These committees are all composed of laymen, inasmuch as it is the purpose of the movement to interest men everywhere who have hitherto been quiescent or indifferent.

The Way of Success.

It will be seen from this list of committees that the movement proceeds along the roughing business lines and leaves nothing undone in the way of organization to make the convention a great success from a financial as well as a spiritual point of view.

Honor for Springs.

Colorado Springs is honored by having this convention. Other cities that have held conventions are Buffalo, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, New York, Cincinnati, Toronto, Kansas City and many others. From it will be seen that this city is distinguished as being one of the smallest to which this great movement has come. The Springs convention aims to secure delegates from the entire southern part of the state. The Denver convention which is to follow the one here, has for its field the northern half of the state.

The convention is remarkable for the kind and quality of the speakers who make the addresses. These are some of the ablest men of the country, who go from one convention to another, who know the missionary problem from A to Z, and whose presence could not be secured for any one small city, were it not for the fact that they are engaged in a great tour which covers practically two-thirds of the United States.

To Evangelize the World.

The laymen's missionary movement is comparatively young being less than four years old. It has for its keynote the inspiring watchword, "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation."

It represents a plan to Christianize the 600,000,000 people who are still without the gospel, by providing funds to do the work. The student volunteer movement, through which thousands of young people are ready to go into the foreign field offered a challenge to the business men of the world to provide the funds for this purpose. In short to make the money of the world subservient to the lives of these students. To enlist men and give the latter the opportunity to carry out the purpose for which they desire to consecrate their lives.

The need may best be apparent from the fact that 24,000 missionaries now abroad can probably evangelize 75,000,000 during this generation at the rate of one missionary to each 25,000 souls in the foreign field. To complete the great task in this generation will require 100,000 missionaries for the 1,000,000,000 people now committed to Christ.

Pessimistic as this may seem to be, it is not at all impossible especially with the mighty force of the laymen's missionary movement behind it, backed by some of the best brains, ability and money of the nation.

How It Is Planned.

As the movement is an enterprise not an administration it has been chiefly occupied with the presentation of an adequate missionary policy to influential groups of men, and also with the exploitation of methods of missionary finance, which have produced the best results.

The movement stands for investigation, agitation and organization, the investigation by laymen of missionary conditions, the agitation by laymen of an adequate missionary policy, and the organization of laymen to co-operate with the ministers and missionary boards in enlisting the whole church in its supreme work of saving the world.

It has been found of enormous advantage to present the missionary operations of the church in the large, to men of all the church together. Only in this way is it possible to secure the full inspiration from past success and to plan on a comprehensive basis for the completion of the work that has been so splendidly begun.

Crowds Are Attending.

It is a striking fact that the conventions already held in the various large cities of the country have demonstrated that the faith of the first promoters of this movement was not unfounded. The men have been flocking to these conventions everywhere. Whether they have been attracted by the novelty of a great Christian enterprise, engineered exclusively by men, or whether they have desired to become definitely enlisted in the great problem of saving the heathen world, or whether they have attended in only out of curiosity, will never be definitely known. But the fact remains that tremendous throngs of men have attended the meetings everywhere and it is estimated that by the time the final convention is held in Chicago in May, 100,000 men will have been enrolled as delegates in this great enterprise.

In the city of New York on the day of the final meeting there was an audience of 5,500 men present filling the great Hippodrome. In Saint Louis there were 4,000 registered delegates, in Boston there were 1,500, in Washington, 1,714; in Cleveland, 1,450 and thus it goes throughout the country showing a marvelous interest among the men of the land, in this great plan and a keen desire to hear the missionary problem presented by those who speak.

Presidents Interested.

One of the most notable meetings was in Washington, D. C. Here is the capital of the nation. President Taft, Ambassador Bryce and many other distinguished men in public life gave to the movement their cordial support and spoke notable words of encouragement for the missionaries in their self-sacrificing labors upon the field.

It is a notable fact that four presidents of the United States Taft, Roosevelt, Harrison and McKinley—have each at various times given their heartiest approval to the work which the missionaries are doing in foreign lands, and William J. Bryan, as a result of his recent trip abroad, also pays an eloquent tribute to the work which these pioneers in teaching the gospel have been doing in the out-of-the-way places of the earth.

What Taft Said.

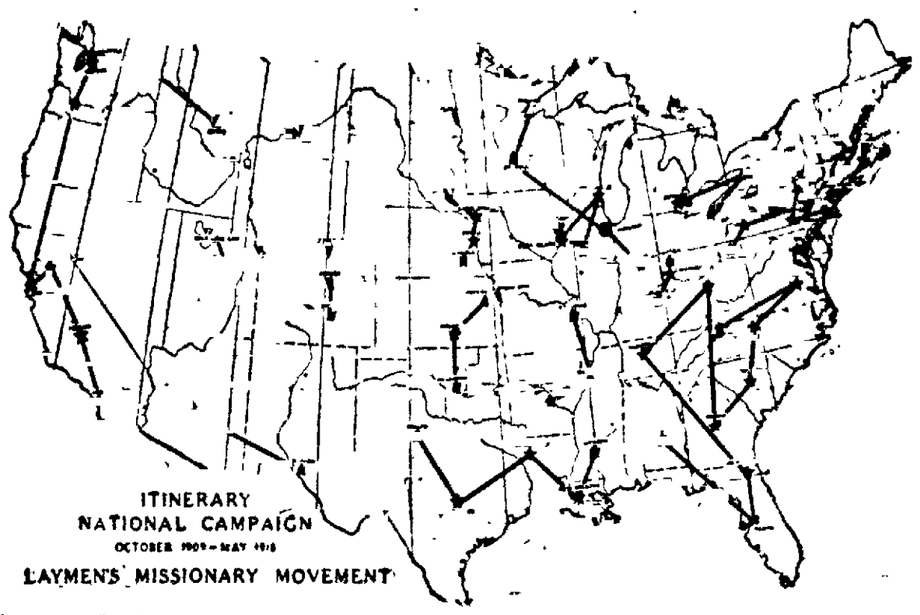
President Taft said at the Washington convention a few weeks ago:

"The mission stations are the outposts of Christian civilization.

"The missionary who goes into heathen lands for the first time is astonished, gains an influence in excess of the rumored size of colonies. He has a physical influence, and influences the government of China itself, and yet the citizens of China who exercise so much power there, that we do not understand and the movements in China today and her budding out as she has and as I hope she will continue to do are largely the result of the missionary propaganda, and the education in America and elsewhere, under the influence of these missionaries, of able young Chinamen who are anxious that their country shall take the position her wealth and her numbers and her resources and her possibilities and her history justify.

"The lives the missionaries lead, the good they do and the character of representatives they are of the highest in our civilization is what makes it so important that they should be sent and be sent with all the instruments of usefulness possible into those far distant lands.

"I sincerely hope the result of this convention will give to the movement for foreign missions an impetus that with the respect to our clerical brethren it cannot have unless the whole body of the good men in the community press forward. I have spoken of it solely from the layman's point of view and not from a purely religious one, but I have spoken of things that I think I know, and am here not so much to talk as by my presence to express the deep sympathy I have in the movement that I hope you are most successfully inaugurating."



Will Mark An Epoch.

The convention in Colorado Springs seems destined to be an epoch making event in the religious history of the community. Nothing has so stirred the men of the churches so generally and universally as this meeting in which they are invited to participate.

Eight hundred delegates is the mark set of the churches from the Pikes Peak region and 500 or 600 more are expected from the other cities and towns in the southern part of the state. Pueblo has already announced that she purposes to send 250 men to this great gathering, and other cities and towns will send proportionate numbers. Altogether it is believed that from 1,200 to 1,500 delegates will be enrolled.

Takes No Collections.

A notable fact about this convention is that while its primary purpose is to arouse an interest among the laymen and thus increase the contributions to their several missionary boards NO COLLECTIONS WILL BE TAKEN AT THE CONVENTION AND NO CONTRIBUTIONS WILL BE ASKED FOR. The movement is interdenominational, and the results achieved will hereafter be in the hands of the missionary boards of the various denominations.

A few days ago Dr. Fred S. Sheets, missionary secretary for the Methodist Episcopal church was in Colorado Springs after having attended some 30 of these great conventions this winter. He used this striking language:

Great Religious Uprising.

"I helped start up the Omaha convention, I was present at the Nashville convention, I was present at the young peoples convention at Pittsburg, I attended the students volunteer convention at Nashville in 1906 and again at Rochester last January. I have attended the greatest revival meetings that have ever been held. Have been at the Moody meetings, the Sankey meetings, with Billy Sunday and Gipsey Smith, the Torrey and Alexander meetings, but I can say this, that nowhere that I have been have any of them approached in intellectual and spiritual power these conventions that are now being held by the laymen's missionary movement. I have already attended 36 of these conventions in the east, and have never seen anything like them. It is undoubtedly the greatest religious uprising that we have seen since Jesus Christ was on earth."

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which is many places a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for this trouble and a number of cures have been effected after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all dealers.

United Wireless An Industrial Investment

SQUARE DEAL INVESTMENTS VERSUS WALL STREET TRICKS.

Investors Find Unlisted Stocks Safer and More Profitable.

WHAT DIBIDENDS SOME UNLISTED STOCKS PAY.

The latest Wall street scandals, which have shown to the world how artificial values are created to fund a confiding investment public, must have opened the eyes of investors in every part of the country. In one of the common stock of the ROCK ISLAND RAILWAY which has not even voting power or on which a dividend has never been paid and probably never will be, has been marked up from $30 to $54 to be soon followed by a drop from $54 to $44. How the big New York Stock Exchange considered this confidence game was shown by the suspension of the brokers who marked the price up. These brokers have simply given the "game" away.

Another big Wall Street scandal was the marking up of the almost worthless stock of the HOCKING VALLEY COAL AND IRON CO. from 21 to 92 and then the drop in the price of the stock from 92 to 25 in one day. Can it then surprise that the honest public has caught on to it and become wise and prefers not to risk its hard-saved money on Wall Street and other smaller stock exchange bubbles and now begins to turn to unlisted stocks of going companies, that are not full of water, but honestly managed and will distribute among their shareholders big profits.

STOCKS THAT PAY BIG.

What the shares of industrial companies that are not tainted with stock exchange methods, or are not listed, pay is shown by the fact that, for example, the EASTMAN KODAK CO pays about 30 per cent dividends on its stock, the AMERICAN CYCLE CO. has recently paid a dividend of 10 per cent, the BUTLER BROS. CO. of Chicago one of 70 per cent, and the STETSON HAT CO. a semiannual dividend of 15 per cent and an extra dividend of 25 per cent. Shareholders in the POSTUM CEREAL CO. are reported as having made $50,000 on investments of $500, and those in MUNSEY'S MAGAZINES $12,000 on an investment of $100.

There are only a few examples of dividends which have been made by investors in industrial stocks. No such profits have ever been paid to the public on Wall Street stocks. If fortunes have ever been made on them, they have always gone to the Wall Street wolves and not to the investing public.

There are still just such industrial propositions mentioned above that have paid their shareholders 25 per cent of the wealthy people of the United States today have been made so by investments in industrial stocks and the stocks that have been kept out of Wall Street have not been subjected to the gain of insiders, are the ones that have paid handsome dividends to the original holders of stock in the private company.

As United Wireless Telegraph Company pays 1 per month dividends on its stock, and has paid dividends on its stock for the past 3 months, and will have paid 4 dividends in all before the end of the year. A number of the United Wireless Telegraph Co. is a subsidiary in all other industrial companies as the Telegraph Co. Fire-alarm signal, Railway Block Signal, the Fosphone for vessels, and the principal of Conducting Power by Wireless.

A $100 investment in Bell Telephone stock when Alexander Graham Bell was trying to obtain recognition for his patent, has made in dividends $391,000, while the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. paid $127,000 in seven years on an investment of $100. American Rolling Mill stock that could have been bought for a few dollars a share, now sells for $40,000.

Remember, "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor."

The United Wireless Telegraph Co. has proven to the public that they are on a sound basis. They have steadily advanced in the face of all difficulties, their revenue from commercial messages being more than $30,000 a month, an increase of 600 per cent over a year ago. They are indorsed by the governments of the world. The bill now in Congress now providing for the compulsory equipping of steamships with wireless telegraphy, will undoubtedly enhance the value of the stock. The price of the stock now is $40.00 a share, and now is the time to buy it in order to reap the benefits of the enormous dividends that are going to be paid. It is an absolute fact and a matter of safety. You can not possibly lose on an industrial proposition that is demanded by the public for the protection of human life as well as for a commercial advantage.

If you are interested in such an investment of magnificent possibilities, representing an interest in a corporation which has been built up from small beginnings and from its own net profits to the biggest of its kind in three short years if you want an investment not subject to methods of frenzied finance, but has the brightest future, call on me or call me up over the phone, and I will be pleased to give you all the information regarding the work, progress, and references you would desire.

EXTENDING CHURCH INFLUENCE.

THAT a great undertaking of a religious character may be made a success if gone about in a businesslike way, is evidenced by the results already achieved by the Laymen's Missionary Movement. This movement has for its purpose "The Evangelization of the World in This Generation," and in pursuance of that object, some seventy-five conventions are being held in various large cities of the country during the winter, and one of which is to take place in Colorado Springs the first week in March.

This undertaking has for its purpose the enlistment of 100,000 men during the winter in this work. The results so far achieved in the various cities of the country indicate that the promoters of this great enterprise were not too sanguine, and that their expectations are likely to be realized. Great throngs of laymen have already attended these conventions, an average of about 2,000 delegates in the large cities having been attained. It is an interesting fact in connection with these conventions that some of the ablest men in political and business life have given to the movement their heartiest support. In Washington, for example, President Taft and Ambassador Bryce were in the list of speakers who gave the proposal their cordial approval. The movement finds gratification in the fact that four of the recent Presidents of the United States have expressed cordial sympathy with the work of spreading the Gospel into the distant places of the earth.

The convention in Colorado Springs, like those in other sections of the country, has created unusual interest among the laymen of the churches. There probably never has been a religious enterprise which has so completely enlisted the support of church-going people, and particularly men, without regard to denominational lines. All the churches of the Pikes Peak region are giving to the proposed Convention a great deal of thought and attention. Delegates are registering in large numbers from the various churches and altogether the outlook for the forthcoming gathering is declared to be most propitious.

OUTSIDE INTEREST SHOWN.

Reports from outside towns and cities are equally gratifying. Pueblo, which has sometimes been declared to be difficult to handle for an outside convention, has set a mark of 250 delegates, and with the energetic business men who are pushing the campaign in that city, it seems not at all improbable that the delegation will be approximately of this size. Nearly all the towns and cities of southern Colorado have declared that they will be represented by one or more men. This phenomenon of religious activity is one of the surprising features of the movement throughout the country, and appears to hold good for the Colorado Springs Convention, as well as those in other communities. Whether it be from curiosity, or from the unique character of the undertaking, or from a genuine interest in missionary endeavor, is difficult to say, but the fact remains that exceptional and unusual results are being achieved everywhere.

Colorado Springs is honored by the fact that this city is one of the smallest among those in which conventions are being held. But if the community rises to the opportunity, as it now seems likely to do, then the city will be able to show results in proportion to its field that are even greater than those indicated in some of the larger cities of the country. From a purely commercial standpoint, the convention will be a very desirable thing to Colorado Springs, inasmuch as a vigorous campaign has been carried on for delegates in the southern half of the State, and with the likelihood of excellent results.

Probably the Laymen's Missionary Convention will bring more strangers to Colorado Springs than any convention of the year, with the exception of the great political or fraternal gatherings. Hence the committee in charge of the convention is wise in making a large local attendance, not only because of the additional good that may be achieved, but also from the standpoint of public pride in an enterprise which has attracted such a distinctive local character.

FLYING EXHIBITIONS.

RECENTLY after the Wright Brothers had made their European trip they announced that another year would leave the exhibition basis and confine their energies likely to commercial work. They were not flying, they declared themselves at the time, but were simply demonstrators in aerial science, and believed that there was enough work to be done in perfecting the aeroplane to absorb their energies for a number of their days.

Nobody has ever accused the Wright Brothers of being "showmen," at least not in the sense in which the term is applied to the flying exhibitionists. It is safe to say that in the near future the term will be used with reproach against Willard Avialoff, Mr. Blackburn, Mr. Ferguson and other exponents of flight for pay. They have applied a certain scientific principle in a way that has developed an entirely new art, and they have succeeded in accomplishing a thing which is absolutely new to the world. The aeroplane is one of the greatest inventions of all time, and the desire of the public to see it in operation is natural to be accompanied with the desire to have the inventor give some sort of a public exhibition.

Almost without exception the men who thus far have given these exhibitions have been those who invented or contributed to the development of the aeroplane, such as the Wright Brothers, Fatham, De Lesseps, Blerlot and Curtiss. Therefore, they can no more be considered "showmen" than Alexander Graham Bell could have been when he first exhibited his newly-invented telephone.

WRIGHTS MAY GIVE EXHIBITIONS.

For these reasons it is not surprising that the Wrights are now reported to have reconsidered their decision. They will send machines out over the country to be operated by skilled aviators trained under their direction. Wilbur Wright is quoted as saying that he has great faith in the popularity of the aeroplane if it can be made absolutely safe, and that he and his brother are hard at work now to attain such safety. Probably it will be a long time before this end is reached, or before it will even be possible for the average man with a clear head and steady nerves to purchase an aeroplane and operate it after a few lessons with the confidence he would have if it were an automobile. At any rate the Wrights intend to see that none of their machines used for exhibitions come to grief through any fault of their own or of the operator.

The opportunities for money-making in this branch of the airship business appear to be almost unlimited, at least until the popular curiosity to see men flying is satisfied, and that will not be for a great many years. The Los Angeles meet was highly successful, and at Denver there was an enormous outpouring of people to see Paulhan fly. Almost any city would gladly pay well for an exhibition of this kind. At Los Angeles Paulhan won a single prize of $15,000 and his total winnings probably amounted to twice that sum.

Aviation meets will become increasingly popular as a feature of outdoor fairs and festivals and they will continue to attract countless thousands of spectators. Of course, everybody who can operate a machine will have the privilege of competing, but the big profits will go to the patentees of the aeroplane, the Wright Brothers. And since the success of aerial navigation is due more to them than to all other inventors combined, nobody is likely to begrudge them the big earnings which are fairly in sight.

GOVERNOR AND LEGISLATURE IN NEW YORK

From the Boston Transcript.

Citizens of all the states are interested observers of what annually takes place in New York's lawmaking body. Though that state is not so vital a factor in national politics as it once was, it is still of large importance and the party that can count upon its support in a national contest has a feeling the development of the coming session are likely fively contest is looked for there next autumn, and the developments of the coming seassion are likely to have some effect upon it. Upon the result will depend the decision of Governor Hughes as to whether he will again be a candidate or not. If what he regards as his reform measures are adopted he will retire at the end of his present term. If his plans are thwarted he will seek a renomination in order to fight to the finish.

The governor's pet measures are direct primaries, the Massachusetts ballot, control of telegraph and telephone companies by the public service commission, and the adoption of a new charter for New York City. He also will convey in his message his views on new methods of managing the finances of the various state departments and the conservation of the water power of the state. The result of the election of a successor to the late Senator Rains as president pro tem of the upper branch will illumine the situation somewhat. The leading candidates are Senator Hinman of Broome county and Senator Allds of Chenango county. The former is one of the governor's supporters, the latter an opponent.

The Republican leaders are anxious for a compromise with the executive, but he is not in a compromising mood. They are willing to concede the direct nomination of aldermen, assemblymen and senators. He will insist upon the direct nomination of all state officers. Local option, which the politicians have been able to sidestep for the last year or two, is bound to obtrude itself this year and the suffragettes are preparing to become troublesome. More than elsewhere that element in New York represents the new militant policy, and is likely to try it out while the enthusiasm is fresh.

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

From the Omaha Bee.

To inject business methods into religion rather than to inject religious methods into business seems to be the motto of those who are at the head of the Laymen's Missionary movement, which is covering this country from one end to the other. In this work an effort is evidently being made to emphasize the manliness of religion and the practicability of pushing the missionary movement to a successful conclusion in the present generation. The work has met with such general approval that men from almost every line of business and professional activity have become interested.

Conventions are being held in all parts of the country and business men have gathered by the hundreds for the discussion of missionary methods. In New York recently 2,500 business men attended a missionary banquet. In Pittsburg, a little later, almost the same number were gathered together. In many places all over the country these conventions are being held with tremendous success.

One of the remarkable features of the movement is that it is strictly a layman's movement. Bishop Quayle, in speaking of matters kindred to this topic, recently said: "Ballades and preachers in general have had too long time for the last 50 years and it is now time to go to work man fashion and show the world that the Christian religion is not something for a man to be ashamed of."

The success of the missionary work in all parts of the world and the birth of stalwart men engaged in it has at times created that there is something in it which the man behind the deal has not seen. He is willing to commit to the possibilities of a great advancement in civilization by missionary work and has become an active factor in it. Only a few years ago the average young man believed it a mark of intellectual superiority to be skeptical and to regard things religious as being effeminate and unworthy of a man. Happily this idea is waning in these days. The average business man of today believes in the principles of religion and is not avoiding

The Golden Rule—Temperance Lesson Matt. 7, 1-12.

Golden text: Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets. Matt. 7: 12.

Verses 1-5—Why is it that men not very good themselves, are so harsh in their judgment of other men?

When men condemn others on mere suspicion what is generally the real ground for their condemnation?

Why is it that a truly good man will never judge another harshly, or on mere suspicion?

What reason is there to believe that a person is guilty of the same, or a similar sin, when he suspects another for it on mere suspicion and does he not thereby cause others to judge him after his own judgment?

Verses 3-5—Why are men so apt to think lightly of their own sins, and to magnify the very same sins in others?

It is but right that a man should first forsake his own sins, before trying to help others do so, but is it impossible for one sinner to help another to repent? Why or why not?

How much success is attained by unspiritual pastors or Sunday school teachers in leading sinners to repentance, notwithstanding they may teach the real truth with ability?

Verse 6—What considerations will prompt a truly good man to lovingly reprove sinners, and try to turn them from their sins?

What class of persons are those with whom advice or reproof is hopeless, and who but insult a person for his efforts to help them?

Does Jesus here direct us to give up all effort to save those who answer to "dogs" and "swine," and if so what does He mean?

Verses 7-8—Seeing God gives us so many things without our asking, or even knowing our need of them, why is it that He gives some of the most vital blessings only by our asking?

What is the significance of the three words, ask, seek, knock?

Why does God often keep us waiting for what we seem to so urgently need, and to only give them to us after earnest and importunate prayer?

What are some of the benefits of importunate prayer?

Why is it that notwithstanding the invitation, and the promise of Jesus and ten thousand of testimonies as to the value of prayer that it is so little used?

Verses 9-11—We are loyal to God what reasons are there to believe that God will answer all our prayers, in the sense at least of withholding all bad things, and giving us every necessary good thing?

Verse 12—What is the relation between our lives and actions to our fellows and our getting good things from them, and how does this bear on the question of temperance? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

WHERE THE WISE MEN WEEP.

Life is pretty cheap and yellow, and if often bores a fellow, if he thinks about his troubles through the long and weary day, if he talks about his sorrows, saying baby that all tomorrows will be just as stale and somber, just as grewsome and as gray. As, the world is what we make it; if we fuss around and rake it, hustling for a crop of trouble, we'll have shadows high and wide; but it will not pay for reaping, and the thrashers will be weeping when they see the scurvy harvest that has been your boast and pride. If you just insist that worry take its grip and trunk, and roam, you are sure to find the mowing pays for all the work and sowing, and the thrashers will be whooping on the day of Harvest Home. All my metaphors are tangled, and this rhyme is badly tangled, but you'll doubtless catch its meaning if you use a hook and line; do not mind the ills that bore you, nor the clouds that threaten o'er you, every day provides its solace, and tomorrow will be fine.

The Daily Chit-Chat

"The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel!
But do not dull thy palm with entertainment
Of each new-hatched, unfledged comrade."
—Shakespeare

It seems to me that one of the chief things the present generation needs for its perfecting is more reserve.

Think it over and see if you don't find that the person who seldom speaks of his personal affairs, who never prates of his inmost thoughts, the person to whom you would naturally apply the adjective "reserved," is not something of a rarity in your acquaintance.

Silas Sykes always grabs on to his thoughts an' throws 'em out, dressed or undressed. He ain't a bit reserve. Not a thought of his head that he don't part with. If he had hands on his forehead you could tell what time he is. "I think you could, anyway," says Zona Gale of one of his characters in "Friendship Village," and it's true of a good many people outside of Friendship Village, I think.

So many people talk to acquaintances they have met but two, or three, or half a dozen times, of such intimate subjects as their ambitions, their diseases, and their love affairs.

Why, the other day a girl asked me to direct her to a certain place. I pointed it out to her, and as I was going in the same direction we walked along together. Before we had reached her destination four blocks away, she had actually told me all about a love affair she was passing through at the time, how many times he had proposed and why she wasn't sure she wanted to accept him.

To some people exchanging confidences seems like a sort of intoxicant. Once they get talking of themselves they will go to any lengths of self-revelation in order to keep their audience's attention.

That desire to keep people's attention seems to be the crux of the whole thing. Three-quarters of the time it is an eagerness to keep the center of the stage that makes the babbler willing to unlock the things he should keep locked up in his heart.

He knows that by bringing out these hidden things he can startle people and thereby hold the center of the stage, and he apparently searches the corners of his mind for private matters to reveal in order to prolong the time he may hold that coveted position.

The result is, of course, that his most sacred confidences soon become cheap, and he thereby defeats his own end.

The reserved person's highest confidences, on the other hand, are carefully attended and long remembered. He may not often hold the center of the stage but he can command it instantly and without effort any time he wishes.

Don't think I am advising people to lock their secrets in their own hearts and never confide in any one for I am not, at all.

I believe that an occasional hour of intimate discussion with a trustworthy friend is a healthy practice and a beautiful privilege.

I am simply inveighing against the unreserve that continually sloshes over into a discussion with casual acquaintances of subjects that should be discussed only between close friends.

If you don't need it, simply pass by the suggestion, but if you do, why not make an attempt to cultivate a bit more the fine art of reserve.

When cool add one-quarter of a compressed yeast cake dissolved in a little warm water and sufficient sifted flour to make a thick drop batter. Beat hard, cover and stand in a warm place for the night. Next morning beat it down and pour into a large round pan or gem pans. Let stand until the batter begins to rise as in them bake in a hot oven. To serve right the buns should be taken from the pan and allowed to bake to two-thirds cold. In the meantime warm together three tablespoonfuls of butter and two of powdered sugar; add the yolk of one egg and one tablespoonful of lemon juice and beat until light and creamy. With a sharp-pointed knife cut the cake into half inch circular pieces (imitating a layer cake). Spread each piece with some of the mixture and fit together as before. Brown on a flat pan and warm through in a moderate oven. Serve cut in pie fashion.

ON FEELING BLUE

Every one has to fight a battle with the blues in a while, that life is not worth living; that the skies are sodden and gray, or the shades of the prison bars incline us; that the "best of what we have got are" was not directed and that on and has come to naught; that it's no use trying any longer and we might as well give up. We are despondent and discouraged and "feel blue."

It is with "feeling blue" as it is with many other physical and mental maladies. It came to the sufferer as though his case were quite unique, as though nobody ever suffered in just that way before. He feels sure that no one ever experienced the peculiar intensity of his complicated anguish or affliction. Hence, there is no one who can understand and sympathize. He must go through the valley of the shadow quite alone. There is no rod, no staff to comfort him, for it seems as though God Himself had withdrawn the light of His countenance. By nature mankind is gregarious, associative, and at no time do we feel the need of a friend or a companion more than when the night has fallen on our way and there is no "kindly light" to lead "amid the encircling gloom."

"I turned to share my sorrow, O with whom
But thee, deep buried in the silent tomb,
That spot which no vicissitude can find."

But, as Carlyle has pointed out in a stirring passage in "Sartor Resartus," we are encompassed and encouraged by a cloud of witnesses, if we are worthy. We are not alone. We have "strong-sliding companions" in the innumerable throng of those who, from the beginning of the world, have met and conquered the lions in the way, have overcome the powers of darkness and put to rout the devil himself. As old Sam Fessenden said—nor did he intend a blasphemy—"God Almighty hates a quitter." It is one thing to be defeated, another to surrender. "Who knows but this defeated face were unsurrendered still?" Come what may, we must not give up.

"Come ill or well, the cross, the crown,
The rainbow or the thunder,
I fling my soul and body down
For God to plow them under."

A sure cure for the blues is a steady occupation. The person most obsessed by megrims and melancholy are those who have nothing to do. A man busily at work is more likely to whistle or to sing than to whine. He has no time to waste in vain and useless jeremiads. He has his work in the world to do. His "virtuous energizing" occupies the whole of him. He realizes that most of the tellers of hard-luck stories would do better to keep at work.

"If ye find that the bullock can toss you,
Or the heavy-browed sambur can gore,
Ye need not stop work to inform us;
We knew it ten seasons before."

Rest after toil is one thing, the leisure of a loafer is quite another. The idle woman has made the fortune of many a doctor and nerve specialist. The philosophy of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch is sound. We all know poor, hard-working men and women who are foci and radiating centres of sunny good humor and cheerfulness. It is a great mistake to pity them because they have so much to do. It may be that their labor is not as well paid as it ought to be—and we ought to do our part to see to that—but the labor itself is a blessing.

Instead of giving ourselves into the possession of our hypochondriacal moods we should do well to submit ourselves to a searching analysis, to determine whether we have good reason for "feeling blue." Robinson Crusoe when he felt despondent drew up, in two parallel columns, a list of the things he had to be thankful for and a list of his reasons for repining, and he found that the balance was decidedly in favor of the causes for thanksgiving. So when we come to probe and dissect our emotional states we shall very often find only the slightest basis in reason for the sorrows of Werther. It may be something we have eaten. It may be because we went to bed too late. We like to think it is the Weltschmerz, the world-sorrow, that sits heavy on our souls, whereas it is more probably from entirely prosaic physiological causes that our distressful mental state is produced. Instead of the Weltschmerz it may be the welsh rarebit. It is very disconcerting on applying the Roentgen ray of our own intelligence to find that the structural framework of our living sorrow is after all, such a flimsy, fragile skeleton.

It is so selfish to be gloomy and morose—to be a wet blanket and a killjoy. Our fellow people with burdens of their own to bear cannot be expected to saddle themselves with the pack we ought to carry. If we have a real sorrow we are justified in seeking sympathy. But to pour our imaginary woes and ailments indiscriminately into the ears of our friends and neighbors, and above all our own families, is a cruel and cowardly form of self-indulgence.

We all know people who save their best humors, their pleasantest moods for calls and visits, and vent their spleen and spitefulness at home. Some one has said that the true test of family life is that of the breakfast table. In some families the day begins with the moral and spiritual sunset of dark faces and frowns, with every one cantankerous and out of sorts. In other families the beginning of the day is a flying start of cheerfulness. Our own home is, of all places, most in need of the "smiling morning face." It is pre-eminently the place where we must not "falter in our grim task of chastening." Those who love themselves welcome in their own family circles are most likely to be popular abroad. Those who in self-absorption milk and brood, and make those of their own vine and fig tree miserable, will not be wanted in company unless they can be cheerful; and there is always danger of "the sulks" becoming chronic so that any day we may find the Doctor Jekyll of our better natures incapable of resisting the encroachments of the hateful Mr. Hyde. The best of good habits to cultivate is the habit of persistent cheerfulness. And those who suffer most, as a rule have most of it.

Why Less Children Are Born in France

By Professor Dr. E. Debove, University of Paris.

The number of births is annually decreasing, the number of deaths is increasing, and the population of France grows smaller every year. During the first six months of 1909 it decreased in fact with 28,203, this number representing the difference between the numbers of deaths and births. These figures are exact, but I will give some more.

In the period lying between 1886 and 1889, where the average number of male births was 456,000, this average number continually decreased. In the three years from 1905 to 1908, the number of male births in no year exceeded 403,000; in other words, a deficit of 50,000 male births annually, as compared with the eighties.

France is growing weaker. Every year she sees the number of her coming generation growing smaller. From a military standpoint, this is a veritable calamity. What are we to do?

When a patient first visits a physician, the latter always first tries to locate the causes of the illness, and, when he has found them, he begins to fight them.

The causes of the great chronic illness from which France is suffering have, in my opinion, never been sufficiently looked into, but without wanting to pose as politician, I may say that the causes are political as well as social.

Our race is neither less vigorous, nor less healthy than in the past, but the conditions of life have changed. The depopulation of France is due primarily to complicated ensemble of good or bad laws that have been passed during the last century or more.

Let us take a law passed during the Revolution, the abrogation of the privileges of the first born, in many ways a just and equitable measure.

The cutting up of inheritance has changed our customs. Among the higher classes today families with only one or two children are the rule. The first born is THE child, the second is accepted as an insurance against sickness or death, but the third is an intruder.

There is a more recent law, that introduced by Theophile Roussel, for the protection of infancy, a most beneficial law.

"Mothers," this law says, "must not take positions as nurses until they have nursed their own child for at least seven months."

There can be no doubt as to the excellent effects of this law, but it is nevertheless certain that it has helped to diminish the number of births. In the country districts, where nurses come from these are getting scarce. The young mother has ceased to be a source of income to her husband and family. This does not sound very sentimental, but it is true nevertheless.

Our workingmen and peasants have always considered their children an asset as soon as they were strong enough to work. They meant so many more hands to earn money in the factory or help cultivate the farm. The most excellent law regulating the work of women and children has robbed the working classes of one of the means which permitted them to have children that did not mean an absolutely dead burden.

In the North, where the children go to work in the mines when quite young, they are still considered an asset, and statistics show that in these districts the population is still increasing.

The education laws also have influenced the number of births, and anyone can convince himself that in the districts where they are most strictly enforced there are a smaller number of children born, while the birth rate is lowest where the children are compelled to go to school up to the full age. The schools deprive the parents of the work of the children.

There is then a great difference between the causes of diminished numbers of births in the well-to-do and poorer classes, but besides the causes mentioned, there are a hundred, not to say a thousand, others.

The actual marriage conditions, and the neglected education of our young girls, are among these and it is squarely up to the politicians to suggest the remedies.

To prevent the alteration of checks or other valuable papers an inventive genius has brought out an electric apparatus which burns tiny holes in the paper as the inscription is written.

INDICTMENT OF PACKERS NOT YET HANDED DOWN

New Jersey Grand Jury to Meet Again Wednesday — Prosecutor Garvan Makes Statement.

NEW YORK, Feb 19. - If the National Packing company and its directors are indicted, capiases will be issued for the indicted men and they will be brought to New Jersey for trial," declared Assistant Prosecutor McCarthy of Hudson county today.

"I have heard it said," added Mr McCarthy, "that J Ogden Armour one of the company's directors, says if we want him we will have to come after him Whether he said that or not if he is indicted we will go after him, alright"

The grand jury which yesterday directed Prosecutor Garvan to draw up the form of an indictment against the National Packing company and its directors did not meet today its next session being set for next Wednesday

Prosecutor Garvan had little to add today to his statement regarding the grand jury's discoveries He understood the vote to indict to be based on testimony presented to the alleged effect that formal action had been taken by the committee to hold back food products in storage until market prices should advance to the company's own figures.

Kenneth K. McLaren, resident director of the National Packing company called on Mr Garvan today and put point blank to him the question whether or not the officers of the company had been or were to be indicted The prosecutor informed Mr McLaren that he could give him no information on the subject.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Announcement of the indictment in New Jersey of the directors of the National Packing company which includes all the big packers except Schwarzschild and Sulzberger was received in Chicago as a complete surprise and immediate preparations were made at the offices of the officials to arrange for bail

The news was also a surprise to District Attorney Sims and his special assistant James R Wilkerson who are prosecuting the federal investigation of the alleged beef trust that Judge Kenesaw Landis inaugurated January 1

Although the investigation has been in progress much longer than the investigation in New Jersey it is said that the federal grand jury here is not in position to vote indictments because of lack of evidence

"The eastern investigation of the beef trust will not affect the investigation being carried on by the federal grand jury in Chicago in any manner," said District Attorney Sims

From an Exchange.

The train stopped at the little Georgia town and the tourist ventured out to the observation platform.

"Rather likely pickaninny you have there uncle," remarked the traveler, good humoredly "Named George Washington?"

JACK AND THE BANKRUPTCY.

From Puck.

The beautiful Princess was in a predicament. "I have a hat, to be sure, but how shall I ever get it trimmed in time for the party tomorrow?" she moaned.

That night Jack planted his magic bean at one corner of the hat, and by morning such was the growth of the vegetable the confection was trimmed in the latest style.

"Oh, oh," cried the princess in ecstasy.

As for the wicked giant, who had been paying her attentions, he was practically bowled over "Why didn't that kill you?" he exclaimed; and from that day forth Jack was known as the Giant Killer.

TWO OF A KIND.

From Youth's Companion.

There is something about the character of mules that makes their owners at times almost equally stubborn. In the Washington Star this dialogue, concerning one, if not two such animals, is reported:

"Why don't you get rid of that mule?"

"Well, suh," answered Erasmus Pinkney "I hates to give in If I was to trade dat mule off he'd regard it as a personal victory. He's been tryin' to do las' six weeks to get rid o' me."

AWAKENING

From Harpers

There is a lad of 10 living in a Pennsylvania town where the schoolma'ams still employ the rod in order that the child may not be spoiled, who found it, if liable to that form of chastisement at the hands of his teacher.

As the youngster approached the principal, the fierce aspect of the latter's countenance, together with the light of the upraised cane, quite unmanned him, and he began to blubber.

Then, innocently, and a little reminiscence of a visit to the dentist he stammered:

"Please, sir, I—I—I take gas!"

DANE AND DUTCHMAN ARE READY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLE NEXT TUESDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19—It is a fact that most of the San Francisco sporting [illegible] to back Battling Nelson as the winner of next Tuesday's lightweight battle at Richmond, there are many who persist in believing that the fighting days of the Dane is done, and that he will [illegible] his claims to the little Dutchman before the battle has gone 25 rounds. Among the [illegible] entertaining this opinion [illegible] of the keenest critics of boxing in this or any other country.

The betting on the fight has been increased by leaps and bounds during the last 24 hours, and the chances are now that it will be 10 to 8 by the time the fighters enter the ring at Richmond, Tuesday afternoon. Commissioner Tom Graney is the most surprised man in town. He felt sure that it would drop from 10 to 8 to 10 to 4, but, instead, it probably will go the other way. Today Corbett announced that he had put out of Nelson money, and that he had several thousand dollars to be wagered on the fighting lad from the Beer city. The reason for this is the steady stream of Wolgast money, which is coming in from Los Angeles. Down south the sports believe that Wolgast is the greatest little fighter who ever drew on a glove. They cleaned up on him when he upset Lew Powell's championship aspirations here three months ago, and they are willing to take another chance.

Wolgast has been below the 135-pound mark for the last three days. He let up on his training perceptibly today, and did little more than enough work to keep his muscles limbered up. Nelson, on the other hand, worked like a Trojan. There was not an idle moment all day. In the morning he took a five-mile run and after a rubdown went to the gymnasium and had six hours work. This was followed by a dozen rounds of boxing and a tussle with the moving picture man. The latter will get the finishing touches on tomorrow in an exhibition bout at the Jeffries Richmond show in Recreation park.

Wolgast is chock full of confidence. He believes he has the lightweight crown safely stored away and, while he will make no prediction as to the length of the fight, he firmly believes it will end long before the forty-fifth round is reached. Nelson scouts the idea that his time has come. He says that his handling of Wolgast will be in the nature of a boxing lesson. The betting fraternity takes Ad Wolgast with Nelson. It is felt that, in addition to his other qualifications, Nelson is a better [illegible] iron man, a consummate pit to iron Bark Jimmy Burns, who, the Australian believed, was impervious to all the blows and buffets that a human fist could inflict.

TERRORS CLASH WITH CENTENNIAL TUESDAY

When the C. S. H. S. basketball the Pueblo Centennial quintet on the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium floor next Tuesday evening, the Springs basket throwers expect to get revenge for the defeat which they suffered in Pueblo a short time ago, when Centennial whipped the by two scores. The Terrors played loosely and apparently were too confident.

YALE OARSMEN WILL PRACTICE EXTRA WEEK AND WILL HAVE NEW POWER BOAT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 19—Two important changes are to be made in the system of Yale rowing this season. The crews will have, according to present indications, four weeks instead of three at New London in their training quarters on the Thames, and they are to have all through their spring work and also at New London a light, fast power boat to assist in the coaching.

The addition of a power boat to the coaching equipment will practically revolutionize that department. To appreciate the advantage which has been gained by it one has to know conditions of spring work here for the oarsmen. The harbor, which is just outside the boathouse site is so rough that until well along toward May there is little chance to row on it.

There is a three-mile course up the Quinnipiack river, up which the eights row occasionally, but the river is so shallow that the launch, Elihu Yale, cannot follow them. Therefore when John Kennedy wishes to coach the crews he has to send them up a half-mile course toward the mouth of the river, which is deep enough to allow the launch to follow the crews. Up this, turning, and down again comprises practically all of the early training of the Yale crews.

The addition of the fast motor boat to the coaching equipment makes it possible for the crews to row up the river the entire three miles, and Kennedy to follow them and coach them the whole distance. The motor boat is a gift from a Yale alumnus, who is interested in rowing. His name is withheld for the present. Yale made a start last year in motor boat coaching, but Harvard has made no move in that direction. Yale took the motor boat "Red Devil" to New London to assist in the coaching and found it a powerful help in following the crews and coaching them at close quarters.

The new motor boat has been received and is all ready for the opening of outdoor work. The crews expected to leave the gymnasium rowing machines the past week, but they have been prevented from doing so by high winds. There is no doubt, however, that the coming week will mark the close of indoor drill at Yale.

The change of staying four weeks at New London instead of three seems certain to come as a result of the readjustment of the date for the Yale-Harvard regatta and the placing of the date of the Yale commencement exercises a week earlier. The departure of the Yale rowing squad for New London is always regulated by the date of the close of recitations at the university. All the examinations which close the school year are allowed to be taken at New London. This year, because of the new Yale spring term schedule, recitations close June 1, a week earlier than usual.

Yale expected to be able to arrange a date for the races earlier than usual, but Harvard insisted that the date be kept the day after Harvard's commencement, making them come June 30. This will give the Yale oarsmen 29 days on the banks of the Thames and should prove of great benefit in enabling them to round into form after they reach the Thames.

Yale's varsity is made up as follows as the crew closes its indoor work for the season: Stroke, Wallis, No. 7, Captain Wodell, No. 6, Buckingham, No. 5, Van Sinderen, No. 4, Bogue, No. 3, Van Blarcom, No. 2, Hyde, and bow, Brainard.

ZOOZ WILL MEET EVERY WESTERN LEAGUE CLUB

According to word received here yesterday from Chicago, Owner J. J. Coughlin of the Zooz has arranged for practice games here next season with every Western League club. These games, in addition to the exhibition game to be played here April 5 with the Chicago White Sox, insure a successful opening for what is expected to be the best season Colorado Springs has seen since Western League days. The appearance of the White Sox here will be the first introduction Colorado Springs fans have had to a major league aggregation for many years.

TILLMAN FIT AS A FIDDLE FOR NEGRO

Young Tillman has finished training for his 10-round bout with Young Bruce of Denver, and will enter the roped ring at Aguilar, Colo., Tuesday night, fit as a fiddle. Tillman weighs 138 pounds. Although Young Bruce, his colored opponent, is handy with the gloves, the Springs boxer expects to win the go.

DENVER, Feb. 19.—The fight here tonight for the welterweight championship between Harry Lewis and Willie Lewis, both Americans, was declared a draw in the 25th round. The referee was loudly hooted for the decision, Harry Lewis having the greater number of supporters in the audience.

BOYS FORM SWIMMING CLUB WITH 37 MEMBERS

That members of the Colorado Springs Y. M. C. A. are proficient in the art of moving through the water without sinking was shown yesterday morning, when 37 boys qualified as members of the swimming club by swimming 50 yards in the Y. M. C. A. pool. Each of the boys who qualified at the trial will receive a button, the emblem of the national organization. The club will be formally organized, and each member will be expected to teach another boy how to swim. As soon as all the Y. M. C. A. members have qualified for membership in the club, the swimmers will extend their activity to the public schools, inviting every boy to come to the Y. M. C. A. pool and learn the art.

A remarkable instance of the spirit in which a man can learn to swim was the case of a Greek, Sarkis Odabashian, who a month ago could not swim a stroke. Yesterday he passed the test, swimming 50 yards, as prescribed by the rules.

Following is a list of those who passed the test: Hubert Diltz, William Diltz, Robert Cather, Paul Glover, Norman Lee, Frank Avrill, Milburn Fogelsang, Francis Dunlavey, Austin Rice, Richard Denman, Elza Parr, Ivo Gleason, John Gallagher, Frank Evans, Harry Allen, Tracy Mc[illegible], Maurice Mitchell, James Taylor, Ray Wirt, William Argust, John Cork, Roy Gwinn, Sam Kirshner, Howard [illegible], Caesar Jacobsen, William Neal, Wayne Elmore, Charles Harrison, Charles Taylor, Harry Fuller, Edward Asmoth, Sarkis Odabashian, Charles Clark, Fred Wolfe, Howard Shepard, Max Shippe, Charles Schneider.

emblematic of the state championship, in the shoot here New Years day, will shoot off their tie. The winner will defend his title against all comers.

DOPE IS USELESS ON JEFF-JOHNSON BATTLE

By C. E. Van Loan.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Just by way of pouring another libation of gasoline on the burning question of the day in order to light up the subject of doping the coming winner of the heavyweight battle, let it be said that dope is useless and the man who compiles it wastes his time. It is interesting; that is the best and the worst which can be said about it and with this thought firmly clinched in the mind we proceed, as follows, towit:

It is no use, when doping two fighters about to meet in the ring, to waste time figuring on men who have not been common opponents. In figuring Jeffries as compared with Johnson there is an excellent line on Jeffries, the beginner, for when a beginner he fought some of the men who afterward fought Johnson when Johnson was every bit as good as he is now, if not better.

Here is a sort of a summary: the men fought eight battles with six common antagonists Griffin, Everett, Kennedy, Munroe, Fitzsimmons and Choynski. Of Johnson's eight battles, he won two by knockouts, one was stopped to prevent a knockout, he won one decision, fought two draws, went six rounds to a no-decision affair and was once knocked out himself.

Of Jeff's eight battles, seven he won; four being knockouts, two were stopped to prevent knockouts and the only "decision" was the hollow one registered against Griffin in the exhibition, the eighth was the Choynski draw.

On this sort of stuff, a blind man can see at a glance that Jeff, the comer and Jeff in his prime, overmatched Johnson against every one of the six men who were common antagonists. And that brings us right back again to the same old question: how good is Jeffries today? And that's what nobody knows to a certainty.

The football cooks at the Midway have completed their conference and will serve the [illegible] again.

FRAT GAMES ARE FAST

Alpha Tau Deltas and Delta Phi Thetas Are Victors in Basketball Contests.

In two of the fastest basketball games of the year at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium the Alpha Tau Delta five of Colorado College defeated the Sigma Chi team yesterday afternoon by a score of 35 to 11, and the Delta Phi Theta aggregation won from the Phi Gamma Deltas by a score of 35 to 16.

The Alpha Tau Delta team showed form that has not been equaled in the interfrat league, and is now in the lead for the championship. The playing of Sinton, Dickson and Acker of the Alpha Taus was a feature of the game, while the work of Jamison for the Delta Phi Thetas was a stellar attraction. The interfrat games are arousing a smoldering basketball interest at the college, and the game may be played by the college next year.

The teams lined up as follows yesterday: Alpha Tau Delta—Dickson, Warnock, forwards; Sinton, center; Witherow, Acker, guards. Sigma Chi—Fowler, Thompson, Hamilton, forwards; Vandemoer, center; Jardine, Siddons, guards. Phi Gamma Delta—Weller, Boyes, forwards; Johnston, center; Wilson, Benjamin, guards. Delta Phi Theta—Wright, Jamison, forwards; Norleen, center; Putnam, Dellrich, guards.

CYCLONE JOHNNY IS MATCHED WITH DANE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19—The long pursuit of Cyclone Johnny Thompson apparently has been rewarded for Charley Cleaver. Thompson's manager has secured the signature of Nelson to articles for a 45-round battle, to be held on Decoration day before the club offering the best inducements. It is specified in an agreement that any club bidding for the fight must guarantee Nelson $10,000 and $500 expense for his quota. The men are to weigh in at 133 pounds at the ringside.

FINISH FIRST ROUND

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—The first round of 32 matches in the national indoor lawn tennis championship singles on the board courts of the Seventh regiment, was decided here today. In the first round the best matches were those in which Carl R. Gardner, the Californian, defeated S. W. Mayhew 6-3, 6-1. Another Californian H. D. Henry, was defeated by G. F. Touchard, formerly of the Pacific coast, 6-0 and 6-1.

TROUT FISHING AT PROSPECT THIS SUMMER

Springs fishermen will have a chance this summer to fasten their hooks in some of the 400,000 trout which are said to inhabit the waters of Prospect lake. On and after May 25, subject to the game and fish laws of Colorado, any resident of the city may fish for trout in Prospect lake. Fishing will not be permitted after 10 p. m. nor before 4 a. m.

The city placed 50,000 6-inch trout in the lake two years ago, in addition to 150,000 trout fry. Last year 128,000 trout were added.

ANNUAL DENVER MOTOR CLUB SHOW WEDNESDAY

Exhibition Will Be One of Most Complete Ever Seen in Entire West.

Plans for what will be the most complete exhibition of automobiles ever seen in the west are almost complete, and on next Wednesday, promptly at 2 p. m., the Second Annual Automobile show, given under the auspices of the Denver Motor club, will open at the Auditorium. The show is to remain open until Saturday night, and the committee in charge, which is composed of Charles P. Allen, chairman; Dr. Edward F. Dorn and William D. Nash, has been putting in all of its time to finish the many details which always come up at the finish. Every conceivable kind of an automobile will be shown, as well as motorcycles and auto accessories and all other up-to-date appurtenances for motor cars.

The poster girl for the auto show of the Denver Motor club appeared a few days ago. It shows a young lady sitting at the wheel of an auto with her face peeping shyly from the folds of a flowing veil, while in her right hand she waves a D. M. C. pennant. Some mystery is attached to the girl who posed for this poster, and the show committee refuses to give her name. It has been learned, however, that she is a wealthy resident of Colorado Springs, and it was only after considerable urging that she consented to permit her photograph to be used in making up the poster.

Battling Nelson is reported to be overdone. Possibly he has kept the pugilistic pot boiling too long.

JEFFRIES THINKS HE CAN DO THE 100-YARD DASH IN LESS THAN 11 SECONDS IF NECESSARY

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19—In addition to the other talents he possesses Jim Jeffries is quite a sprinter. He showed this today while chasing after a runaway baseball on the greensward of the Valencia grounds. Those who did not know of the former champion's fleetness of foot marveled when they saw the manner in which he sped across the grass. When some one complimented Jim on his speed, he took it as a matter of course.

"That's nothing," said the big fellow. "I can't remember the day when I could do 100 yards in 11 seconds or better, and if there was any occasion for it, I believe I could run the distance now inside of it."

Jeffries put in a couple of hours at loosening up work at the ball park. He spent most of the time ball chasing with Berger and others, and wound up with some skipping rope exercises. After the work he had a shower and rubdown.

Tex Rickard, who arrived on a belated train early this morning, was among the crowd who went to the ball park with Jeffries. Rickard said that a final determination regarding the battle ground for the Jeffries-Johnson fight would not be made until tomorrow, and probably not until Monday. At the same time, Rickard would not make denial of the report that San Francisco is to be the scene of the conflict.

"I have a conference with my partner, Jack Gleason, and we will go into the matter," said Rickard. "I have been in San Francisco for quite a while, and I don't know what the situation is here. Gleason will be able to tell us what the prospects are for putting on the fight, both at San Francisco and at points outside of San Francisco, and then we will reach a decision."

Tris Speaker, Sensational Outfielder of the Boston Americans

It pays to be a star ball player, a player who is ranked with Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner and the best in the game. Although one of the most recent finds in the big leagues, Tris Speaker is one of the greatest players in the country. With the Boston American league team he has been a star for two seasons past. Last fall it was his great stick work that beat the Giants in the postseason series.

Recently Speaker was sent a contract by President Taylor. It didn't just suit. Speaker changed the figures to suit himself and sent it back to the club president, signed. Taylor acknowledged the receipt of the contract, so next season Speaker plays with Boston, naming his own figure. Besides his work with the bat Speaker is a whirlwind of speed on the bases, has a good arm and covers lots of ground. He has everything that goes to make up a star player.

ABILITY TO START AND GOOD JUDGMENT ARE ESSENTIALS OF GOOD BASE RUNNING

By Hal Chase.

Baseball as a game depends on two things—what good base running is and the ability to score runs. Next comes ability to prevent opponents from scoring. This goes for the individual as well as for the team. I will deal with base running. To my mind this is one of the very most important accomplishments in baseball. I do not except hitting, though batting includes successful base running. Base running means the work of stealing the bases in the most effective way. It means, in short, to improve every opportunity on the bases; also to take the least risks of being put out.

Base work brings out most forcibly what is in a player. It is here where brains count most. Batting ability is a native gift. It is something that may be improved, but cannot be acquired. Base running starts coupled with hitting. Great runners are born, not made. In all strategies of attack as well as defense, speed is a fine equipment. It is not an essential. How many ten second men have blossomed out in the big leagues, only to die as base running disappointments? Most of them lacked the head. Speed could not overcome the minor handicaps toward putting their speed to best advantage.

Quick Start Best.

More important than speed is ability to get quickly into motion. You have to get the jump on the other fellow, as it were. Regardless of sprinting ability, one who cannot get the break cannot advance successfully. Jimmy Austin stole 97 bases one season in the Western league. In the American he could not put his speed to such advantage. He is not a quick breaker. At least he did not get under way speedily last season. His switch in batting style may have had much to do with it. Austin is every bit as speedy as Ty Cobb. But Cobb gets every advantage from his splitting power.

Cobb Best Ever.

Ty Cobb is the greatest base runner in the game. This is not because of his running ability. It is because he always thinks for himself. The man who depends always on a coacher to tell him what to do will never succeed. A player must always have the situation in mind. He must be ready to take advantage of every slip of an opponent. Many say that Cobb is lucky. Well, if he is, he makes his luck. He pulls more new stuff than half the rest of the players put together. He takes chances, but he seldom takes a desperate chance unless the situation is desperate. Cobb's success lies in his cunning and ability to execute on the instant. He boasts that intuitive instinct that scents out a bad play before it is fairly begun. Bill Bradley, of the Cleveland club, is a sterling base-runner of the opposite type. He cannot compare with Cobb as to speed, but he always takes care to have the edge on the opposition before he starts anything.

In this battle of wits the one who can outguess his rivals is the winner. Always worry the pitcher and catcher by leading off as far as possible and bluffing. It helps the batter and throws the opposition off its guard, as to what you really intend. Never try to steal unless absolutely sure you can get the jump on the others. Never steal unless you have tipped off the batter. He must protect you if the foe has outguessed you.

To be a good base runner one must knew how to slide properly. The principle is easy, although methods vary as much as players. Always slide opposite to the direction in which the fielder will take a throw. A high throw naturally goes in back of the base line. On such slide to the inside of the bag. A low throw pulls the baseman to the inside. In this case circle him from behind.

How to Slide.

No two have the same method of sliding. Some try for the bag feet first. There is less personal risk. On a close play I generally prefer to slide head first. Thus I can always keep the base in sight. I can depend on the dexterity of my body to flop out of reach of the ball and use my hands as an anchor. Slides are "hook" slides and "fall away" slides, and many other kinds. Space will not permit their various description. One and all have the same object. To expose the least of your person to the player taking the throw in the air. This means to keep most of the body out of tagging distance. The slide varies with the baseman. Some like throws on one side, while others may excel just the opposite way. Always put yourself in such a position that it will be hardest for the foe to tag you. Study and practice alone make perfect at this.

Base stealing is not base running. The old Cleveland team, illustrates that. What greater base stealers could be found than Way, Bradley, Flick, Lajoie and Turner? And what greater aggregation of hitters, with Clarke and Stovall thrown in? Yet that team was very bad at base running. The players used off were runs than they scored simply because they failed to grasp their opportunities. It is a bad base running aggregation and this cost Lajoie pennants.

RACE RESULTS

At Juarez.

JUAREZ, Mexico, Feb. 19.—Gloria, carrying top weight, 124 pounds, won the feature event at Terrazas park today. Uncle Ben, a 20 to 1 shot, proved a big surprise when he won the 2-year-old event by six lengths. The stewards are investigating the bad races of Wolverton and Fantastic, who ran so poorly in the closing event.

At Oakland.

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 19.—Fort Johnson again showed what a high-class horse he is by winning the Stockton handicap in easy style today at Emeryville. Silver Knight, which appeared to sulk the first part, closed fast and beat Old Mexico for second money.

At Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 19.—Racing at Moncrief park today was completely overshadowed by a renewal of the selling race war which had lain dormant for several days. The most bitter of these came with the running of the third event when Joe Jones stepped forward and bid up the winner, Dixie Knight, $1,500 over his entered price. Chinn retaliated in the closing race, boosting Oberon $200. After this race Owner Powell rushed forward and attacked Chinn, but spectators interfered.

Garden Tracts on Easy Payments

Do Not Waste Your Life

Slaving away for somebody else without the least prospect for the future. Costs wearing as it does in an endless task for others. NOW in the prime of your life you must think of the future, you must prepare for that old age which is sure to come.

The logical way is to put your money in real estate where the returns are sure. Money put in real estate cannot blow away, it increases in value with age, and it will be there always, increasing in value as time goes on. At the present rate of increase in the United States, the population will be over 150,000,000 before twenty-five years have passed. This vast multitude must be fed, they must have homes, and the West is the only place for them to come. Land values are sure to increase and likewise your investment in real estate is sure to double. We are offering you an opportunity to invest, where the profits are sure, in SOUTH GARDENS, adjoining Denver, one of the largest cities in the West. We say adjoining, it is really in the city. (IT IS CITY PROPERTY WITHOUT CITY TAXES.) Two car lines within half a mile of these tracts. An interurban car line proposed which will traverse all of the tracts.

The land is as fertile as any ever offered to you. The water is from one of the oldest irrigation ditches in the state. There are only 100 of these tracts and they will not last long from the present demand and the way the reservations are coming in.

"It takes only 35 minutes from this city and only 40 minutes from the center of Oakland. I can arrange with the railroad company for a very reasonable return rate on the day of the battle, and I can also arrange it so that the big crowd can be handled with quickness and dispatch. It will demonstrate to everybody that Richmond is far superior to either Colma or Alameda. All I want is a chance to make good."

Dean is one of the most influential business men in Contra Costa county, and is also a prominent sport. He has been conducting boxing matches in Richmond for many years, and has had a lot of experience as a referee. The population of Richmond is with him to a man, woman, child and dog, so it looks as though he has every chance to win out and none to lose.

RULE AGAINST SYNDICATE BASEBALL IS A JOKE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The National league finally got through with its spring schedule meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria this afternoon. The only business during the final day was the revision of the constitution and the adoption of a resolution against syndicate baseball. The resolution, framed by John T. Brush of the Giants, was a huge joke. It is that dual ownership of clubs in the league will not be tolerated. It does not, however, prevent a five-club-holding stock in two clubs. A man might own every share of one club and 49 per cent of the stock in every other club in the league and still be exempt from criticism or punishment. A recent ruling in the American league prevents anybody holding stock in more than one club.

SALT LAKE CITY TO BE THE MECCA FOR RACING FANS FOR 140 DAYS NEXT SUMMER

(By Bert E. Collyer.)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 19.—W. W. Finn, owner of the controlling interest in the Utah Jockey club, has announced that the meeting at Buena Vista park, Salt Lake City, would open May 14. This arrangement was reached after a lengthy conference over the wire with Manager "Dick" Dwyer, now at Oakland.

The Salt Lake meeting will of course, follow upon the heels of Moncrief park. Meetings at Cheyenne and Boise, Idaho will follow that at Buena Vista, and will be under the auspices of the Utah Jockey club.

All told, this will mean 140 days' racing within the immediate vicinity of Salt Lake City. Horsemen racing here have shown an inclination to take kindly to the western proposition, which has been investigated and found above reproach. The weird rumors, having their source in sensationalistic quarters on the Pacific coast, to the effect that the Pacific Jockey club would not grant a license to the Utah corporation because of Mr. Finn's connection with the enterprise, are without foundation. As matters stand at present, the California body is having a strenuous time fighting for mere existence itself with no time at its disposal—if it held the power—of opposing Mr. Finn's enterprise this side of the Rocky Mountains.

"Dick" Dwyer, one of the most popular racing officials in the country, has been appointed manager of the Utah Jockey club, while C. Campau, at present connected in an official capacity at Moncrief park, is to be racing secretary. It is quite probable that Charles F. Price, of Louisville, will be in the judge's stand when the bugle calls the ponies to the post for the inaugural dash a couple of months hence.

With racing on the metropolitan circuit at best an uncertain quantity, Kentucky under the oppression of the ancient system of parimutuels, and Canada the center of a bitter anti-gambling warfare, Salt Lake City and the other tracks under the jurisdiction of the Utah Jockey club, are sure to attract the better part of the horsemen now wintering here.

Down by the seaboard this year there will be 136 days of racing with all the appurtenances necessary to make it successful. Which goes to show that in chasing the devil around the stump it is not necessary to hire a brass band.

THE FEBRUARY TREE

McLandburg Wilson in Lippincott's.

'Twas bliz for all the world to see
That February cherry tree
Whereof, with all veracity,
We now set down the history

Dust Cupid saw it standing fair
And cried, "A tree, I do declare!"
Then, whipping out his knife, with care
He left initials carven there

George Washington then cut it down
In order to acquire renown
And since in every vale and town
The story serves his fame to crown

A few years later Lincoln came
He also wished to make a name
Pursuing thus the noble aim
He split it into rails and fame

OWING to the numerous celebrations of the birthday of "The Father of Our Country" the local society world will put aside Lenten scruples for a brief space of time and this week promises much enjoyment. Seldomridge, with "The Star Spangled Banner" as the closing number. Refreshments will be served in one of the dining rooms of the hotel.

Ellen Beach Yaw Concert Friday.

The most important musical event of the month and one of the most interesting of the year is the appearance at the Opera House, Friday evening, of the famous American coloratura prima donna, Ellen Beach Yaw. It was not suggested that Miss Yaw would be able to include Colorado Springs on her present tour as she opens her season with the Metropolitan Grand Opera company the first of March, but the unusual interest shown by local music lovers in the possibility of her coming to this city, induced the great singer to be one more concert in the west before going east.

Ellen Beach Yaw was heard in Colorado Springs several years ago at the time when she was startling the musical circles of the world by her remarkable range and the brilliancy of her delivery, especially in the high registers. That was 10 years ago. Then Miss Yaw went abroad and for eight years was buried in hard study under the greatest Italian and French vocal masters. Two seasons ago she returned to this country and appeared at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, singing the title role of Donizetti's grand opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor." So great was her success with the critics and the music loving public of that metropolis, that she was immediately engaged for a series of performances this spring at the Metropolitan.

A partial list of patrons and patronesses for the Yaw concert includes the following Colorado Springs people: Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. Ganson Depew, Mrs. F. W. Kent, Mr. A. C. Pearson, Mrs. S. H. Allen, Mrs. T. F. DeWitt, Mrs. E. L. Brackman, Miss S. J. Warren, Mrs. W. K. Jewett, Mrs. J. B. Lippincott, Mrs. C. P. Dodge, Mrs. B. F. Anderson, Mrs. H. F. Avery, Dr. A. A. Blackman, Mrs. James F. Burns, Miss Doris Fowler, Mrs. P. F. Gilda, Mrs. F. F. Castello, Dr. J. F. McConnel and others.

Children's Colonial Party.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Dunning of the Antlers hotel will perpetuate their annual custom of giving a children's party and on the afternoon of Washington's birthday several hundred children will dance in the beautiful ball room between 3 and 5 o'clock. Many patriotic features appropriate to the day, although this is by no means intended to impose, Mrs. William O. Brinker, Mrs. Lafon Brinker, Mrs. Berman Rosenfeit, Miss Vera Giannini and Miss [illegible] Muhlberg will assist Mrs. Dunning in the entertainment of the children.

Among the children receiving invitations are Helen, Edwin and Vincent [illegible], Louise Sholem, Jack and Jeannette Hawkins, Margaret and Gerald [illegible], Mary Pope and sister, Cuaudia [illegible], Josephine and Dorothy Swan, [illegible] Waugh, Marian Perkins, Marian and Helen Smith, Arthur and Madaline Connell, Elizabeth Hamlin, Constance White, Betty F. BRAVE WOMEN

The Kansas City Star in a special dispatch from Frankfort the other day telling of the flood conditions in that town which prevailed for a day or so as a result of the heavy rains and the swollen streams. It follows. It was a risk of life to cross any of Frankfort's streets on Monday afternoon last and many business men closed their stores and went on top their roofs to pray, and await the end. But not so the women. Mrs. A. L. Busenbark a society leader in Frankfort had issued invitations to a bridge whist party and the women determined to be there, if they lost their lives in the attempt. They were seen emerging from their doors at 2 p. m. and, while some called for boats and waited for the boatman others not daring to wait till after the cards had been dealt plunged into the roaring stream and swam to the home of their hostess. Some wore their party gowns in the water, and others wore old clothes, and carried their party duds like a negro woman's wash in a bundle on top their heads. The old saying that travel affords advantages was borne out when Miss Leonora Miles appeared on her front porch with a bathing suit she wore when at the coast last summer. Since her return to Frankfort she had been denied all opportunity of showing it to her friends, and had planned to give an exhibition in her bathtub that her friends might see it. Therefore, she welcomed the flood of Monday, and made a pretty picture in a blue flannel pajama suit that began at her shoulders and quit above her knees, and, when she swam off, her bare arms cutting the water, and her other limbs keeping up as best they could the men on the shores gave a cheer. It was a great sight for Frankfort citizens, many of whom had never seen a bathing suit in action before. Three women were drowned in an attempt to reach the home of their hostess, but the effort they made to get there will be marked to their credit Up Yonder.

The eastern states, from Maine to Alabama, produced gold worth $358,143 and silver worth $35,070 last year.

WOMAN'S CLUB NEWS

THE celebration of the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln by Colorado Springs Woman's Relief Corps No 4 last Saturday evening was a numerously attended and interesting one. G. A. R. hall was crowded with an audience representative of the fine patriotic spirit prevalent in the city at all times, but particularly upon special occasions.

The program consisted of greetings from the patriotic organizations and music. The Daughters of the American Revolution were represented by Mrs. Elizabeth Cass Goddard, regent of the Zebulon Pike chapter D. A. R. The Colorado Springs chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution by the president Dr. William W. Arnold, the National W. R. C. by the national senior vice president Mrs. Fannie D. W. Hardin of Denver. Mrs. Hardin extended greetings from 160,000 women and concluded her remarks with a sketch of the life of Lincoln.

Mrs. Stella A. Kyle of Cripple Creek, president of the Woman's Relief corps of the department of Colorado and Wyoming gave a brief resume of the W. R. C. work saying in part:

"The Woman's Relief corps is an organization which works quietly and without ostentation, therefore the good work being accomplished is not wholly appreciated by the public. It is difficult to convey an idea of the kind and loving services rendered by the members who devote time and money, going as 'sisters of charity' to soothe the sick and dying, comfort the sorrowing, and assist and encourage the unfortunate.

"In fact, the society was organized in Denver with a membership of 58 and only a few dollars in the treasury. It was accepted by vote of the National encampment as the Auxiliary of the Grand Army of the Republic. The work of assisting the posts and organizing departments was started at once, and has steadily advanced until at the present time it stands as the greatest relief organization in the world, having a membership of over 136,000 with corps in every state and territory in the Union, except Alabama.

"During the past year, $131,495.54 was expended for relief, and since organization, over $3,000,000 has been expended. No unfortunate veteran or his family is neglected as all possible is being done to make them comfortable and happy.

"Patriotic teaching is being advanced and hundreds of dollars are expended each year in placing flags and holding patriotic exercises in our schools, thus doing much toward making more patriotic and better citizens of the pupils.

"The corps owns and has improved the Andersonville prison grounds in Georgia, and what was once a barren spot telling of horror and suffering, is now a beautiful park. It is one of the places of interest visited by thousands each year.

"Through the efforts of the W. R. C., homes have been established in many states where veterans and their wives may pass the declining years of their lives in peace and comfort, and substantial support is given many philanthropic institutions. My one great desire is, that Colorado may yet provide homes for the wives and widows of Union soldiers who draw a pension or would draw a pension in case of the demise of the husband. Wyoming has provided a home for the old ladies. Can our sister state afford to be more generous than we? See to it, comrades of the Grand Army and your noble auxiliaries, that action is taken at once."

Mrs. Sadie M. W. Likens of Denver, chaplain of the department of Colorado and Wyoming W. R. C., and past president of Farragut W. R. C., No. 1, made one of the stirring patriotic speeches of the evening, and gave some interesting anecdotes of Lincoln, not hitherto known.

Professor Roscoe C. Hill extended greetings from the Junior Order of American Mechanics. Mrs. Amanda Olmstead, substituted for Mrs. Charles McCoy, president of the Ladies of the G. A. R. who was unable to be present. Mrs. Florence M. Stote, president of the Daughters of Veterans, closed her eloquent remarks with Walt Whitman's exquisite poem, "O Captain, My Captain." Post commander, George Custer of G. A. R. No. 22, although indisposed, gave a few heartfelt words of greeting on behalf of the corps.

The guests were received by Mrs. Mina Stayton, president of Colorado Springs W. R. C. No. 4; Mrs. Anna C. Steed, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. Mary Triplett, Mrs. Emma Ormsby and Mrs. Emily Brown. The program was conducted by Mrs. Lura Allan, chairman of the committee of arrangements.

The music consisted of "The Star Spangled Banner," solo by Dr. Charles G. Woolsey, "O Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," solo by Mrs. Caroline M. Clancy, and a violin solo by Miss Helen Brown with Mrs. Ina Day at the piano. While there was an informal reception at the close of the program, fruit punch and wafers were served.

"Well, never mind, Pearl. Go on with the coffee and I'll do it," said the considerate mistress. "Where do they keep the soap?"—Red Hen.

Health and Beauty Talks

BY MRS. MAE MARTIN.

B. C. V.: It is to your credit that you wish to remain young looking as long as possible. A pleasing complexion goes far toward smoothing the way through life. The regular use of a good complexion cream does much to preserve the youthful contour of the face, keeping the flesh firm and the skin smooth and velvety. You can make a greaseless cream at home as follows: Take [illegible] your [illegible] ounces of white [illegible] and put it in half a pint of cold water, adding two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Stir and let stand over night before using. This cream jelly thoroughly cleanses the pores of the skin, taking out all dust, oil and grime. Its regular use tends to make large pores smaller and prevent blackheads. It keeps the skin soft, pliable and fresh looking, and removes tan, freckles and sallow pimples. Cold cream jelly can be used both as a wash cream and face cream, for it contains nothing that will cause a growth of hair. It is fine for chapped face and hands.

Miss M. J.: It is no wonder that your friends think you wear a switch. The light streaks in your hair are the result of shampooing with soap. All soap and many ready-prepared shampoos tinge a dull, streaky color into the hair and leaves it dry, dull and brittle. When you shampoo your hair be sure to use a good egg shampoo and then will make a big difference in your hair. The egg I mean is to be beaten well, diluted to one pint of water, and a cup of hot water. This shampoo will be prepared at a cost of [illegible] cents, shows the hair and scalp and makes it soft and fluffy. You can buy [illegible] at almost any [illegible] for it, or you may [illegible] at any drug store and [illegible] yourself.

Arline: The [illegible] of winter tends to pale [illegible] and beauty. [illegible] of [illegible] of energy, that [illegible] of "Oh, [illegible]" the use of [illegible] and [illegible] a torpid liver and accumulated impurities of the blood bring about sallow [illegible] blotches and a heavy, [illegible] eyes unlike [illegible] and [illegible] in her mirror. You must get all the fresh air you can, and let [illegible] into your rooms. Five minutes [illegible] each and before [illegible] take a tablespoonful of [illegible] in a glass of [illegible] and [illegible] for tea. [illegible] one-half teaspoonful of sugar and [illegible] of [illegible] kardene in a half pint of alcohol and add enough boiling water to make a full quart of tonic. When your stomach and liver are right and your blood pure, your step will be springy, your eyes bright and your complexion blooming and charming.

Gertrude J.: The dandruff, itching scalp and brittle, falling hair with split ends of which you complain come from a [illegible] scalp, due to the presence of germs. The surest way to get rid of these troubles quickly and restore the scalp to all its beauty is to shampoo twice a month with canthrox and rub into your scalp twice a week a quinine hair tonic made by dissolving one ounce of quinosin in half a pint of alcohol, then adding half a pint of cold water. Use this tonic regularly and it will [illegible] the dandruff and irritation. Keep your hair from falling out and make it soft and glossy.

Harriet R.: As the [illegible] so much to one's personal charm [illegible] careful about using [illegible] eye tonics. A good eye tonic is [illegible] for weak, tired and [illegible] eyes. If you will get an ounce of [illegible] and dissolve it in a pint of water, [illegible] of this in each eye daily, it will strengthen and brighten [illegible] till you probably will [illegible] to wear glasses. This [illegible] the dig me granulated eyelids [illegible] art of burn.

Ella G.: Winter is a trying time for those inclined to be stout, as [illegible] is to [illegible] simple and [illegible] will not only stop this [illegible] of flesh, but will reduce your weight if you are too fat. Just get [illegible] four ounces of parmelia. Dissolve it in a pint of hot water and take a tablespoonful before each [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] are given [illegible] and [illegible] to do [illegible].

Jane B.: [illegible] to soften and whiten the [illegible] that [illegible] four ounces of [illegible] half a pint of hot water and [illegible] of [illegible]. Apply a little of this lotion to your face, neck and arms, and it will leave your [illegible] beautifully. This is much better than [illegible] as it does not show on the [illegible] or rub off on [illegible]. Just give it a [illegible] before [illegible] and [illegible] for tea. [illegible] the [illegible] by [illegible] winds.

LATE HOURS PUNISH THE FAT FOLKS

It is the wisdom of ancient days that the fatter you become the quicker you weary. One sits out more dances than formerly, the flesh grows weaker after 1:30 a. m., in exact ratio to the lengthening of the waist measure. Fat is robbing you of fun, just at a time when you have the leisure and the cash for it.

You may reduce that fatty surplus and so revive your flagging energies, if you will do as I do—my way. You can take off a pound a day. If you wish, without causing weakness, or wrinkles, or calling upon exercising or dieting for help. For years fashionable fat people have been using the famous Marmola Prescription, ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. El Fa Cascara Aromatic, 2½ oz. Peppermint Water. Now these same proportions have been combined, most elegantly into a tablet, the Marmola Prescription Tablet.

You may take one tablet or more daily (without injury) as an offset to the fat, and a sure restorer of that springy, jumpy, lithesome agility and tireless endurance you have begun to learn to yearn for. Tender seventy-five cents to your druggist for a box, or write the distributors, the Marmola Co., 356 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Why not?

A DAINTY TOILET ARTICLE.

Every lady who desires to keep up her attractive appearance, while at the Theater, attending Receptions, when shopping, while traveling and on all occasions should carry in her purse a booklet of Cleo Oriental Ady Leaves. This is a dainty little booklet of exquisitely perfumed powder leaves which are easily carried and applied to the skin. It is invaluable when the face becomes heated and flushed and is far superior to a powder puff as it does not spill and soil the cloth.

It removes dirt, soot and grease from the face, imparting a cool delicate bloom to the complexion. Sent anywhere on receipt of Five Cents in stamps or coin.

What may be done at any time will be done at no time. If a thing is worth doing do not stand shivering on the brink, but jump in and do it.

It won't do to be perpetually calculating risks and adjusting nice chances. The man who waits, doubts and hesitates, and consults his neighbors and relations as to whether he should do this or whether he should do that, will find himself grayhaired before he attempts to do anything, and then he will discover that he has no time to follow anybody's advice or the strength of his early motive.

The man wanted in trying and putting off, if rightly utilized, would be sufficient to accomplish the most important of tasks, which, when thus shunned for the present because of some little unpleasantness or difficulty, are liable never to be performed. The evening wasted in putting aside for tomorrow the duties which should be performed today would often be given three or eight to accomplish all that has to be done. A Woman's Experience at Billy Muldoon's

Miss Edna Hall Gives a Graphic Story of Her Training With the Man Who Says He Is Health by Brute Force.

Edna Hall in the Kansas City Star.

WAS I game? I have been playing hide-and-seek with the question for days until a facing of cold facts will proved invigorating.

If being game means facing an undesirable situation, keeping a stiff upper lip, until a tyrant with no excuse for being one exacts a bluff equal to his awe, entitles one to a medal for pluckiness—why, I should wear one set in diamonds; and in all modesty I pin it on, and turn my face to a kindly disposed public, while I narrate my experience under the rooftree of William Muldoon, ex-prize fighter, trainer of men, possessed of all faculties saving the gift of sight—for he is blind to any higher thrill pulsing through the worn out tissue of his brothers save the free working of bone and muscle.

I wanted a good work-out, a breath of the country all done up in a bundle of busy activity. I wanted plain, wholesome food, taken at regular intervals. I wanted Muldoon—I was told—and I took him, spoon and all.

It requires courage to turn one's steps into the unexplored, especially if one is a woman, and unused to grappling situations and taking them by the throat.

I approached my destination unprotected by a coat-of-mail during the high noon of a summer's day—a sensitive woman, alive to all the sweetness of life, willing and eager to make use of any instrument of reasonable torture that could tune up tired nerves and put a keener edge on my enjoyment of all natural pleasures.

The First Meal in Training.

The Muldoon farm is on a hill, and the view from the porch is wonderful. As I drove up, I was pleasantly surprised to find a large, long, rambling house crowning the hill. It has a porch at each end, and these are connected by an immense gymnasium.

I was met by a large and powerfully built French woman. I asked to see Mr. Muldoon. He came in directly, spoke a few words to me in a quiet, gentlemanly way, and I was very favorably impressed with him.

I was shown to my bedroom—a small, dainty affair rejoicing in a single brass bed, a small rocking chair, a waiting night candle—all of which whispered of a quiet which is unknown in the busy cities.

At 6 o'clock I was summoned to supper. I entered a large room filled with small tables, and having one of larger proportions in the center. Professor Muldoon sat at the center table.

I found gathered in this pleasant room—pleasant because of the sunshine that boldly flitted through each window—sixteen men: sad-looking men, fat men, crazy, half-dazed men, silent, morose-looking men, were seated at the tables, plying their knives and forks with true workman-like skill.

The supper consisted of a large slice of cold veal, a goodly helping of macaroni, a dish of apple sauce, and a large glass of water for some and milk for others.

I ate most of it. It tasted good, and I am not hard to please along the line of food stuffs. After supper I sat on the porch, the ladies' porch, the portion of the house given to the use of men is widely separated.

A Brush With Muldoon.

Mr. Muldoon sat down with me for a time. He is a well-preserved man; and when in friendly conversation his voice is soft and well modulated, he entertained me by discussing the men and their troubles, which for the moment he had escaped from hearing. I guess pandemonium was loose in the men's quarters. He exhibited very little sympathy for the woes of his boarders. But I liked him better than the woman.

"They have no brains," he said conclusively.

The body does make slaves of us, no doubt, but even the most brutish body could know an uplift with a little love thrown into the kettle where they are wiggling about, trying to become the master of a very wilful mass of flesh and blood.

I went to bed at 9 o'clock—weary brains are ordered to cease fretting at this hour—and if they will but obey, the real soul of the place will speak to them in the swaying branches of the trees and in the fragrant breath of new mown hay that blows over the crest of each narrow, cot like room.

Monday morning dawned gray and misty, veiled so delicately that the beauty of sky and clouds was enhanced. But the loud voice of the French woman did not fit into the scene, although it was the instrument that summoned me into consciousness. It was 6 o'clock or near that. I was ordered to the gymnasium. When I was ready I descended the steps and sat outside, awaiting further orders.

The professor was putting the men through their exercises. He is truly a fine specimen of flesh and blood, without a sagging muscle. He has a firm, stalwart body, and his head is held proudly. They were an amusing crew and how they were ordered about—these seekers after health! He called them "nuts," "damn fools" and "brainless," until I wondered how they could stand it. They were not allowed to stop rushing for one minute until they were ordered to the bath—unless some fellow was "all in," when he was told to step aside and allowed to breathe for a moment. At the end of their training with large bouncing balls they lined up and stood a panting, dripping mass of quivering manhood.

I, too, was initiated into the ball throwing. I was never permitted to stop an instant until I was sent from the room, dripping wet and all out of breath. No telling what would have happened to me if I and the twin sisters of those same balls had not met before!

Part of the Discipline.

I put on my bathrobe, went up to the French woman, and was given hot water to drink. I was then instructed how I was expected to remove my shoes and clothes, and in the use of wash rags and soap.

They tell a story of one poor little chap who came there to gain flesh and strength. He was ordered to ride horseback, and was put astride an animal towering above the small creature attempting to mount him. And he would fall off—poor Muldoon was sorely tried, picked the chappy up and emphasized his disgust by calling him a fool as he plunged his shapely foot into the stirrup. Again he would fall off though his trembling knees clutched desperately the horse's shoulders.

"You damn fool!" cried Muldoon.

Again he tried—patiently, silently, he tried. But horseback riding was not to be one of his accomplishments. And again Muldoon vented his wrath upon the wee creature as he helped him up and set him astride the restless animal, which was vainly wondering what sore of a specimen this was, that so irritated his master. But at last the worm turned. He had tried his best to stay on his horse; he had tried to grip his legs firmly, and stick.

"Mr. Muldoon," he said, "I may be a fool—no doubt I am—perhaps I am even a damn fool. But I cannot see, Mr. Muldoon, how you can call me one when I pay you [illegible] they proceeded in silence the rest of the way.

No Partiality to Women.

At dinner I failed to drink the glass of water that had been placed by my plate. I met Professor Muldoon in the hall in the afternoon, and he addressed me in a loud, angry voice, which rang all over the upper floor.

"What do you think that glass of water was put at your plate for this noon? I wanted you to drink it."

I started to say that I did not know I was to empty my glass but he interrupted.

"Don't try to make excuses," he snarled. "Just use your brains, if you have any."

Tuesday morning started in much the same. A little longer exercise—a still greater gladness rising in my heart that exercise and I were well acquainted. At 10 o'clock I was ordered to be ready for a walk. I wore a man's blue flannel shirt, a black skirt, no corset and carried a cane. I was started off with eight men and walking beside a fat, bald-headed professor from Columbia university.

I did beat fully on my walk according to my own judgment. And the professor was smiling when I returned, so I guess I was satisfactory.

Wednesday morning I was called as usual, and went to work with great interest in the gymnasium. I caught and threw balls until I staggered—he encouraging me by telling me to go slow and keeping him company with other things.

I reeled, I ran, I blindly trotted forward and backward. I sighed; I cried. "O, professor, I cannot go any more!" and would give one mighty effort after the remark that sent me onward with renewed vigor.

"You see you can go," he would cry.

Then he ran beside me around the room. I backed down the middle off to the side, to the right, to the left, until at last I was as one blind. I could not see. I was dazed—having lost control. My teeth chattered as I smiled up at him when he ordered me to stop. He held my bath-robe and I put it on, unable to see. Feeling pallid and unreal as a ghost, I crawled blindly up the stairs. All control was gone, and I stumbled along on the verge of hysterics. I dropped into a chair, had a chill, and could not hold the glass of water I was given to drink. I was faint and dizzy, and as this feeling continued, I grew frightened and tried to talk to the French woman. But she was cross and showed such an unwillingness to give me a word of assurance that all was well with me, that I felt worse.

"I care nothing for your troubles," she said. "I have troubles of my own."

A Walk of Anguish.

At 10, I was ordered to walk as usual, although there was still a constant pulsing through my body. However, I offered no objection to the walk. I had come to be game, and I would go the gait.

I did say to Mr. Muldoon that I had a blister on my heel from the walk of the day before and asked him if he knew of something that would ease it.

"We pay no attention to such things here," he said, and I went to my room to make ready, imbued with the spirit of rising above that nagging blister. His assistant, Dick, took us on our walk.

We started—the fat professor, the morose, unsmiling man, Dick and I. Gradually we got into a wooded section, and then abruptly we came up to a steep hill—a straight up and down affair, or so it seemed.

We took it sideways. But after awhile I had to be steadied and was fairly pulled up the last few steps. When I reached the top I nearly fainted. I could not breathe, and suddenly I became conscious of the loud thumping of my heart.

Our walk only lasted an hour and a half, but it was a hard, uphill affair of rough climbing, or at least it appeared that way to me. At the last I was left to crawl slowly along the road to the house, but my two companions did not fare so well. The professor was ordered to take a swift sprint up the hill, and the sad, gloomy man was given a gentle tickle on his legs with Dick's cane, to hurry him along. After a mighty effort I arrived, gasping, tremulous and speechless. Again I drank hot water and took a cold bath, almost fainting in the bath.

As Rude as His Past.

The other night Mr. Muldoon was sitting in the corner of the porch.

I grew friendly, and told him how comfortable he looked. "But you lack what I have always thought was man's great delight," I said.

"What is that?" he questioned.

"A cigar," I answered.

"To pollute this fine air, I suppose!" He is a remarkable man, however, and more so when one knows what his early environment was. He runs a good bluff. But he ought to—he is 64 years old.

He may think it his duty to help beat down humanity—but how much greater would be his service, if he added to his iron will a little real love for his fellows! He may repair them—yes; and then send them forth brute bodies, ready for new and greater indulgences. Of course to be able to do even this is worth while, for a body refreshed may catch a sweeter thought of life, as it journeys through.

But they are all "nuts" and "brainless," according to Muldoon. And as far as his dealings with women is concerned, he is utterly unfitted to understand the delicate organism of a lady. The French woman is not capable of enlightening him upon the subject.

I had a miserable night after my strenuous day. I had thought to sleep dreamlessly—so tired was I. But I could not hold my legs down to the bed; and when I did doze off, I awakened in a cold sweat, and a chill shook me all over. I battled with myself for hours. I had a night of it, and came out vanquished.

At last I decided to turn my back on the place and return to New York. I was up the rest of the night, packed my trunk and when I was called, sat ready to leave.

"I am returning to New York," I calmly announced. "Kindly give me my bill."

Oh, how glad I was to pay that $71 and be gone.

I ate no breakfast, just drank water.

Farewell to Muldoon's.

It took as much courage to quit the place as it did to enter it. But Mr. Muldoon was smiling when I met him and told him with a careless wave of my hand that I was discontented and would go. I would not have let him know how I left for all the world. I was nerved up to put a good face on the matter and did not go into details. I had stuck through the four days, and was off.

When I reached the depot in White Plains, I collapsed. I had nerved myself up, and the letting down was tremendous. I was overjoyed to reach New York safely, although I actually fell off the train, bruised my leg, and finally reached the hotel in a fainting condition, where a doctor attended me. My heel was bleeding—worn to the bone—and I had to have it bandaged, and was unable to wear a shoe for 10 days.

I came out of my experience with no serious injury, although the doctor said another day would have put me in bed.

I have since met a woman who remained for only one "treatment," and then she took up her satchel and told the professor what she thought of him, and went home.

Professor Muldoon has met with success in this manner of treatment many times. Nature tends to heal—but too little has been told of harm that has come of his unbending severity and rude manners.

McCRACKEN & HUBBARD

The Grocer's Hot Shot.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

The Ruffinses were newly rich and had a beautiful country home in the most picturesque section of the north shore. Mrs. Ruffins was strong for society and naturally looked with small favor upon Mr. Ruffins' ambition to be a statesmen of the common local variety. He was making a good campaign, however, and after considerable real diplomacy induced her to give a garden party to which every voter of the district was to be invited. And at first Mrs. Ruffins made one emphatic exception.

"I'll permit every Tom, Dick and Harry to come," she said with emphasis, "but Blinks, the grocer, never can enter my house as a guest, politics or no politics. He's the most impertinent, uppish thing I've ever heard of. You should hear how he talked to me over the telephone last week."

"But Blinks, my dear, is a man of influence, and has many friends," explained Ruffins. "Of all men, I want him to be on hand." And it was after a long argument that Mrs. Ruffins at last gave her consent, which she did with the final shot: "Well, I'll have to let him know, just the same, that he is specially favored."

Blinks' demeanor at the garden party was one of perfect self-possession, as though the occasion held nothing at all unfamiliar to him. His utter lack of subservience nettled Mrs. Ruffins, so that she could scarcely restrain her anger. But at last her opportunity came when she found herself face to face with the grocer, who, with the local judge, was talking of conditions in the city, where Ruffins' extensive manufacturing business was located.

"I think I'd like the society life of the city," remarked the grocer.

"But, Mr. Blinks," sweetly punctuated Mrs. Ruffins, "in Chicago shopkeepers don't go in the best society."

Blinks looked at her and nodded a smiling acquiescence. "They don't here, either," he said.

The Modern Midas.

"What a lucky man you are," said the city relative, "to be able to raise all you need to eat."

"Yes," answered Farmer Cornstalk. "But the things are worth so much in ready money that I haven't the nerve to get extravagant and eat 'em."

In Summer Climes.

A bark canoe, and just we two,
Our lips in rapture met;
I guess they would have met again
But the gosh-darned boat upset.

The Great Comet.

From the Boston Transcript.

Five hundred years ago a celestial visitant like Halley's comet would have excited consternation. Astrologers would have volunteered predictions, learned and long, of what its appearance signified, and persons who were merely superstitious but did not claim to be scientific would have dreaded worse things than the masters foretold. Today, however, the astrologers, even, are inclined to hedge. Zadkiel of London refuses to prophesy until the comet shall be visible to the unaided eye. The line of its right ascension [illegible] be ones visible will Zadkiel adds, portentously, afford ground [illegible] It may affect the horoscopes of the rulers of Russia and Spain, and may indicate serious trouble in the far east, if not nearer to Europe. We trust no calamities will coincide or immediately follow this return of Halley's comet.' It is a pious aspiration, yet it carries an undertone of hopeful expectancy. If calamities do coincide or follow, whether in Russia, Spain, the far east or Europe, Zadkiel will be prepared to say, 'I told you so.'

Seaport for Switzerland.

From the Pathfinder.

Little Switzerland has always grieved because she had no seaport. Now, however, she has a port, in a certain sense. A steamer has come from London by sea and up the Rhine to Basel (also called Bale and Basle "Basel" being the German, the others the French name). This is the first trip of this sort ever made, and it is expected that in time quite a water traffic to Switzerland by this route can be built up. It is proposed to build a canal from the Rhine across the Alpine watershed to Lake Geneva, which would then give an outlet to the south by way of the Rhone. In this way there would be through water communication from the North sea to the Mediterranean.

S.S.S. BEST TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

There is no way to cure Catarrh except to purify the blood, and thus do away with the cause. The symptoms may be benefited by the use of washes, inhalations, sprays, medicated tobaccos, etc., and through the use of such treatment catarrh sufferers receive temporary relief and comfort. External and local measures however cannot have any effect on the blood, and therefore their use alone is of no real curative value. Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, and comes as the result of catarrhal matter and other impurities in the circulation. These morbid matters in the blood cause an inflammatory and irritated condition of the mucous membrane or tissue lining of the cavities of the body, producing an unhealthy secretion, ringing noises in the ears, stuffy feeling in the head and nose, headaches, hoarseness, bronchial affections, watery eyes, etc. S.S.S. is the best treatment for Catarrh because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. This medicine removes every particle of the catarrhal impurity from the circulation, making this vital fluid pure, fresh and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, because they are nourished with pure, health-giving blood, every symptom disappears, and soon S.S.S. produces a perfect cure. S.S.S. does not contain any habit-forming drugs, which really never can cure Catarrh, but often ruin the health. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free.

The Mimic World

J. FORBES-ROBERTSON,

Who is considered England's foremost player. Forbes-Robertson is now appearing in New York with unusual success in Jerome K. Jerome's "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a modern morality play. Forbes-Robertson's Hamlet is by many critics said to be the greatest portrayal of this famous role on the present day stage.

THE possibilities of Colorado scenery as stage settings are just beginning to be realized by the big theatrical producers. It is only in the last year that a manager of importance has considered seriously the resources offered by the Rockies for beautiful and effective stage pictures. Of course many a cheap melodrama has had its scenes laid in Colorado, but as far as the stage settings were concerned, the scene might as well have been in the Alps or the Andes. But last season David Belasco, master of stagecraft, produced on the stage, for the first time, a scene typically of the Rockies. That was in Eugene Walter's "The Easiest Way." And now this season Harrison Grey Fiske, whose production of "Salvation Nell," "The Bridge" and other recent dramas, has placed him on a level with Belasco, gives another view of the Rockies in John Mason's new play, "None So Blind," which is said to be one of the most beautiful and complete mountain sets ever staged. The light effects alone are said to have cost a small fortune.

It is said that Mrs. Fiske inspired the staging of this particular scene. Mrs. Fiske is a great admirer of Colorado and its wonderful scenic beauties. On her last trip west, this famous actress said to the writer: "How happy you must be to be able to live the year round in such a beautiful place as is Colorado Springs. To be continually at the foot of the grandest mountain range in the country, to have such a wealth of nature's own works spread within your grasp is truly a gift from the skies."

The concert of Ellen Beach Yaw, the singer with the phenomenal range and exquisitely beautiful high notes, at the Opera House Friday evening promises to be an unusual treat. Gifted by nature with a voice of extraordinary range, Miss Yaw, after her first tour, studied eight years under the best foreign vocal masters. She then returned to New York and after a single performance at the famous Metropolitan Opera House in Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," won such approval from metropolitan critics that she was engaged for a series of performances at that great opera house this spring. She takes Madame Sembrich's place in the coloratura wing of the Metropolitan.

Two dramatised novels are the theatrical offerings of the week. "Beverly of Graustark," a stage version of George Barr McCutcheon's popular novel, will be given two performances Tuesday, and Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s "The Clansman" will be seen Saturday matinee and night. Directly following these two attractions come Robert [illegible] Walsh in "The Test" and Max Figman in "Mary Jane's Pa."

What the Press Agents Say

ELLEN BEACH YAW THIS WEEK.

Ellen Beach Yaw, the noted coloratura soprano, will be heard in Colorado Springs for a single performance at the Opera House Friday evening. Miss Yaw is today recognized as the foremost American coloratura prima donna. Since her appearance in this city 10 or 11 years ago, she has been abroad, studying with the great vocal masters of Italy, France and Germany. When she sang here she was then only known as the phenomenal young girl from California who had a range never equalled. Then she studied for eight years abroad and last season returned to America, recognized abroad. She then appeared for a single performance at the Metropolitan Opera house in New York, singing the title role of Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," and created such a tremendous sensation that she has been engaged to sing there again this spring.

The seats for the Yaw engagement will be placed on sale about Wednesday. The managers of the concert in Colorado Springs have placed the prices within the reach of all and if this attraction is successful at this scale of prices it is very probable that others of the same high class will be brought here.

The New York Press of March 22, 1908, says of Ellen Beach Yaw and her interpretation of Lucia in her memorable performance at the Metropolitan, after which she became world-famous in a single night:

"The appearance of Ellen Beach Yaw for the first time at the Metropolitan Opera house was yesterday's operatic feature in New York. Miss Yaw's coloratura is more perfect than Tetrazzini's, her scales are lighter and more fluent; her staccato more delicate; her trills are much more flexible, precise and speedy. She performed the difficult cadenza in the "mad scene" with all the floritura heard so often from Tetrazzini, and the final high E-flat with exceeding ease and accuracy and much charm. Technically it was a more finished achievement than the other sopranos.

"In the 'mad scene' her histrionic performance had more than effectiveness of her tall, high-waisted figure, sprite-like, and her delicate features lent a peculiar fascination to her embodiment of the wild-eyed heroine of Scott's novel as Italianized."

MRS. W. W. O'BRIEN,

THIRD ACT SCENE FORY "BEVERLY OF GRAUSTARK."

George Barr McCutcheon's Popular Romance, Which Will Be Seen at the Opera House Washington's Birthday, Tuesday Matinee and Night.

"BEVERLY OF GRAUSTARK."

"Beverly of Graustark," the dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's well known novel of the same name, sequel to "Graustark," will be the offering at the Opera house Washington's birthday, Tuesday afternoon and night. This delightful little story of war, love and laughter is told in a clean wholesome manner and framed in a scenic picture that is artistically perfect. These two performances [illegible] day and mark its first engagement here.

Beverly is a natural [illegible] can girl, perfect picture of [illegible] lovely in this country [illegible] of femininity. She meets [illegible] possible scions of universe [illegible] visit to a mythical [illegible] somewhere (who cares [illegible] the eastern part of Europe. She is accompanied by her [illegible] typical southern [illegible] stage personage [illegible] mammies are. Beverly is deserted in the mountains by her [illegible] mistaken by a band [illegible] for the ruling princess of Graustark. She falls in love with the cadet of the land who later turns out to be the exiled prince of an adjoining state.

"Beverly of Graustark" is one of the whimsical, delightful romances such as young people as well as old people like to dream about. Here we see everything happen just as might be. We see a beautiful girl courted by a handsome, manly prince, surrounded by the wildest and most picturesque scenes that ever girl dreamed of. It is a play which everyone enjoys. As a matinee entertainment it should prove the most popular of all the matinee engagements in this city this season.

The cast which presents the piece is highly recommended by the eastern press. Gertrude Fowler is seen as the American girl. Miss Fowler has long been connected with plays of youthful and is said to be a very charming Beverly. Beatrice Wickham, last two seasons leading [illegible] for Blanche Walsh, will play the prince in a manner to make all matinee girls envy the beautiful American girl who wins her.

JOHN DREW,

The noted and popular actor, who is now on tour in his New York success, "The Inconstant George." It is expected that Drew will make a western tour late in the spring. "The Inconstant George" is an adaption from the French and is said to be the best play Drew has had in many seasons.

"THE CLANSMAN"

Of the hundreds of plays to fill up space on the billboards and in the advertising columns of the newspapers, few really score a permanent success. Most of them are talked about for a while, [illegible] and then forgotten. A few different types are still familiar and well-loved offerings such as "Way Down East," "In Old Kentucky," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or "Ben Hur." These latter strike a vein of sentiment and [illegible] that appeals to all the people of the time, and their continued [illegible]

"The Clansman," a story of the Ku Klux Klan, by Thomas Dixon, Jr., is the latest of the standard plays to come into this class but promises to surpass them all in the affectionate regard in the public and the term of its existence. Though only on the boards a little over three years, it has been witnessed by nearly [illegible] people. The demand for it [illegible] by what it feeds on. "The Clansman" bears a curious relation to that other favorite of half a century ago, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It is described by its author as an answer and a sequel to Mrs. Stowe's immortal work. As the other was the picture of the negro problem, so "The Clansman" presents the white or Anglo-Saxon side of racial questions.

Rooted in American soil and institutions, revealing the glorious struggle of the Southern whites against misgovernment and chaos after the Civil War, retelling a beautiful love story of the Blue and Gray, and sounding all the extraordinary appeal on the [illegible] of [illegible] that the white is the natural superior of the yellow, black or brown races and must forever maintain that supremacy and separateness. The "Clansman" has all those elements that make not only for an American but a world-wide success for many years to come. The visit of "The Clansman" to the Opera house next Saturday matinee and night is a [illegible] event of the theatrical season.

MAJESTIC'S NEW BILL AN UNUSUAL OFFERING

[illegible] week at the Majestic will, in view of the very low prices, may well be spoken of as an unusual offering and the [illegible] and enthusiasm which greets them indicates that the local public appreciates the fact. But once in a while there is something especially unusual, and such is the case for coming week when the bill will be headed by two of the strongest and most popular acts on the Sullivan and Considine circuit.

The Headliner is the Bohemian Sextet, justly famous as one of the most brilliant aggregations of vocalists now on the stage. The scene of their act is an artist's studio, the men dressing as artists, and this serves to give a truly Bohemian setting to the number. All of the members of the sextet are concert and operatic singers of demonstrated ability and they have a program of both light and heavy selections that are a rare treat. One of the gems is a duet, "We Never Miss the Sunshine," but it is only one of several.

Another act that is assured of a cordial reception is that of Steele and Edwards, who have been secured by Manager Tamares for a return engagement by special request. They were here last month and won immense favor by their beautiful musical numbers, interspersed with comedy that was comedy. The solo by Mr. Steele, with both accompanying on the mirambaphone, a melodious instrument which they devised, is alone worth the price of admission, and of Edwards' black face comedy work the same thing may be said.

The other numbers on the bill include a violin solo by Petroff, the brilliant Russian violinist, who is a member of the Majestic concert orchestra; a talking act by Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, which is praised by critics in other cities as clever and entertaining; a clever act by Inglis, Duffield and Ingalls, singers, dancers and society entertainers; a new series of interesting pictures on the Majesticope canvas, and a concert orchestra program of new and catchy selections. It is altogether too good for anyone to miss.

BJORNSTJERNE BJORNSON,

The famous Norwegian poet and dramatist, who is critically ill and not expected to live. Henrik Ibsen and Bjornson are the greatest of all Scandinavian writers, the difference between the two men being that Ibsen is universal, while Bjornson has devoted himself mainly to the conditions at home without making the world-wide appeal which his more noted countryman did.

What the Expressman Said

"Well, we went over an' I thought I'd set down for about five minutes and get the tickets anyhow you know and away, it was two hours before I knew where I was and the meat hadn't begun to get hard yet. Why, I never knew what sort of a thing a poet was before."

Mr. Cooke appears for the Y. M. C. A. Monday night at the Opera House as the fifth attraction of this popular course.

Plays and Players

"Seven Days" celebrated its 100th performance in New York last week.

A London rumor has it that John Hare, the noted English actor, will make a farewell tour of America next season.

Paul Bourge, the noted French dramatist, has just had another success in Paris with a drama called "La Barricade."

William Gillette has secured "The House of Temperley," by Conan Doyle. He will produce the play in New York next season.

Pauline Frederick, a prominent and a very promising young actress, has retired from the stage. Miss Frederick was recently married to a well known New York club man.

Eminently successful was Marguerite Clarke at a matinee performance in New York of "The Wishing Ring" that it is probable that after she completes her engagement in "The King of Cadonia" she will be seen in this whimsical comedy.

The name of the new German farce which Thompson Buchanan has adapted for the Shuberts, is to be "Lulu's Husbands." Mabel Barrison and Harry Conor, the original leads in Clyde Fitch's "The Blue Mouse," will be co-starred in the comedy.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," with Edith Taliaferro in the title role, will remain several weeks longer in Boston, where it had its premier performance a few weeks ago. This entertaining story is said to be an unusually pretty stage production and promises to be one of the big hits of the season.

"Seven Days," a farce from the navy by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is having a most successful run in New York and Chicago under the management of Wagenhals and Kemper. Avery Hopwood, who dramatized "The Clarion of William Ashe," is responsible for the stage version of the Rinehart novel.

Billie Burke will not appear in [illegible] next season as was originally planned. She has completely won New York playgoers by her performance of the title role of W. Somerset Maugham's "Mrs. Dot," and her manager, Charles Frohman, has extended her engagement [illegible] until the middle of the [illegible] after which she will make a long [illegible] the country, playing all the large cities.

"ALIGHTING STATIONS"

From the Chicago Examiner

"Hey there! Look out! Don't you know enough to keep your head inside the window while the dreamers are dreaming?"

That's the salutation the guests of the Blackstone Hotel are likely to receive in the near future. And it will all be on account of the new aeroplane station that is being built on the 20th floor of the hotel, where aviators can alight and check their flying machines while they have lunch.

"Really we are building a drome station on the 20th floor of the hotel," said Paul Gores, who is to manage the hostelry, as he airily discussed the matter. "It is a bird of an idea and we want to be the first people to undertake it in Chicago. Of course, the common people cannot take lunch at the drome station, as it will be built especially for high flyers and anything heavier than air will have a hard time in getting up there. Some people might think that this is a feathery proposition, but we know which way the wind is blowing and are going to soar as far as we like."

It was said that a detective with wings and a "heavier than air" head would be stationed at the dreaming room to see that guests in arrears did not take flight without first visiting the office.

place [illegible] on the door leading to divorce. In [illegible] a boy or girl to the mature, or any released criminal, or divorced debauchee, or half-brutified [illegible]ed, who cannot get the "[illegible]ead knot" tied? Reform marriage laws and there will be few divorces.

In this country thousands of wives are annually murdered by [illegible] there are more than [illegible] a million wives who have been abandoned by brutes; there are more than a million wives of drunkards and there are more than a million virtuous wives who are each year [illegible]gally [illegible]ated for the ills and sufferings which the immoralities of their husbands inflict on them. The laws have trapped these into marriage and should not refuse to release them when they wish to go free.

The women of this land are not crying for either a further regulation or restriction of divorce. At least ninety per cent of all the divorces are sought by women (85 per cent direct and the others through their abandonment of husbands in order to force on divorce.

The country would be justified in further regulating and restricting divorce if it could be shown that such has resulted in the moral elevation of the people or nations which try the same. Take Spain and Italy, where no divorce is allowed, and contrast them with Nevada and South Dakota, where divorce is very free. Few wives in those American states would tolerate such immoralities in their homes as practically every wife endures in the Spanish and Italian homes.

Europe generally has far more restricted divorce laws than the United States, but no sane person believes that there is more immorality in American homes than in those of Europe. We have one state, South Carolina, which denies all divorce, and it is the only state which has enacted a law fixing how much of his estate a husband may will to his concubine. This speaks its own story.

Only about one-fourth of our population have come from lands or from families which permit no divorce, and do not believe in divorce, and yet that one-fourth furnish over seventy per cent of the prostitutes, the paupers, the illiterates, and the inmates of prisons in this republic.

It is the desire to lift marriage to an equality with other contracts, and to place it on as high a plane as other human affairs that lead to divorce.

A uniform law is practically impossible of repeal or betterment, and if the proposed uniform divorce law is enacted it will stop all progress in reforming marriages—as striking a serious blow at civilization. But whatever it may do to stop [illegible] one-half of the marriage [illegible], this divorce law should be stopped until the women of the [illegible] from its passage.

2,000 Premium Votes

For New Subscriptions

In Addition to Regular Schedule This Week

THIS IS THE WEEK OF ALL GAMES THAT CANDIDATES LOW IN THE LIST CAN FORGE TO THE FRONT RANKS. OFFER HOLDS GOOD UNTIL 10 O'CLOCK SATURDAY NIGHT.

Campaign Now On in Earnest. Large Vote Polled

New subscriptions this week will count up in votes fast. Many good campaigns are being planned for this week. Watch for Surprises.

This is an excellent picture of the Hotel St. Francis, which is considered the world's greatest hotel, and during the three days' stay of The Gazette and Herald party at San Francisco this is where they will be entertained.

Many requests have been made by the contestants and their friends that the Premium Vote offer of last week be extended as on account of the bad weather some of the ladies could not take advantage of last week's offer.

On account of these requests The Gazette and Herald will give 2,000 Premium Votes this week in addition to the regular schedule for new subscriptions to either the Herald or Gazette or both and this offer should by all means be taken advantage of by every candidate in the contest who is determined to win.

It is the votes that you need to win Miss Candidate so why not take advantage of this offer. Those of you who are now in vote standing this week holds for the opportunity you need to put your vote up even with the leaders of your district.

A change in the leaders of District A will be noted today. Miss Fisher goes to first place, Miss Moore second and Miss Lusk third. There is certainly a strong race on between these three ladies. Several others are close behind them however, and this week's Premium Vote offer may make a great change in A District.

Miss Effie Peery takes the lead over all others in District B today with 96,040 votes to her credit. She is followed closely by Miss Nina Moore while there are several others in this district so near these two leaders that this week will no doubt be one of interest from a vote standpoint and will be watched with eagerness.

There is no change in the leader of District C today, Miss Bowles still holding that position, while Miss Hitt takes second place with an increase of 5,000 votes to her number since the last published list.

Miss Eula Miller of Canon City makes a good gain today in District F and goes to first place in that district.

Start out Monday, Miss Candidate, with the firm determination of gathering in new subscriptions and watch your vote grow. There are many of your friends and acquaintances who will not only be willing but enthusiastic in assisting you if you will call upon them. There are thousands of votes waiting for you, get them at once before some other candidate does.

The following is the standing of candidates up to 6 p. m. Friday, February 18

AMADIS OF GAUL

BY GARCIA ORDONEZ DE MONTALVO 1420~1480 (?)

A CLASSIC IN A PAGE

COPYRIGHT, 1910 BY JULIUS MOTTER. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

The story of Amadis of Gaul is one of those mediaeval romances which probably had their origin in the songs of troubadours and the mixture of history and fancy with which the professional story-teller amused his audiences in both the great hall of the castle and before the glowing fire of the kitchen. Like most of these romances, the tale of Amadis is fearfully long drawn out, and he had, according to his self-constituted biographers, more different adventures than one would think could be crowded into the lifetime of the ordinary man. He was supposed to be King of France, but went roaming about the world doing "deeds of high emprise" wherever he thought his services were needed. Each of his adventures constitutes a separate story, and the story of "Califia, Queen of California," has been chosen for this condensation, both because it is one of the best of the stories in the romance and also because it seems to have an American flavor to it in name at least. At the head of this page Montalvo is given as the author of "Amadis of Gaul" because of his redaction of the romance published in Spain somewhere about 1470 is the oldest undisputed version. It has been credited to many old writers and probably for at least a century before Montalvo the romance was popular in Spain.

As every one who has traveled at all knows the Terrestial Paradise lies at the right hand of the Indies, and near this delectable land lies an island called California. Hernan Cortez, sailing upon the waters of the unexplored Pacific, found a land which he named California. But it was, apparently, not the land which had been known to Amadis of Gaul, that great fighter and that chivalrous gentleman who was to the continent of Europe what King Arthur was to the island of Britain. One evidence that the country which Cortez discovered and named California is not the same island spoken of in the story of Amadis is that in the California of Amadis there were only women inhabitants.

Queen Califia reigned over that land and she was an Amazon. Many wars did she make with her women soldiers upon the neighboring countries and took captive many men. But the men were kept captive only a short time and then they suffered death. The male children born among the Amazons were killed at birth, the female children were brought up carefully and trained to the profession of arms. All the Pacific was in terror of Queen Califia. She was a sea power in her time and her ships were the Dreadnoughts of the age. It must not be supposed that because Queen Califia and her Amazons slaughtered the "mere men" they had an inherent dislike to the species. The fact was that they—the queen and her subjects—were of such rugged build that they could not endure for any length of time men more puny than themselves.

Many nations of fighting men made war upon Queen Califia, but the shores of California were high and rugged, with frowning cliffs and pounding surges; and when by any exercise of endeavor the armies of men made a landing upon these stern shores the queen and her Amazons came out and gave them battle, so that there were no survivors, except such of the captives as were selected to be killed thereafter. In the fights with her enemies Queen Califia employed to great advantage a trained corps of griffins. These griffins were caught when young by the women and trained to war by them. The griffins were fed mostly upon men who came to war with Califia or men whom she had captured on some of her naval expeditions. Also all the male children born among the Amazons were fed to the fighting griffins. But over these fierce and untamed beasts the Amazons had a complete mastery, so that while they eagerly devoured men and boys, women they dared not harm. These griffins had wings and could fly to great heights. If more food of men and boys were given them than they had an appetite for they would take the victims in their claws, and, soaring high up, would drop them to the earth and kill them that way. Queen Califia was of huge stature and of marvelous beauty. She was dark, as were all her women, almost black in fact, but so blooming that no man could see her and not love her.

But ambition, more than love moved the heart of the voluptuous queen. Rumors from time to time came to her of great wars going on in the world beyond the straits of Anian that encircled her island. Ever she longed to take part in those struggles. Now there came to her, through some of her captives, stories of the great fight which the Paynims were making for possession of Constantinople and which attempt of the Moslem world to end the Roman Empire of the East. Two worlds, that of Asia and that of Europe, seemed to be about to try conclusions upon the shores of the Bosphorus. Queen Califia called a council of her chief fighting women and explained to them what a field for glory lay in this struggle.

Confident of the prowess of her women troops and of the powers of the griffins, Queen Califia had a great longing to take part in the struggle. She knew little what was meant by the term Christians and Paynims, but she knew there was a great war going on and no doubt conquering ever longed more for military fame and had a great belief in her military prowess than Califia. When the great Council of the stern and Byzantine had a decision to make the matter before them. She told them how the men of California ought to be made to feel through the world, she told them that if they stayed at home or returned only with these flying griffins for the capture of men they would die unwept to the outer world. It was like being dead to remain in this land. So the council approved and Califia prepared her ships and her armies for this distant enterprise.

[illegal and resplendent in the morning light. The fiery beasts which they were to ride were brought from the ships, all magnificently caparisoned. Also the griffins were brought forth and landed—those cruel destroyers of men.

The griffins were brought ashore in cages and when they were liberated flew forth hungry and panting for the flesh of man. They came pouring forth in a throng, for they had eaten nothing since they began their long voyage from California. They flew to the ranks of the defending Christians and caught up the warriors in their claws. The Paynims, though not allowed to leave their camps, watch from far off the work of these destroying beasts. It was a pleasant sight for them to see the writhing of their victims in the talons of the noxious beasts. The sultans of the Turks shouted with joy. All the lances which the Christians hurled could not penetrate the scales of the griffins. The monsters dived over the walls of the city and brought up victims from among the ranks of the besieged at every dive. Seated on the backs of them fierce war beasts, Queen Califia and her Amazons watched the fight and shook their spears in air. The defenders of the city made a sortie, but fled back in terror before the attack of the ravaging griffins. Satiated with human flesh the griffins began to grab up men and drop them from a great height to kill them that way. At last upon the ramparts of Constantinople and upon the pavements not a living soul could be seen.

The great queen cried out with a loud and terror-striking voice: "Now, the city is taken, now do we of California advance to conquest and glory!" Then she ordered scaling ladders to be brought, and she and her Amazons beat the assault of the historic walls. Califia thought it was to be an easy conquest, but she had not counted upon her allies the griffins. Having killed every Christian in sight, these beasts now turned upon the Turks and began to catch them up in their claws, to drop them from great heights and thus griffins. "Send hither your men," cried she, "to help subdue these vile birds which have dared to disobey!"

The Moslems rushed from their camps and were quickly swarming upon the walls. But the fearful winged beasts turned upon them and they went back to their tents qut her than they came. Califia saw that the assault was hopeless for the time being, at least. "Get your griffins back to their cages!" she cried to the keepers of the fell animals. And after some trouble the flying beasts were lured or forced into their cages. It was a rather humbled and crestfallen queen who that night met the chiefs of the Pagans in council.

My coming has been to your harm," she said to them. But let me know thee better and we will be friends. To improve you, with your forces shall assault the walls while I and my forces attack the gates of the city." Soon the morrow the Pagans assaulted the walls, and before the gates appeared Califia and her Amazons. The Christians defended the walls with vigor, throwing down the Paynims as they mounted and killing many. And the dusky queen, after riding before the great gate the gate was thrown open and forth leaped a host in battle array, led by Norandel, half brother to Amadis of Gaul.

Straight to Norandel rode Califia, and the two warriors met with such a shock that the lances were shivered. Then they drew their swords and fought right valorously, inflicting upon each other many cruel wounds. On either side the followers of the chiefs and the knight came forward and there was a great combat terrible to see. Soon the battle ceased always where except about the spot where Califia and Norandel fought. Califia raged like a lioness, and it is hard credible the story of this valiant knights she met. She bethought herself the mighty nobles of Constantinople, who came spurring to the rescue of Norandel, and her strength and her skill in arms struck terror to the Christian ranks. Among the great nobles who witnessed this fight were Sir Talanque and Sir Manoli the latter the son of Childadan, King of Ireland.

These two knights seeing Norandel sorely pressed came to his rescue thinking to save him from the amazon. The knights had closed in combat with the Queen of California and were getting the better of her when down to her rescue came riding her stately Liota. Liota was, next to Califia the bravest and the best warrior of California. So fierce was the charge of Liota that she rescued the Queen, her sister, from the peril which surrounded her and brought her in safety back within her own ranks. All day the battle raged, and as night came down upon the hills and valleys of Byzantium the two forces withdrew. The city was safe for the time at least. Great had been the slaughter on both sides. Of the knights of the city all were slain and bolted except one. This gate had been left open for the bringing in of the wounded from the force which had made the sortie, and by some oversight it was not locked after this duty had been performed. Some spies of the Pagans found out the situation, and that night one hundred Paynim warriors passed through the gate, thinking to take the city by surprise. These Paynim warriors were followed up by two hundred more sent by Califia, and other forces were in readiness to support the venture hoping if the plan proved feasible.

Queen Califia now withdrew her warriors to the ships disappointed and defeated. While the Pagans held a council of war by themselves. They knew that the chief reason that neither they nor the Christians of the city was that with the walls, fighting and directing the battle was Amadis of Gaul. Many days before had that brave knight had in [illegible] when he came to help [illegible] defend the great city. The [illegible] of the Pagans drew up a decree which they next morning had read before the walls after the trumpets had sounded a parley. The defiance to [illegible] was couched as follows.

Ricalvo Soldat of Leonis defender of [illegible] the enemy [illegible] and that most radiant and powerful Queen, Califia Lady of the Island of California, more in great Sandaya, greeting and precious stones appear make known to you, Amadis of [illegible] knight of the Great Serpent that we have come hither to destroy this city of Constantinople and gain distinction in honorable war. Having heard of your prowess and bravery we hereby offer you fight to the acceptance to you, person to person in individual combat. All this to be in the presence of the nations the victor to be victors for all and the vanquished for all. And if you accept not this challenge then shall your name be [illegible] and your fame become ours forevermore.

A council of the Christians was called and it was requested that a messenger, duly accredited, appear in behalf of the besieged before this council to discuss the terms of the proffered combat. It was thought best that one of the amazons or [illegible] this messenger as the terror of the fighting women and of their savage beasts was not the least of the wants of the force before the city, and one which could not lightly be disregarded. So Califia was called from her ships, and, recovering from her temporary dejection, she longed to have one more try at those stubborn walls. Especially did she wish for a personal combat with this Amadis of Gaul, of whom the Paynim told her so much. So Queen Califia had one of her maid of honor to act as messenger to the Christian council. This maid of honor was very black and very beautiful. Magnificently was she attired and great was her stature. Through the gates of the city riding one of their fiery steeds which the [illegible] of Califia had subjected to the use of the Amazons, and she was [illegible] with all [illegible] pomp. A party of Christian knights and citizens met her and desired of her the message. [illegible] the Queen of the Amazons [illegible] to the Christian [illegible] to the [illegible] to the gates of the city, [illegible] should be the [illegible].

[illegible] the Amazon [illegible] of the Christian council, the feminine part of the great queen began to make the [illegible], and she worried all night as to what sort of costume she should wear to [illegible] the best on when she appeared before the heroes of Constantinople. At first she thought she would go in armour and strike terror to the hearts of the Christians. Then she said to herself: "Men best like women in the habiliments of their sex. I am a warrior, it is true, and a knight, too. But also I am a woman."

The result of the queen's cogitations was that when morning dawned she arrayed herself not in the panoply of war, but in her best and most gorgeous feminine apparel. She put on costly robes and placed upon her head a great crown set thick with such jewels as could be found nowhere but in California.

Then she mounted her strange beast and rode to the gates of the great city. The defenders received her with fitting ceremony, and all the nobility and knighthood of the capital came out to meet her. When her eyes fell upon Esplandian, she cried out: "Ah gods, I knew not there was such a man!"

But the Queen was angry with herself for feeling such a sentiment. She knew that she must go quickly back to the camps of the ships or her warrior nature would be overpowered up in her nature feminine. Califia felt that she was made to lead armies, not to love men. So, sternly and calmly she addressed Esplandian: "Knight of the Great Serpent, I perceive that you possess two qualities to an extent such as never before have I seen possessed by man—namely, beauty and courage. This day shall you find in me the cold a worthy foe in the person of the Sultan of Liquia. As for me, I shall find a foe worthy of my sword in your father, Amadis of Gaul! If from this combat we both come back alive we will not fight such a war until I have seen and talked with him. Go thou back to the city. Tell the king thereof that I require safe conduct to the place on the morrow that I may see the son of Amadis."

Amadis was in the midst of his council when the messenger arrived. He laughed when the message was delivered. "Women may be conquered other than by the sword," he said. "how stands the matter to you, my nobles?" "By all means let the great queen appear," replied the council. "We are anxious to see the most wonderful woman in all the world."

When the messenger returned and told Califia of the acceptance of her proposition by the Christian council, the feminine part of the great queen began to make the [illegible], and she worried all night as to what sort of costume she should wear to [illegible] the best on when she appeared before the heroes of Constantinople. At first she thought she would go in armour and strike terror to the hearts of the Christians. Then she said to herself: "Men best like women in the habiliments of their sex. WANTED MALE HELP.

IF you don't like your work, read this advertisement clear thro' sh.

You can't lose your position in the navy if you behave. Pay day always comes in good or bad times. No strikes. No layoffs.

You always get the same splendid things to eat, and plenty of it, whether the cost of food is high or low.

You always have warm clothes and a clean, warm, comfortable bed, and a warm living room in the day time. In fact, the fleet spends most winter days in tropical waters.

If sick, you have the finest medical care free. If disabled you get a pension. If you stay in the navy thirty years, you can retire on three-fourths pay for the balance of your life.

Work isn't hard and average pay of enlisted men is $35 per month. At end of month you have $35.00 left, as navy pays nearly all your living expenses. In civil life do you have $35.00 left each month? And there's splendid chance of promotion to Chief Petty Officer at $77.00 per month, or to Warrant Officer, at $2,400.00 per year, with nearly all expenses paid.

Some save enough money while in the navy to start in business for themselves. Others have stayed in thirty years, saved small fortunes, and retired on three-fourths pay.

Should you return to civil life, you'll find yourself an able fighter in the great game of life, for navy physical training makes you strong, erect, athletic. And navy life educates you by showing you some of the United States—may be some of the world; by throwing you into the company of educated officers and fine young men; by teaching you a trade, perhaps, and by giving you much time for study. Four navy years are better than four college years, many think.

Go to a Recruiting Office today. Have a private talk with the officers and bluejackets there. You'll find them glad to see you and ready to tell you everything. If you don't join that makes no difference. [illegible] today—not tomorrow, to-day. You'll be glad you did. Nearest Recruiting Office to you is Postoffice Bldg., Pueblo, Colo.

If you can't go, write for a free booklet which tells everything about a Bluejacket's life in a simple, interesting way, and is full of pictures.

Just think what a small bit of trouble it is for you to get a pencil and post card and write for this book. Then think what this small bit of trouble may do for you. It may put you on the road to your life's success. Don't put it off. You'll forget it if you do. Send for it now. Also send names and addresses of four or five boys you'd like to have join the navy with you. We'll send them books, too. Bureau of Navigation, box 230, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

"INVESTING for Profit" is worth $10 a copy to any man who intends to invest any money, however small, who has money invested unprofitably, or who can save $5 or more per month, but who hasn't learned the art of investing for profit.

It demonstrates the real earning power of money, the knowledge financiers and bankers hide from the masses.

It reveals the enormous profits bankers make and shows how to make the same profits.

It explains how stupendous fortunes are made and why they are made, how $1,000 grows to $22,000.

IOWA TUNNEL RESUMES

[illegible] Employed in Mine Again; Mill to Begin Soon; Lodge Meeting.

[illegible] Arrangements were completed yesterday whereby the Iowa tunnel [illegible] will again be put in operation. [illegible] quit their labors about the mill which crowns the [illegible] around the mill to [illegible] and hoist, but [illegible] operations. There are employed in the mine, including the [illegible] and at the mill about 25 men are at work.

Karl A. [illegible], C. T. Hall and William Brownfield, of Cripple Creek, directors of the Iowa Consolidated Mining company, arrived on Tuesday evening and will [illegible] the Iowa mine. It is the [illegible] of the pumping mines of the district and has held a high value for [illegible] and has [illegible] with [illegible] ore. The [illegible] is [illegible] at the [illegible] mill, and it is the determination of the [illegible] to place the property on a paying basis on a large scale. Next week a large force of [illegible] will be put to work and kept at it [illegible].

It is planned that as soon as the [illegible] will permit work will be started on the [illegible] tunnel of the Gold King Extension group of six valuable claims [illegible] immediately east of the Gold King mine and extending [illegible] to the [illegible] end of the [illegible] Summit mine. WINTER PLACER OPERATIONS

Reliance Dredge Working on Rich Bedrock in French Gulch Near Breckenridge.

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo., Feb. 19.—The Reliance Gold Dredging company's boat has been [illegible] daily at work dredging the rich gold-bearing gravel deposits of French gulch since last autumn. The boat is working down stream to get into unworked ground, which by drilling [illegible] is known to be rich. The boat is operated by electricity and is kept warm by steam.

The thorough overhauling and repairing which the Reliance gold dredging boat of the French Gulch Gold Mining company is at present receiving will make it equal to a new boat. It is understood that Manager Rolling will start the boat to dredging early in April.

Wright and Lipp, lessees of the Standard, on Gibson hill, have two pay streaks opened up in the drift from the shaft at a depth of 45 feet. The large streak is 12 inches wide and consists chiefly of a heavy lead-silver-gold ore running up to 70 per cent in lead, the other streak about six inches wide, but is the richest and assays up to 124 ounces in silver, 40 per cent lead and carrying from four-tenths to two ounces in gold per ton. The returns from the last [illegible] of ore showed a net value of $[illegible] per ton.

The West Side Mines company recently [illegible] a surface electric tramway from the mill to the ore bins and dumps of the old Orphan tunnel, and will now be able to [illegible] the low grade ore dumps. Regular shipments of good grade concentrates are being made by the new management.

The Sallie Barber mine continues to be an important shipper of zinc and iron sulphide ores.

SWARTHMORE ADVANCING.

[illegible], Colo., Feb. 19.—The Swarth[illegible] company is now pushing the main tunnel to connect with the Enterprise shaft using big drills, engines being supplied by the new water power plant which is now in operation.

The bulkers are [illegible] from four to six feet a day through a dyke, last week penetrating through a six-inch quartz stringer which ran three ounces in gold and was [illegible] to a three-foot vein of mill ore. They will not drift on this vein until connection is made with the main shaft.

TUNNELS DEVELOP CLEAR CREEK MINES

VICTORIA RAISE TO FROSTBERG MEARING GOAL

Heavy Production will Follow Connection Large Operations Through Wilcox Bore.

GEORGETOWN, Feb. 19.—What will result in one of Clear Creek's former producers being rejuvenated at an early date is the putting through of the raise from the Victoria tunnel level to connect with the Frostberg workings above. This raise has been carried for nearly 400 feet and for almost the entire distance a vein of lead and lead-zinc ore has been followed that is from six to 18 inches wide.

B. J. Martion, manager of the Clear Creek Mining and Leasing company, states that it will be necessary to break about 150 feet of ground before the connection will be made. In the meantime, however, drifting is to be started from each 100-foot station for the opening of ground to permit of stoping.

Gibson & Co., operating in the upper workings, are stoping on a streak of ore that is from eight to 12 inches wide, and recent shipments returns averaging 300 ounces in silver to the ton have been received in settlement.

Louis Just is the other successful leaser on the property, and has been maintaining shipments for the last two years. The ore is milled in two classes bringing returns of from 40 to 60 and from 150 to 175 ounces in silver to the ton, respectively.

Work Through Wilcox Tunnel.

Heavy development has been started at the Wilcox tunnel by the Argentine Central Railroad company, which recently secured a long time lease on a block of the Saratoga vein, owned by the Santiago Mining & Tunnel company. A drift is to be extended 1,000 feet, with stopes at frequent intervals. Overhead is 700 feet of virgin territory to explore and a heavy output will be made this year, it is believed.

With the completion of a spur of the track to the Santiago mine, three-quarters of a mile, that property will unquestionably become one of the big producers in the upper Clear Creek district. Large bodies of high, low and medium grade ore are exposed throughout the five levels, and it is stated by those familiar with the property that an output of 100 tons daily could be maintained for two years, if no further development was done.

Miller Tunnel in High Grade.

The Miller tunnel, on Tycon mountain, is one of the best showings in the district. Work has been in progress for three years almost without interruption, occasional shipments having been made. In the drift being run on the vein a body of high grade smelting ore has been followed that is six to 18 inches wide, and has over $75 per ton in gold, silver and lead. This vein is three km of the west of the Choctaw, from which a shipment valued at $70,000 a short number of tons. The workings are now in readiness for extraction of a large output, but the owner is making an effort at purification pending an advance in silver.

The silver mine in Clear Creek county is becoming larger development company than is the Capital here. About men are at work and within 30 days about 100 will be employed. Manager [illegible] is for the opening of the vein and before the first of it is believed, the property will take rank with the heaviest producers in the county.

The Gold Dirt mine, on Saxon mountain, a mile east of Idaho Springs, four [illegible] inches has been uncovered which [illegible] $50 to $60 a ton. The [illegible] will be extended to the [illegible] of the Silverado, and [illegible] the rich ore [illegible] in Silver Plume mountain.

KANSAS CITY MEN BUY TWELVE MINING CLAIMS

Work Begun on Group in Bay State and Enterprise Districts—Sinking on Topeka.

CENTRAL CITY, Colo., Feb. 19.—A deal has been made during the past week whereby Kansas City (Mo.) people have become the owners of a group of 12 lode claims situated in the Bay State and Enterprise districts. The property was formerly owned by John Brohl of this city, and is located on the north side of North Clear creek, north of Black Hawk. The new purchasers have incorporated as the Colorado & Eastern Development company, and John Brohl has been appointed manager. The property is credited with a fair production of silver and lead ores of a good grade during the earlier days, but of late years has only been worked in a small manner by local leasers.

Active work has been commenced, the tunnel being retimbered and a new track put in. The main tunnel workings are in a distance of 400 feet, and will be continued as a crosscut proposition to cut the entire group of veins, which are well defined and show up good on the surface. It is the intention of the new company to prosecute developments on a liberal scale.

Operations at the Topeka mine in Russell district, owned by Henry P. Lowe, are being carried on extensively in all portions of the property, and results are satisfactory.

The shaft is down 935 feet, and arrangements are now being made to sink another lift of at least 100 feet, which would give a block of ground that high the whole length of the property to be worked, and would open up at a greater depth the ore bodies upon which work has been carried on for 30 years.

Ress & Co., who are leasing on the Iron mine in Russell district, received returns a few days ago from smelting ore shipped to the Modern smelter which went 6.75 ounces gold, a few ounces silver and some copper, the net returns being $125 per ton.

A gold retort weighing 97 ounces was left at the Rocky Mountain bank last week by the Fifty Gold Mines corporation, operating the Gregory-Bobtail group of mines at Black Hawk, representing a week's run of milling ores from that property. The gold was worth $1,700 and was sent to the mint to be refined.

The O. K. & Casto Gold Mining company, in which local people are interested as owners and operators of the Casto and Dean properties on Winnebago hill, has decided to replace the quartz mill with 10 rapid-drop stamps and expects to have the new mill running inside of the next 30 days.

PORTABLE SEPARATOR.

MONTROSE, Colo., Feb. 19.—Mining by small operators and prospectors is destined to be revolutionized if an invention which is now being perfected by Frank Thompson, a Montrose man, proves a success.

This invention is a portable ore separator which can be transported by wagon or burro. Thompson says his machine will separate eight varieties of ore at one operation. It will be profitable to take this machine into isolated localities, which cannot be reached by the ordinary means of communication.

Thompson was the original locater of the rich group of claims which now comprises the Sunnyside mine at Ouray, but he realized little from them. The Sunnyside property has produced more than $4,000,000.

TO OPERATE LOGAN.

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 19.—A. Coan has left for Baltimore to confer with the Fidelity & Deposit company of Maryland, the owners of the Logan mine, regarding plans for operation of the property by the Clinton Mining company, the holding corporation. The mine was leased by the late S. B. Dick, owner of the Colorado & Northwestern railway, now the Denver, Boulder & Western, and has produced over $10,000. Since Dick's death it has been worked in a small way by lessees, but it is understood that upon the return of Mr. Coan it will be worked on an extensive scale and the shaft sunk several hundred feet.

ACTIVITY INCREASES AROUND LEADVILLE

IOWA GULCH AND ROCK HILL ARE BUSY SECTIONS.

Huston Tunnel Being Developed on Extensive Scale Improvements on Colonel Sellers.

LEADVILLE, Colo., Feb. 19.—Two of the sections of the local district that promise to be unusually active during the coming summer are Rock hill and Iowa gulch.

Both sections are working more men and mines now than they were last summer when the weather and other conditions were more favorable. All active properties are preparing for greater activity during the summer.

The most promising proposition in Iowa gulch is the Huston tunnel, upon which extensive improvements have been made in the last few months. The Ella Beeler has also been active and gives indications of becoming a paying mine. Arrangements are now under way for early resumption of operations on the Helena on an extensive scale. The Lillian has always been the leader in that section and unless one of the new mines develops unexpectedly in the near future will continue to be so.

On Rock hill the Coon Valley will be one of the most active properties during the next few months. The La Plata and several shafts of the old Nisi Prius property are likely to add to the industry on that hill. Other shafts will be opened soon, it is announced.

New Shaft on Colonel Sellers.

Extensive improvements are planned by the Empire Zinc company on the Colonel Sellers mine its principal local possession, in California gulch.

According to plans of the company announced yesterday, the new three-compartment shaft, just east of the present No. 4 shaft, will be sunk. Work on the improvement will be started at once.

The company is at present working No. 4 shaft. Three others are open. This will make the fifth. When it is completed a production of 250 tons of ore per day will be possible. It is expected that the property will be operated up to this capacity.

The principal product of the mine is zinc, and under the prevailing price of that metal operations there should be profitable. Following the adoption of the new tariff last August, zinc started to advance. Producers met this with a resumption of zinc production. With increased activity in building and similar lines of industry in consequence of returning prosperity, the demand for this metal will be maintained and the price will hold out.

In view of this, the Colonel Sellers owners plan to make their improvements permanent and expect to continue operations indefinitely.

This arrangement will provide for the employment of about 30 men.

Hopemore Shipping Regularly.

Steady shipments are going from the Hopemore property on Yankee hill to the Modern and other Denver smelters. The principal product of the mine is an iron sulphide, which meets with ready sale. Hopemore is operating under lease to Will Harvey and associates. Patrick Barry is the superintendent of the work. About 300 tons per month have been shipped during the winter.

Already three cars have been loaded from the Dinero property during the first of the month. Superintendent John Harrison hopes to have this month's output exceed that of January, which was over 250 tons.

The Dinero is now one of the most promising propositions in the district. The discovery of gold in the ore a short time ago has served as an impetus for increasing activity.

The present operations are being conducted in a drift which has been driven a distance of 460 feet north from the breast of the main tunnel, which is 3,400 feet from the portal. The entire breast of the drift is in ore. The vein carries from 15 to 30 ounces of silver and about half an ounce in gold. Some of the ore runs higher. The average value is from $20 to $25.

The Alps Aztec tunnel, at the extreme head of South Evans gulch, is now in the hill a distance of 445 feet. Steady operations have continued there throughout the winter. A number of promising veins, bearing gold, have been cut, and these have not yet been developed. The mine presents a very encouraging outlook.

MINE IDLE 12 YEARS IS TO BE REOPENED

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 19.—R. A. Duncan of Denver has commenced operations on the Protection mine near Ward, which has been idle for 12 years or more. The property was a good producer in early days. Much activity is evinced in the mines of Ward, the traffic manager of the Dilver, Boulder and Western railroad reporting more business from the camp this winter than for any like period for several years.

GIVES BOSTON SECOND LARGEST TRUST COMPANY

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—The second largest trust company in the United States came into existence today with the merger of the City Trust company with the Old Colony Trust company under a capital of $3,500,000 and a surplus of $10,000,000. The new institution, which the accounts are transferred, will have deposits aggregating nearly $70,000,000. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., will be chairman of the executive committee.

HESITATION MANIFEST IN STOCK MARKET

Active Bidding of Prices During Week Believed to Have Been Due to Campaign Against Shorts.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Operations in the stock market today were conducted with an eye to technical conditions of the speculation rather than with a view to more substantial considerations bearing on intrinsic values or earning power. The extent to which the recovery has run and the rapidity with which it has been accomplished plainly had an influence in inducing some doubts and hesitation in the pursuit of the upward movement.

The reactionary tendency of Reading was of especial influence in that direction owing to a leading part that stock has played in the upward movement. The absence of new developments and the lack of confirmation of earlier rumors which helped its advance gave encouragement to the supposition that the necessities of an uncovered short interest were playing an important part in the strength shown by the stock.

Suspicion was aroused, for that reason, that running in of uncovered shorts was the purpose of the aggressive bidding up of prices. Aggression directed against the shorts would include, as a corollary, the desire to sell stocks at the advanced prices on the part of holders of securities. The reduction of a short interest, coupled with the accumulation of speculative holdings looking to sales at a profit, are conditions leading so obviously to a weakened technical position that the growing caution of the movement was the rational consequence.

Additional information corroborated the opinion that improvement was taking place over the conditions dreaded in the recent stock market depressions. The cheerful tone of the mercantile reviews voiced a conviction that fears of a severe trade recession were groundless. The hopeful expressions by Charles M. Schwab over steel trade prospects seemed to have a reassuring effect on that subject.

The weak closing of the stock may have been due to a premonition of this showing.

Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $1,612,000. U. S. 2's, 3's coupon and 4's coupon advanced 1-4 per cent on call during the week.

GRAIN PRICES ADVANCE ON SPECULATIVE DEMAND

Downward Trend Checked When Shorts Begin to Cover and Substantial Rallies Ensue.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Grain prices were nervous and erratic today, declining early and advancing in the final half on a general rush of shorts to cover, wheat leading the other grains in both decline and recovery. Provisions, governed by lower hog prices, fell off in the first half and later gained slightly but finished generally lower than yesterday.

A rush of sellers to the wheat pit caused a decided drop in prices after a comparatively firm opening. The initial weakness of corn, which also sagged sharply, contributed to the decline. The selling was overdone, however, and when shorts sought to cover little grain was in sight and prices rapidly recovered and attained higher levels under the strong demand. The early decline was approximately half and the advance carried prices up from 1 1-4 to 1 3-8 above the low point, May ranging from $1.12 3-4@7-8, to $1 14 1-8@1-4 and closing 1c up at $1 14@1-8. Crop damage reports which made their appearance had little effect on the figures which were principally responsive to the demand from speculators and the close was strong and not far from the high point.

Liquidation and much short selling by speculators caused a rapid decline in corn after a relatively steady opening. The upturn in wheat aided the corn market and an advance of from 7-8 to 1 1-8 from the low point was registered. May fell off to 65 3-4 and advanced to 66 3-4@7-8. The other futures traveled in narrower limits. The close was strong at a shade off from the high point with May at 66 3-4, 1 4@3-8 higher.

Oats reflected the course of the other grains in an early decline and a later recovery, the gains, however, not being so pronounced as in wheat or corn. May opened steady to a shade off, fell to 46 3-4 and climbed to 47 1-4@3-8, the other futures fluctuating somewhat less. The close was firm at near the high points with May at 47 1-8@1-4, unchanged from yesterday.

Provisions were easier owing to lower live hog values, opening from $1 1-2 to 15 lower, and the market declined still further. May pork falling to $23.47 1-2. Prospects of a heavier live hog run next week had a dragging effect and quantities of the products were transferred. The upturn in grains stiffened provisions in the final half and some of the early losses were regained, ribs creeping back to yesterday's close and pork and lard finishing 5 to 7 1-2 below.

NEW ERA MINE NOW IN BONANZA CLASS

Two Months' Development Puts Property in Shape to Ship 300 Tons a Month.

IDAHO SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 19.—The New Era mine at Freeland, after a two years' campaign of development is now shipping at the rate of 300 tons per month. An ore body of bonanza proportions and value has been opened. The lode is eight feet in width, about equally divided in smelting ore and milling material. The former has an average value of 170 ounces gold and 4.50 ounces silver per ton. The mill dirt is treated at local plants and is paying large profits. Manager James Cousins reports that an output of $1,000 per month can be maintained indefinitely. The ore body now yielding so handsomely is in the extension of the Oneida-Stag vein where it lies within New Era territory.

The Central tunnel is getting a reputation for regularity and persistence that places it in the category with the seasons of the year. The main tunnel was driven 800 feet last year and the total length of the tunnel now is 8,477 feet, from the banks of Clear creek to a point beneath the highest apex of the divide between Clear Creek and Gilpin counties, and to the very margin of the richest mineral territory in the world. The tunnel is now beyond the point where the Lake lode was looked for, but, owing to the angle which this lode lies with the line of the tunnel, it is difficult to determine exactly the point of intersection. Recently a small vein was cut from which an assay of 2.80 ounces gold and 6.60 ounces silver was obtained.

Tributary properties in the tunnel are active. The Shafter is working with a large number of men and shipping a larger tonnage than for some time past. The Refugee is working steadily in extending the Shafter lateral into its territory, and the Anon lateral is being driven by J. O. A. Carver, of Denver.

The drifts from the bottom of the shaft of the Big Chief mine, operated by the Humming Bird Mining company, is revealing a large body of excellent ore. Both headings have a streak of ore, the east giving 8.36 ounces and the west 6.50 ounces gold per ton.

TO REOPEN CALLIOPE

OURAY, Colo., Feb 19.—On the return from the east of Mr. Sigfried a few days ago, it has leaked out that everything has been arranged for the reopening of the Calliope property at an early date, with the assurance of it being operated without interruption to the completion of the development outlined when the company took the mine over. Floods, fires and other disasters, attended by a death of one of the leading men in the directorate, were the many obstacles that impeded progress on this mine and finally brought about a cessation of operations.

ROCKS THAT WILL SERVE MANY OCCASIONS

Work and Play for the Idle Hour

ONE-HALF OF CENTERPIECE

Drawn by Sarah Hale Hunter

[illegible] the paper the design will show through. Use a hard pencil. If your design is not rub off, lay [illegible], place the design with a hard pencil. [illegible] to be [illegible] with a needle [illegible] buttonhole with red silk, or if a square cover is used, it can be hemstitched with a row of featherstitching above in red silk.

[illegible] and leaves will be [illegible] the solid stitch.

[illegible] be [illegible] the veins.

Lace can be used under the edge of the cover, which is held in place at the corners with rosettes of narrow red ribbon.

Curious Hair Ornaments.

One of the new hair ornaments that is worn in the front hair only, is a narrow band of blue velvet ribbon edged with pearls or rhinestones strung on a platinum wire. The ribbon is worn well down on the forehead in a way more novel than becoming. It is held in place by thin, almost invisible ends that fasten through the back hair.

Another good looking ornament to be worn around front of hair only is a wide shaded velvet ribbon, blue and brown. The ends of the ribbon are cut into points to represent long narrow leaves, and each leaf has the central vein studded with rhinestones run on a platinum wire to shape the foliage in any becoming position.

Ribbon fillets are most absurd of hair ornaments. If some women know how closely they resembled a patient who has just left the hands of a surgeon they would not feel so self-satisfied with their head trimmings.

Particularly trying is the silver or white ribbon fillet several inches wide, worn low on the forehead with hair pushed almost to eyebrows underneath. Some fillets are not only brought entirely around the hair below the braids, but have a cross piece at back reaching from just behind the ear.

scallops, with dots in clusters of three between every other scallop or instead of the scallops a line of featherstitching can be made to follow the scallops.

White flannel embroidered with pale blue or pink will be dainty or pink or blue flannel embroidered with the same.

Use silk or mercerized embroidery cotton for the work and ribbon the same shade for fastening the neck and sleeves.

Cork Bag.

Esther A.—A very useful little present is a bag made of flowered ribbon and filled with new corks of different sizes from very small to quite large ones.

The bag should have drawing strings of ribbon, and be hung in a convenient place, so that whenever a cork is needed it can easily be found.

Apron.

Mabel D.—A dainty little apron is always a welcome gift, and there are several attractive ways of making one.

A lavender and white dimity trimmed with Valenciennes lace will be very pretty to use. The apron should be rather small and cut in three sections joined together with Valenciennes insertion, finished on the edges with a ruffle of the dimity trimmed with lace.

The ruffle can be joined to the apron with lace beading run with lavender ribbon.

A wider beading is used at the top for the band, run with wider lavender ribbon for strings. A small lace trimmed pocket on one side of the apron will make it more attractive.

AN ATTRACTIVE STENCIL DESIGN

By Grace Evans

THE woman who is planning articles of pink or lavender will find this stencil pretty and effective. It may be used for a border by arranging the design at each end of the article and extending the bar across the bottom.

This arrangement is very attractive for a bureau scarf. Make the scarf or spread to cover only the top of the bureau and to hang over at the ends. Have the designer decorate the ends of your bureau and arrange toilet articles between.

Another pretty border is made by repeating the design at intervals to suit the article decorated.

A pretty opera bag could be made of light yellow velveteen and decorated with shades of green and lavender.

A very attractive effect could be made by repeating the design in perpendicular fashion, for curtains, screens, etc.

This design is intended for those who wish to make their own stencils. It is really a very simple matter and requires no special skill.

The easiest way to make it is to cut it out of cardboard. There is a special kind of board prepared for this purpose that costs very little, but any kind of thin cardboard will do quite as well.

Trace the design given here on the cardboard. This is done best by the use of impression paper or carbon paper. It is inexpensive, and may be used over and over again for all sorts of transferring.

Put the transfer paper under the design given here, and place both of them upon the cardboard.

Then with a hard pencil or sharp pointed instrument, trace the outlines of the design. You will find these outlines clearly marked on the cardboard.

If you are a beginner, I would suggest that you darken the portions to be cut out, otherwise you are likely to cut the wrong parts as there are so many little pieces in the design needed to hold the stencil together.

The cutting is done with a sharp knife, the small blade being best. If you place the cardboard on a piece of glass you will find the cutting easier and more exact. When using other cardboard than that specially made for the purpose, it is well to rub it over with sweet oil. This not only makes it waterproof, but easier to cut.

After it is cut, varnish it on both sides with shellac and be careful that none of it collects in the corners.

Now the stencil being complete, you are ready to use it.

In decorating your material place several layers of newspapers on a single piece of blotting paper under goods to absorb all superfluous color. Stretch the goods over ironing board or table and pin closely along the edges. Then pin the design on material.

When you have painted one part of a repeated pattern see that in removing stencil the edges will not blur.

Before repeating the design the exact position where each repeating piece is to be placed must be decided upon and marked by pins, or lightly with a pencil so that it will be properly arranged.

Change the upper layer of newspaper every time you shift your pattern, so the color absorbed will not blur or stain the new material.

Apply the color quite thinly, using a separate brush for each color.

Be sure to have at hand a small piece of cloth wet with benzine or turpentine to wipe the stencil, for it is absolutely necessary to have your stencil clean on both sides.

The next thing to consider is brushes. Almost any kind of brush or round bristle will do. The size depends on the pattern. A separate brush must be used for applying each color.

As almost any color can be had by mixtures of red, blue and yellow, these three are necessary to have at first. It is best to use transparent colors such as burnt sienna (brown), rose madder, which comes in four shades, and cadmium (yellow). These colors are mixed with turpentine or naphtha until it is like a stain.

The naphtha is preferable for goods of delicate texture. The turpentine causes the color of the goods to fade if the material is too delicate.

But that leaves only the question of materials to consider. These may be of almost any kind or quality, but some fabrics are much easier to use than others. Cheesecloth is very popularly used for sheer material, but has the disadvantage of being very shrinkable. Mull and muslin of a creamy color can be advantageously used. The coarse texture cannot be quickly treated, for the color has to be slowly rubbed into the fiber.

The Girl and her Problems

An Airship Party

BY MARY DAWSON

AN entertainment that was greatly enjoyed by the sixteen little people invited was An Evening In An Airship. Without going to much expense and with a small modicum of trouble the clever mother of the little twelve-year-old host contrived to make the affair both original and entertaining.

The ceiling of the living-room where guests were received was covered by long soft streamers of pale blue cheese cloth dotted with gilt stars cut from paper and pasted onto the goods. Clouds which hung just a little below were made of billowy white cotton batting. This setting suggested the notion of a flight through the air which the little people were quick to seize upon and to appreciate.

The invitations which could be in either prose or doggerel were on the original occasion in the former, the following being about the formula used.

The new Airship Featherweight will make its trial trip on February 1 from [illegible] West Park Lane, at eight o'clock. Your presence to witness the ascent is cordially requested.

Guests entering the house on the appointed evening found a colored toy balloon anchored by an elaborate system of [illegible] and weights to the floor or [illegible] table. Below the balloon was a [illegible] paper box in which sat a small doll in masculine attire labeled "Prof. Fly Flighty."

When all the guests were on the scene, this airship was cut from its moorings and the Prof. [illegible] made a successful flight [illegible] the plaudits of the crowd. Gas jets, lamps, etc., must be guarded during the flight if the frolic occurs after illumination is [illegible] as the [illegible] balloons are explosive should they come in contact with the lights.

After the flight and the merriment it excites had died down a little, the entertainers distributed cards and scissors among the guests and called on the boys and girls to cut out an airship, whether [illegible], dirigible or simple balloon, [illegible] were allowed for the cutting after which some older person examined the results, decided which design was cleverest and awarded a prize.

For prizes in all the games the toy airships which cost but a few pennies and which are still [illegible] in this era of aerial navigation are just the thing.

If prepared for any reason the game above described could be a drawing contest in which the ship sailing [illegible] with [illegible] of flying out with streamers.
